Move To Increase Tuition Is Rejected

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

An effort to force the University of Nebraska and the state colleges to hike tuition charges in order to receive their full budgetary authorization was rejected by a single vote Thursday in the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

Then the committee deadlocked on motion to send its operational budget bill to the floor for debate.

Stuck in committee on a 4-4 vote, the bill will not be accorded further discussion until sometime next week.

Chairman Richard Marvel of the committee said he will not call a committee meeting Friday.

"I've tried daily to get the bill out and I'll continue to try," he said.

In Thursday's only action, the committee accepted on a 5-4 vote a motion to loosen the Legislature's proposed salary policy to authorize state agencies to provide salary hikes above $800 for outstanding performance or to correct salary inequities.

The $800 figure had been written into the budget bill as the maximum salary increase desired by the Legislature. A $300 minimum remains the bill.

While state agencies were given discretion to go beyond the recommended $800 maximum, no additional funds were allocated by the committee for that purpose.

Thus, adjustments must be made by agencies within the earlier salary schedule totals approved by the committee, which were based on hikes of 2 1/2% plus $200, with a minimum of $300 and a maximum of $800.

Failure to advance the bill seemed to indicate that efforts will be continuing to increase the budgetary recommendations for the universities.

No motions were offered Thursday to hike NU totals, but it appeared that a number of committee members want to consider such proposals before they are willing to dispatch the operational budget bill to the floor.

The committee's executive session followed on the heels of a private meeting Thursday morning among Marvel, Gov. J. James Exon and NU President D. B. Varner.

Exon and Varner have reached substantial accord on a state tax-supported general fund figure reportedly in excess of the committee's recommendation.

The tuition hike proposal would have reduced the university's general fund figure by $480,465 and decreased general fund dollars for the state colleges by $180,229, anticipating a $5 per hour tuition charge for students carrying more than 12, but less than 17, credit hours.

No charge is now made for those hours carried by full-time students.

While the Legislature cannot require the NU Board of Regents or the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges to boost tuition, it can effectively force them to follow its wishes in order to receive the full amount of money budgeted to them.

The general fund reductions would be coupled with cash fund increases for the institutions reflecting the amount of additional money which could be raised by adopting the Legislature's tuition recommendations.

There would be no change in total budget authorizations for the university and the colleges.

The motion was rejected on a 4-5 vote.

Resident students at NU now pay $18 per credit hour. Their tuition was increased last year.

McGovern Is 'Not Proud' Of Congress' Aid To Indians

South Sioux City (P) — "As the chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Indian Affairs, I am not proud of what Congress and the various federal administrations have done to improve the overall status of Indians," Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Thursday.

The South Dakota aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke to Indians and other interested persons at the National Conference and Training Program on American Indian problem drinking and drug addiction in South Sioux City.

McGovern said he was glad that American Indians are exerting their own voices and added that it is imperative for them to become involved as active citizens.

He recalled a bill he co-sponsored in the late 1950s when he was a member of the House of Representatives. Based on former President Truman's concept to assist developing countries abroad, this resolution was designed to provide self-determination for the Indians while providing them with medical, economic, agricultural and educational help.

Since he has become a member of the Senate, he has revised the proposal and introduced it here, McGovern said.

He is still trying to get the federal government to commit itself to long-term assistance to Indians, he said.

Working within the community to combat alcoholism among Indians is the emphasis of the three-day conference.

About 200 Indians are expected to attend the conference sponsored by the University of South Dakota, and several national Indian organizations.

Two Indian leaders reviewed the alcoholism programs in their areas.

Earl Livermore, president of the American Indian Center in San Francisco, said approximately 12,000 of the 40,000 Indians in the Bay Area have drinking problems.

He said two half-way houses for Indian alcoholics are in operation to combat the problem and he is hoping for the creation of an Indian Alcoholics Anonymous program.

Herb Powless of Milwaukee, Wis., said his city has such an AA program for its Indian population of 7,000.

Procedures Get Pay Board OK

. . . BUT RULES VARY

Washington (P) — The Pay Board Thursday unanimously approved procedures under which all scheduled pay raises lost during the wage freeze may be paid, unless stopped by the board itself.

The board granted automatic approval of many raises up to 7%, but said it will take a look at most raises over that and all raises affecting 5,000 or more employees.

The action clears a major obstacle holding up back pay estimated as high as $1.5 billion.

The board's action was approved by a unanimous 14-0 vote, with Chairman George H. Boldt abstaining.

Afterward, the board said in a news release, Boldt "congratulated his colleagues on their unanimity of purpose and their prompt action . . ."

Rules Vary

The board's rules vary according to the size and circumstances of the raise, and the number of persons affected:

—For units of 5,000 persons or less, retroactive raises may be granted automatically if they do not exceed 7%. Raises of more than 7% also may be granted automatically, provided funds had been set aside for them, or productivity increased, before the freeze. In both cases the employer must notify the Internal Revenue Service within 20 days of payment.

—For all units of more than 5,000 persons employers must give the government 14 days notice of intent to pay the retroactive raises, during which time five or more members of the Pay Board may challenge the raise. This requirement also applies to raises of more than 7% for smaller units, if funds were not set aside or productivity did not increase.

The action amplifies the law Congress passed last month requiring payment of all retroactive raises for which funds had been set aside or where productivity went up, or which are not "unreasonably inconsistent" with wage controls.

In an action involving aerospace workers, a scant majority of the Pay Board approved a plan under which two big unions could stretch out over two years the full 12% pay raise it desired.

$340 Loss Each

The Pay Board formula, if the unions accept it, would mean a one-time loss this year of roughly $340 each to 100,000 aerospace workers, a union official estimated.

But the plan also would mean approval by the board of raises of 8% this year and 7%, plus a cost of living adjustment, next year, both of which exceed the board's own 5.5% wage guideline.

The board rejected the 12% raise Jan. 6, saying it was inconsistent with the board's standards. Labor members were outvoted then by a solid front of public and business members, first 9-5, then 9-0, with labor abstaining.

Thursday Vote 8-2

Thursday's plan was adopted 8-2, with the five labor members abstaining and two business members in the minority. Boldt, a public member who twice abstained last week, cast his vote this time to make the eight-man majority.

Unpaid Overtime Work Creates Patrol Problem

On Jan. 13, 1971, the day before President Richard Nixon made his brief stop at the University of Nebraska Coliseum, State Patrol Trooper Ron Stokes worked an 18-hour day in security preparations.

On Jan. 14, when Nixon proclaimed the Cornhusker football team officially "number one," Stokes worked a 19-hour day.

During the 48-hour period, Stokes worked 37 hours. He was paid, as he expected, for 20 hours — two 10-hour days. In a notebook where he keeps track of unpaid overtime, Stokes recorded 17 hours for "presidential security."

Stokes, then a 4 1/2-year patrol veteran, was paid $1.76 an hour

by the State of Nebraska for his help in guarding the President. (Two days' pay — $65.08 — divided by 37 hours.)

Three-Mile Chase

The next day, in snowy 20 degree weather, Stokes put in an hour's overtime chasing an escaped mental patient for three miles on foot.

He worked two extra hours

April 30 to justify in a drunken-driving case in O'Neill. May 26 seven extra hours, a 17-hour day; patrolling a strike at a packing plant in Schuyler. June 6 half an hour; serving a warrant on a woman accused of threatening her trailer-court neighbors with a rifle. July 23 4 1/2 hours; patrolling the Winnebago Indian Reservation during a pow-wow.

"I enjoy the variety of work that I do," Stokes said, "and the 50-hour week isn't so bad. It's the overtime that hurts. We should at least be paid straight time."

One reason the patrol lost 14 men to other jobs in 1971 is that patrolmen are required to work hundreds of hours of overtime yearly — without being paid for it. The number leaving is growing: eight quit for other jobs in 1969; 11 in 1970.

Only One Source
But unpaid overtime is only one source of growing concern of patrolmen about their future with the patrol. In addition, low salaries, high health insurance premiums and slow promotions are causing the patrol to lose a growing number of qualified and dedicated men — at a time when it can't afford to lose any.

It can't afford to lose any, according to patrol sources, because troopers already are spread so thinly throughout the state that not all highways can be covered and the best job of law enforcement cannot be done.

From 1937, when the patrol began with 28 cars and six motorcycles, to 1972, with 326 cars, two buses and a helicopter, the patrol has lived up to an image of professional performance of duty and esprit de corps.

To those still with the patrol, such as Stokes, and to those who have resigned, nothing has altered the patrol's image.

HONG KONG FLU IS BACK WITH US

Atlanta, Ga. (P) — Feeling tired? Run down? Does your back ache? Head ache? Man, you've got it, Hong Kong flu is back.

The disease killed 27,900 persons when it first appeared in the United States in 1968-69, according to the National Center for Disease Control. The center has attributed no deaths so far in the current outbreak.

The first signs of a flu epidemic made their appearance several weeks ago.

The latest nationwide survey shows that Type A2 flu, or Hong Kong flu, has been diagnosed in 22 states, the District of Columbia and New York City, which makes a separate report to the NCDC.

A spokesman for the NCDC noted that there are many viruses which are making the rounds with the flu bug. "But if you just feel like hell, you've probably got the flu."

A spokesman said that in some cases the flu may be accompanied by a virus that lowers body temperatures. No type of flu itself suppresses temperatures. He said the lowered temperature is not unusual.

There are two major families of influenza viruses — Type A2 — Hong Kong — and Type B. If you have either, you'd feel just as bad. They are distinguishable only in the laboratory.

The Hong Kong strain was first isolated in the United States in Atlanta in October 1968, when a military man returned from Vietnam. The strain first broke out in Hong Kong in July 1968 and later spread to Singapore and Formosa. It eventually reached Europe.

This year, the NCDC has come up with a new method of cataloguing outbreaks of flu and other respiratory illnesses, noting that all respiratory ailments are not influenza.

Of the confirmed cases of Type A2 influenza, there are three categories.

First, the outbreak of Hong Kong flu is widespread only in Rhode Island, Connecticut and New Jersey.

Second, there are regional outbreaks in Michigan and Wisconsin.

Third, there are isolated cases of Hong Kong flu in the District of Columbia, New York City, Maine, Vermont, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Kansas, Iowa, South Dakota, Florida, Tennessee, Texas, Louisiana, Colorado, Utah, Montana, California and Oregon.

In addition, 16 states were listed where there are outbreaks of respiratory illness, but where A2 influenza has not been confirmed in the laboratory. They are:

Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico plus Puerto Rico.

Personnel Board Considers Appeal By Ousted Policeman

. . . WOODRUFF RAPS 'BRASS'

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The City Personnel Board took under advisement the appeal of former Police Sgt. Rollie L. Woodruff, who was fired Sept. 10 by the Police Department for conduct unbecoming an officer, following a 2 1/2-hour public hearing Thursday.

Chairman Dennis Fettingier said a written decision of the board would be rendered within 10 days as required by the city personnel code.

Woodruff, 45, was discharged following a department investigation of an Aug. 20 incident in which the 10-year veteran "struck" another officer, Richard Heaton, and a review of the discharged officer's "prior performance record," City Atty. Dick Wood advised the board.

In his testimony, Woodruff said he was "sorry it (the incident) happened," but contended his conduct was provoked by the pressures of his job and alleged harassing action by department "brass."

Woodruff was booked sergeant the night of Aug. 20 when Heaton and his cruiser partner brought two drunks to the jail complex, according to hearing testimony.

During the booking process which "seemed to take a long time," Heaton related, Woodruff received a telephone call and during the conversation remarked he "sure was snowed."

Heaton said he jokingly remarked it had been "snowing for 45 minutes," and Woodruff took offense, saying "not to make any more smart aleck remarks."

"Sgt. Woodruff told me to get back on the street," Heaton related, "but I said I couldn't do so until the second prisoner was booked."

"At this time, Woodruff came out of his office and shoved me back into the holding room," Heaton testified. "His face was red and he seemed to be under strain."

"Woodruff then swung with his right arm and struck me on the jaw," Heaton said.

Inspector Dale Adams testified Woodruff was a "highly regarded" officer during his early years on the force and "advanced quickly to rank of detective."

Then two or three years later, Woodruff's "performance problems" started and he was first transferred to communications and later to jail complex duty, according to Adams.

He said there were frequent complaints regarding the jail records kept by Woodruff during his duty tours, and the officer had had a "prior disciplinary suspension in 1969."

Asked by the city attorney whether the striking of one officer by another officer could be tolerated under any circumstances, Adams replied, "No, Sir."

In his testimony, Woodruff contended his "problems" started when he started looking into things (later indicated as gambling offenses), and was "taken off plainclothes duty."

"It was (Chief Joe) Carroll's way of keeping me under his thumb," Woodruff said. "It was a come down."

Woodruff also contended he became a "target of the (department) brass" because he had "spoken up about unfair promotions" and questioned "some other things in the department."

"Once you get into trouble with the brass, they let the lower ranks know its open season on you," he asserted.

The former officer charged other officers have been given this treatment until they resign.

Wood repeatedly objected to Woodruff's statements as outside of the hearing's scope and "bordering on slander and libel."

Carroll said, "It is self-explanatory why we dismissed him and as to what the total witnesses testified to."

"I have no hopes of coming back to the department," Woodruff told the board, "but I hope what I have said will cause someone to turn over the rocks and look at the worms."

Again objecting to Woodruff's statements, the city attorney said, "If the personnel board wants to investigate the police department, that's okay — but do it at another time. The issue here is the misconduct of an officer."

Credibility Gap Called A Chasm By Sen. Eagleton

St. Louis (P) — The secrecy in government has become so pervasive that "the credibility gap has become a chasm," Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said Wednesday night.

He said the administration is "not telling the public the whole truth" and people have gotten the feeling they are being "handled" instead of informed.

He cited the disclosures of the Vietnam Pentagon papers and the more recent Anderson papers concerning the government's actions on the India-Pakistan conflict.

Eagleton addressed the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism society.

BUDGET STALLED IN COMMITTEE . . .

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

An effort to force the University of Nebraska and the state colleges to hike tuition charges in order to receive their full budgetary authorization was rejected by a single vote Thursday in the Legislature's Appropriations Committee.

Then the committee deadlocked on a motion to send its operational budget bill to the floor for debate.

Stuck in committee on a 4-4 vote, the bill will not be accorded further discussion until sometime next week.

Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said he will not call a committee meeting Friday.

"I've tried daily to get the bill out and I'll continue to try," he said.

In Thursday's only action, the committee accepted on a 5-4 vote a motion to loosen the Legislature's proposed salaries policy to authorize state agencies to provide salary hikes above $600 "for outstanding performance or to correct salary inequities."

The $600 figure had been written into the budget bill as the maximum salary increase desired by the Legislature. A $300 minimum remains in the bill.

While state agencies were given discretion to go beyond the recommended $600 maximum, no additional funds were allocated by the committee for that purpose.

Thus, adjustments must be made by the agencies within the earlier salary funding totals approved by the committee, which were based on hikes of 2½% plus $200, with a minimum of $300 and a maximum of $600.

Failure to advance the bill seemed to indicate that efforts will be forthcoming to increase the budget figures recommended for the university.

No motions were offered Thursday to hike NU totals, but it appeared that a number of committee members want to consider such proposals before they are willing to dispatch the operational budget bill to the floor.

The committee's executive session followed on the heels of a private meeting Thursday morning among Marvel, Gov. J. James Exon and NU President D. B. Varner.

Exon and Varner have reached substantial accord on a state tax-supported general fund figure reportedly in excess of the committee's recommendation.

The tuition hike proposal would have reduced the university's general fund figure by $480,465 and decreased general fund dollars for the state colleges by $180,229, anticipating a $5 per hour tuition charge for students carrying more than 12, but less than 17, credit hours.

No charge is now made for those hours carried by full-time students.

While the Legislature cannot require the NU Board of Regents or the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges to boost tuition, it can effectively force them to follow its wishes in order to receive the full amount of money budgeted to them.

The general fund reductions would be coupled with cash fund increases for the institutions reflecting the amount of additional money which could be raised by adopting the Legislature's tuition recommendations.

There would be no change in total budget authorizations for the university and the colleges.

The motion was rejected on a 4-5 vote.

Resident students at NU now pay $18 per credit hour. Their tuition was increased last year.

Personnel Board Considers Appeal By Ousted Policeman

The City Personnel Board took under advisement the appeal of former Police Sgt. Rollic L. Woodruff, who was fired Sept. 10 by the Police Department for conduct unbecoming an officer, following a 2½-hour public hearing Thursday.

Chairman Dennis Fettingger said a written decision of the board would be rendered within 10 days as required by the city personnel code.

Woodruff was booking sergeant the night of Aug. 20 when Heaton and his cruiser partner brought two drunks to the jail complex, according to hearing testimony.

During the booking process which "seemed to take a long time," Heaton related, Woodruff received a telephone call and during the conversation remarked he "sure was snowed."

Heaton said he jokingly remarked it had been "snowing for 45 minutes," and Woodruff took offense, saying "not to make any more smart aleck remarks."

"Sgt. Woodruff told me to get back on the street," Heaton related, "but I said I couldn't do so until the second prisoner was booked."

"At this time, Woodruff came out of his office and shoved me back into the holding room," Heaton testified. "His face was red and he seemed to be under strain."

"Woodruff then swung with his right arm and struck me on the jaw," Heaton said.

Inspector Dale Adams testified Woodruff was a "highly regarded" officer during his early years on the force and "advanced quickly to rank of detective."

Then two or three years later, Woodruff's "performance problems" started and he was first transferred to communications and later to jail complex duty, according to Adams.

He said there were frequent complaints regarding the jail records kept by Woodruff during his duty tours, and the officer had had a "prior disciplinary suspension in 1969."

Asked by the city attorney whether the striking of one officer by another officer could be tolerated under any circumstances, Adams replied, "No, Sir."

In his testimony, Woodruff contended his "problems" started when he started looking into things (later indicated as gambling offenses), and was "taken off plainclothes duty," "It was (Chief Joe) Carroll's way of keeping me under his thumb," Woodruff said. "It was a come down."

Woodruff also contended he became a "target of the (department) brass" because he had "spoken up about unfair promotions" and questioned "some other things in the department."

"Once you get into trouble with the brass, they let the lower ranks know its open season on you," he asserted.

The former officer charged other officers have been given this treatment until they resign.

Wood repeatedly objected to Woodruff's statements as outside of the hearing's scope and "bordering on slander and libel."

Carroll said, "It is self-explanatory why we dismissed him and as to what the total witnesses testified to."

"I have no hopes of coming back to the department," Woodruff told the board, "but I hope what I have said will cause someone to turn over the rocks and look at the worms."

Again objecting to Woodruff's statements, the city attorney said, "If the personnel board wants to investigate the police department, that's okay — but do it at another time. The issue here is the misconduct of an officer."

Credibility Gap Called A Chasm By Sen. Eagleton

St. Louis (AP) — The secrecy in government has become so pervasive that "the credibility gap has become a chasm," Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said Wednesday night.

He said the administration is "not telling the public the whole truth" and people have gotten the feeling they are being "handled" instead of informed.

He cited the disclosures of the Vietnam Pentagon papers and the more recent Anderson papers concerning the government's actions on the India-Pakistan conflict.

Eagleton addressed the Sigma Delta Chi professional journalism society.

Solons Reject Move To End Secrecy

A proposal which would have allowed reporters to disclose all conversation occurring in executive session meetings of the Legislature fell three votes short Thursday of passing.

The rules change, sponsored by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter, required a three-fifths majority for passage but could rally only 27 votes in favor with 16 opposing.

Current Legislative rules only allow the news media to report vote totals on various measures, but the rules prohibit reporting how an individual votes or the discussion which occurs. Unless a participating senator gives a reporter permission to use his comments, newsmen can only listen.

Carpenter said his proposal was intended "to restore public confidence in government and credibility."

"We should be accountable for all that we say and do."

"What do we do that the public cannot hear about anyway?"

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers echoed Carpenter's sentiments: "Open meetings are needed to restore the public's confidence in government. I'll do everything in my power to inform the public. Any executive session which I'm in will be revealed to the media."

"If the Pentagon Papers can't be kept secret, there's little that we do which can be kept secret."

Many lawmakers during the one hour debate feared such a rule change would cut down on communication and foster clandestine meetings in coffee shops and restaurants.

Sidney Sen. Robert Clark said the measure would further tie the Legislature's hands and "would drive the discussion underground."

Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson agreed saying, "If this passes, we're going to see the committees devise ingenious ways of getting around reporters' presence."

Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and Orval Keyes of Springfield felt the executive session was a device for frank communication between witnesses and senators.

Delegate Selection Bill Advances

By The Associated Press

Tentative approval was given by the Legislature Thursday to an omnibus election bill which would alter the method of choosing Nebraska's representatives to national political conventions, granting increased power to the two major parties.

The lengthy bill generally updates the state's election laws, coordinating election dates and bringing the statutes into line with other state laws.

However, much of the floor debate centered around the controversial proposal to alter the method of selecting Nebraska delegates and alternate delegates to the two national conventions.

Currently, all delegates and alternates are chosen by voters on the primary ballot, but legislators voted 32-2 to accept an amendment which would allow the two parties to choose all alternate delegates at state party conventions.

Delegate selection would still be left up to the primary voters by the amendment with all delegates running from one of the state's three congressional districts.

Delegate apportionment would be determined by a district's vote in the most recent presidential election.

The amendment was offered by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, who termed it a "compromise which we think will satisfy those involved."

Warner said his proposal has the backing of both major political parties.

Waldron Opposes

The chief opponent of the Warner proposal Thursday was Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway, who contended the measure would begin to erode the Democratic process.

"When the party leaders say that they want this to help shorten the ballot, what they're saying is that the voters aren't intelligent enough to choose their delegates and alternates," Waldron said.

"I think the people like it the way it is," he suggested.

In response, Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter said, "democracy is only a figure of speech. For all practical purposes, national conventions have to be controlled. The common man has never been represented there."

Bill Seeks Uniform Liquor Pricing

By United Press International
Uniform pricing of alcoholic beverages would become mandatory in Nebraska under a bill introduced in the Legislature Thursday.

LB1289, sponsored by Sen. J. J. Waldron of Callaway, would require that minimum sale prices for liquor sold by licensed distributors and retailers in the state be determined and regulated by law.

The measure also says it would be unlawful for distributors to buy liquor from manufacturers unless the manufacturer agreed to sell to all distributors in the state at the same wholesale price furnished on price lists.

Distributors who dealt with manufacturers who did not agree to sell at uniform prices would have their liquor license revoked, the measure says.

The measure provides that the uniform price for manufacturers "should be no higher than the lowest price for which such liquor is sold to distributors anywhere in the continental United States."

Violations of the retail provisions in the bill by distributors would make licensees guilty of a misdemeanor, with a $1,000-5,000 fine for each offense.

The measure stated its purpose was "in the public interest and in order to promote the orderly sale and distribution of alcoholic liquor, to foster temperance and to promote the public welfare in the state."

Unpaid Overtime Creating Problems

patrolmen agree. Yet they have looked for other jobs, quit the patrol, and in some cases, sold their homes and moved from the state.

"I'm afraid we're going to lose more," said Stokes, president of the State Troopers Association of Nebraska. "I've had several contact me in the last 60 days who are seriously considering leaving."

Ex-trooper Tom Roth, now employed by Gateway Realty in Lincoln, quit the patrol in April 1971. He said he would have stayed with the patrol if promotion had been faster and pay higher.

Unpaid Overtime

In a lawsuit, Roth charged that the state owes him $3,049 for 901 hours of unpaid overtime since 1966. State attorneys agreed that Roth had worked the overtime hours, but said he was not entitled to be paid because troopers never have been paid for overtime.

On Dec. 22, Lancaster District Judge Bartlett E. Boyles ruled that Roth was not entitled to overtime pay. In an interview later, Boyles said that while Roth may be ethically and morally entitled to the money, he was not legally entitled to it because, in the judge's opinion, Roth knew when he joined the patrol that overtime was not paid.

Between July 1 and November 30, 1971, out of a total payroll of $61,543,000, state employees were paid $669,000 for overtime, according to Assistant State Budget Administrator John H. Jacobson. Some state employees were given compensatory time off instead of overtime dollars.

State patrolmen, however, were given neither overtime pay nor an equal amount of time off. Testifying during Roth's lawsuit, Patrol Supt.

James E. Kruger said he could not recall overtime having been paid to patrolmen in his 31 years with the patrol.

50-Hour Week

Nebraska patrolmen work a 50-hour week with 10-hour days. According to state payroll officials, patrolmen are the only state employees regularly scheduled to work more than a 40-hour week.

The patrol, because of extensive overtime work, must request specific budget funds to pay for it. In 1967 the patrol requested $116,000 to pay for overtime accrued from April 1965 to June 1967. The patrol also asked for $158,000 for possible overtime in the next biennium.

Both requests were denied. All specific requests by the State Patrol for overtime funds have been disapproved by the Legislature or the governor.

Since many patrolmen have weeks of accumulated overtime, compensatory time off is impossible. But in individual emergencies, Stokes said, patrolmen can count on getting time off. Example: He was allowed to use 20 hours of accumulated overtime to drive to Texas to pick up his wife and children after they were involved in a traffic accident.

Wait For Promotion

The average wait for promotion in the patrol is five years, estimated Arthur Dobberstein, a university of Nebraska political science graduate who analyzed the patrol for a master's thesis. A trooper must wait a minimum of 5 years to be considered for corporal; a corporal must wait three years to be considered for sergeant.

The patrol's promotion policy, Dobberstein said, is to "work your way up through the ranks," which requires a trooper with a special skill to wait the same amount of time for promotion as the rest.

Unlike the Lincoln Police Department, which pays a bonus of 2½% of base pay for college credit, the patrol offers no extra incentive to a patrolman with a college degree. Extra pay for college credit would raise the salaries of about a fourth of the 326 authorized patrolmen.

Stokes said he does not believe slow promotions are the troopers' major complaint. In a recent poll, he asked 126 patrolmen to list their individual priorities regarding the patrol. Of 75 who responded, 73 listed salary as their first priority, followed by a lower cost health insurance program, he said.

Beginning Salary

The beginning monthly salary of a state trooper ($580) is lower than the beginning salary of a Lincoln policeman ($617) and an Omaha policeman ($667).

Under present pay rates, it would take a trooper 24 years to surpass the salary an Omaha policeman earns after four years. After 42 months, a Lincoln policeman makes $747 a month, compared to $695 for a trooper.

The average yearly starting salary of state patrolmen, in 44 states responding to a survey of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), was $7,333 in 1969. Nebraska State Patrolmen start at $6,780 a year.

"Money was the biggest problem," said ex-patrolman John M. Skeen, now working for the Kodak Corp. near Windsor, Colo. He said he was a patrolman seven years, but started at Kodak for $200 a year more while working two hours a day less.

"Little Things"

He said he resigned because of "little things," such as paying $30 a month at the patrol for a Blue-Cross-Blue Shield policy which cost him $2 at Kodak.

Another "little thing" was unpaid overtime, he said. Kodak pays time and a half for more than 40 hours a week, double time for Sundays and triple time for holidays, Skeen said.

There are few public displays of discontent among troopers still with the patrol.

"They're a pretty moderate group of people," Stokes said. "They sort of shy away from screaming or protesting." The union's constitution forbids strikes, slowdowns or other work stoppages by members.

"By the time a road trooper has put in 10 hours," Stokes said, "he's ready to quit — he's had it. But if he sees potential trouble — say a big wedding celebration in a small town — he'll stay and patrol the area. When he gets home, he complains to his wife."

Turnover Rate

Despite indications that some patrolmen are growing increasingly concerned about their future with the patrol, the turnover rate is about average compared with patrol turnover rates in neighboring states.

The patrol appears highly regarded by prospective applicants. In 1970, 262 men applied for preliminary tests to become patrolmen; in 1971 there were 322. There always have been more applicants than authorized jobs to fill: 23 were selected as troopers in 1970; 45 in 1971.

Getting by with an insufficient number of troopers has been a problem voiced by the patrol for the past 20 years, records show.

The budget request for fiscal 1972-73 stated that with the "staggering workload shouldered" by patrol crime investigators, the four officers requested would "somewhat offset the increase in criminal cases."

Not Enough Troopers

In an interview, Kruger said that because there are not enough troopers, all public roads in Nebraska can't be patrolled.

"We need more road coverage," Stokes said. "There's a good chance more troopers will help cut accidents. But you can't tell the Legislature to give us X troopers and we will guarantee X less accidents."

Using a formula recommended in 1969 by the IACP, the State Patrol found a need of 865 civilian and uniformed employees just to handle Nebraska traffic. At that time, the patrol employed 396 civilian and uniformed personnel — and they were responsible for both traffic and criminal investigation.

Top Patrol Priority

In Kruger's view, authorization of more troopers is a top patrol priority. Besides eliminating the need for much of the overtime in the patrol, he said, more troopers would bring about better law enforcement in Nebraska.

"I question how well we are understood by most people in state government," Stokes said. "I don't think they grasp what the individual patrolman faces in his day-to-day work. They see three patrol cars in front of a cafe and say that patrolmen drink coffee all day. This is what they react to."

"We have pretty well met the responsibility the people of Nebraska have given us," he said. "But this has been by sacrifice, by people other than money-conscious glory seekers. Give them just a little and who knows what they could do."

Meeting Is Set On Alcoholism

A family group meeting conducted by the Lincoln Action Program alcoholism counselors will be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Venture House, 49th and St. Paul.

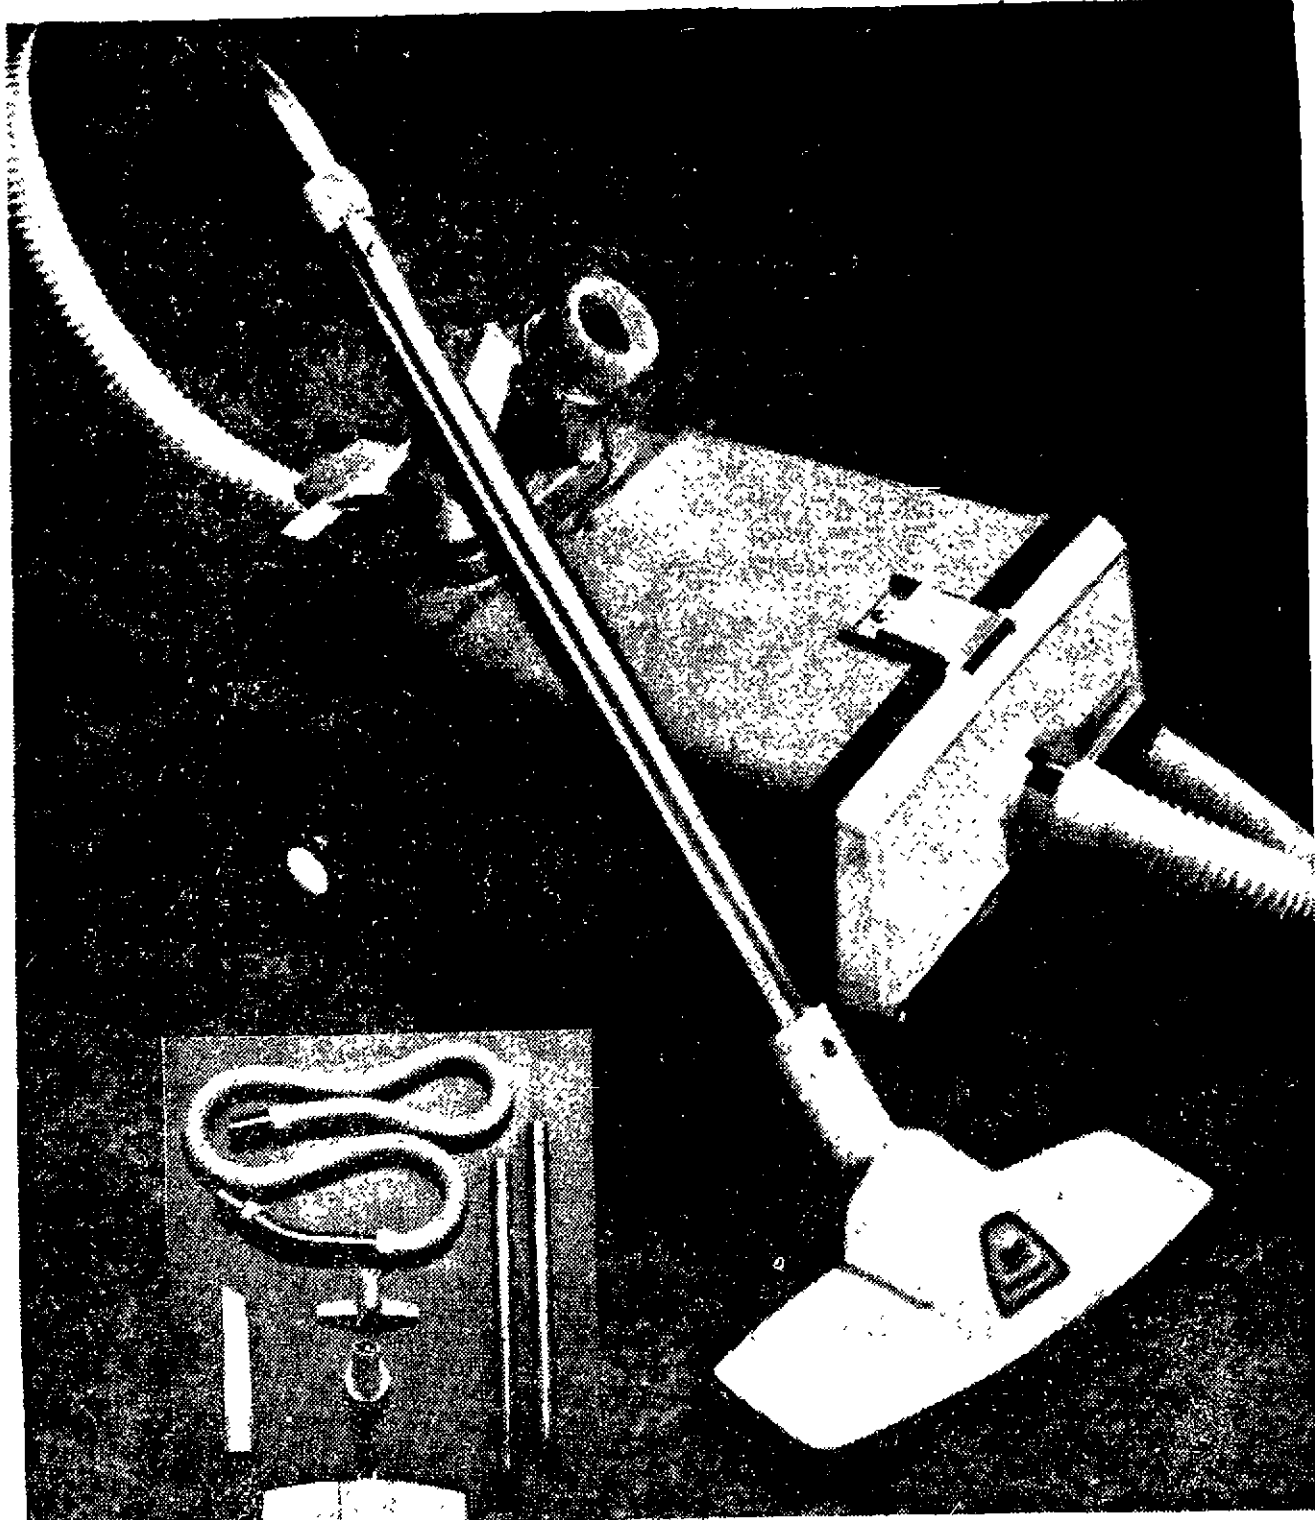

The group will meet regularly and learn about the problems of alcoholism. Films, literature and professional speakers will be a part of the group meetings open to anyone interested in alcoholism.

New York Times News Summary

U.S. 'Presence' In Vietnam To Be Maintained

Washington — President Nixon announced Thursday a further reduction of 70,000 American troops in South Vietnam — to 69,000 soldiers by May 1 — and said he would announce a further reduction before May 1. Defense Secretary Laird said later there would be an American "presence" in Vietnam until American prisoners are returned and that air power would not be cut back. (More on Page 2.)

U.S. To Aid Israeli Weaponers

Washington — Defense and State Department officials disclosed that the United States had agreed in November to provide technical and manufacturing aid to Israel's defense industry as a first step in an over-all plan to move Israel toward greater self-sufficiency in the production of major weapons.

Sadat Criticizes Jet Decision

Cairo — In a report to the Egyptian people after his "year of decision," President Anwar El-Sadat criticized the United States for reportedly deciding to sell more jets to Israel and warned that American support of Israel war jeopardized American oil interests in the Arab world.

Steps For Britain Suggested

London — Britain, to help avoid a world environmental crisis, must soon stop building roads, tax the use of power and raw materials and begin reducing her population, 33 leading British scientists warned. They called for a "stable society" with a steady declining population, decentralized living and limited use of resources.

Back Pay Obstacle Cleared

Washington — The Pay Board, in separate rulings, said that wage increases of up to 7% frozen by the wage-price freeze can be collected retroactively and limited more than 100,000 aerospace workers to a pay increase of no more than 8.3% in the first year of their new contract. (More on Page 1.)

Rise In Business Outlay Seen

Washington — A prediction of a 9.1% increase over last year in business investment in new plants and equipment was made by the Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Such an increase compares to the 2% rise over 1970 recorded last year. The prediction was based on surveys and is in line with several private predictions.

Wallace Runs As Democrat

Warrant Names Kaufman

New York — A federal warrant issued in California named a fugitive Army private who holds a Ph.D. in psychology as the man who placed time bombs in nine banks in New York, Chicago and San Francisco last year.

He was identified as Ronald Kaufman, 33, who enlisted last year under the name James Edward Jensen.

Groppi Conviction Overturned

Washington — In a 7 to 0 vote, the Supreme Court overturned a 1969 contempt conviction of the Rev. James E. Groppi by the Wisconsin Assembly. (More on Page 2.)

Nixon Gives In To Timber Men

Washington — A White House official said the Nixon administration was abandoning its plan to restrict "clear cutting" in federal forests. The decision was considered a victory for the timber industry, which objected vigorously when it learned that a restriction was in the works.

Wallace Enters Primary In Florida As Democrat

By United Press International
Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who ran for president as an independent in 1968, announced Thursday he would campaign as a Democrat this year to return power to the people now held by "intellectual snobs" in the party's national leadership.

Wallace announced his intentions at a news conference in Tallahassee, Fla., where he is one of a dozen Democrats entered in the March 14 presidential primary. He said he was thinking about entering other primaries in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Tennessee, North Carolina and "some more."

The governor, who captured five Southern states on the American Independent Party ticket in 1968, said he hoped to make a good enough showing in the primaries to pressure other candidates to agree on a party platform "more palatable" to conservative Democrats like himself.

Wallace ducked questions whether he might resurrect a third-party movement later in the campaign if the Democratic nominee doesn't suit him.

Taking digs at the Supreme Court ("a great mediocre would improve it") and his Democratic opponents ("they're telling it like it ain't"), Wallace declared, "I represent the people the establishment wants to get rid of."

In other political developments:

—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said in Madison, Wis., that Wallace's entry would have little effect on the outcome of primary races but could hurt the Democrats in November.

—Jackson dismissed Mayor

John V. Lindsay of New York as "the man who seconded Spiro Agnew for vice president at the Republican convention" in 1968.

—Rep. Patsy Mink, Hawaii, became the 11th Democratic candidate for the nomination by announcing in Corvallis, Ore., that she would enter the May 23 Oregon primary with agreement from the other woman candidate, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., not to campaign in that state.

—Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, said in Detroit he was leaning toward a formal endorsement of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic nomination.

—In Charleston, Ill., John M. Gerhardt, a 77-year-old retired house painter and self-described "bull-headed Dutch," announced he, too, would seek the Democratic nomination. He said the country was headed for "a terrible depression" and charged that President Nixon's economic controls were "plenty rotten."

STANDING ON BOX . . . diminutive Wallace.

Groppi's Conviction Upset

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court has upset the conviction of the Rev. James Groppi for contempt of the Wisconsin Assembly.

In a 7 to 0 ruling Thursday the court said the militant priest was unconstitutionally denied a chance to present a defense.

Groppi and some 1,000 demonstrators tied up the assembly for a half-day Sept. 29, 1969. They were protesting cuts in welfare programs.

Two days later, while Groppi was in jail on disorderly conduct charges, the assembly judged him to be in contempt. He served 10 days in jail before federal court ordered him released.

Groppi was the first person punished by the Wisconsin Assembly under a 121-year-old law.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the Assembly should have given the Roman Catholic priest an opportunity to defend or explain his conduct.

"We have stated time and again that reasonable notice of a charge and an opportunity to be heard in defense before punishment is imposed are basic in our system of jurisprudence," Burger wrote.

The chief justice hinted the conviction might have been valid if the assembly had moved against Groppi the day of the demonstration instead of two days later.

"Where a court acts immediately to punish for contemptuous conduct committed under its eye, the contemnor is present of course," Burger said.

"There is then no question of identity, nor is hearing in a formal sense necessary because the judge has personally seen the offense and is acting on the basis of his own observations."

Groppi, from Milwaukee, has participated in numerous demonstrations for the poor and for civil rights. He gained national attention in 1967 with 200 consecutive nights of open housing marches in Milwaukee.

Tornado Kills 4 In Alabama

By United Press International
A tornado bulldozed through two trailer camps near Ft. Rucker, Ala., Thursday, killing four persons and injuring 80. Residents of the upper Midwest battled foot-deep snows and waist-high drifts.

Stormy weather spread southward throughout the Midwest, surprising Chicagoans with the first major snowfall of the year, and a cold wave seeped through the midlands toward Dixie.

The mercury hit 27 below zero at Cut Bank, Mont. Temperatures of 40 below were forecast for northern Minnesota by Friday. Cold wave warnings were up as far south as northern Louisiana and Mississippi.

The tornado roared out of the early-morning darkness into trailer camps populated by young soldiers and their families. At least 50 trailer homes were destroyed and 50 others damaged. The whipsaw winds snapped trees 18 inches in diameter and left the parks further crippled by downed power lines.

70,000 More GIs To Leave Vietnam

Washington (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday that 70,000 more American troops will be brought home from Vietnam before May, reducing the U.S. military force there to the smallest in nearly seven years.

The new withdrawal order, stepping up the pace slightly, will bring the American commitment in Vietnam down to 69,000 men on May 1—a drop of 474,000 from the peak shortly after Nixon took office in early 1969.

Following Nixon's brief announcement, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird fired what sounded like the opening volley of the President's re-election campaign with a sharp shot at Democratic White House hopefuls.

"Strangely enough, some of those individuals that are going around the country today criticizing the program to withdraw Americans from Vietnam were silent in 1968 and before when we were on the escalator going up, up, and up," Laird said.

"Now when we are going down, down, down, it seems they have changed this position and are critical of the President and the program . . . to withdraw Americans from Southeast Asia and South Vietnam."

Laird named no names, but it was obvious he was referring to Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, currently rated the Democratic front-runner, and other Democratic contenders who have urged that Nixon set a specific withdrawal date and pull out all Americans.

Laird told White House reporters that: "We will always have a remaining presence in Vietnam until the POW problem has been resolved."

U.S. Advises Hanoi To Reciprocate

Paris (AP) — The United States in effect has advised Hanoi that the residual U.S. troops in Vietnam will be withdrawn only if there is a reciprocal withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South.

Hanoi said at the Paris peace talks Thursday that the United States is adding new conditions. But the U.S. delegation denied there's any change in the previous American position insisting on two points—the release of U.S. prisoners of war and the ability of the South Vietnamese government to stand on its own.

Nguyen Minh Vy, deputy negotiator for North Vietnam, said the United States has "advanced unreasonable conditions" in the talks and "lately added new ones for the total withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, such as 'mutual withdrawal,' reduction of the 'level of enemy activity,' release of American prisoners of war, progress in implementation of the Vietnamization program, and 'capacity for self-defense' of the Nguyen Van Thieu puppet administration."

U.S. negotiator William J. Porter let Saigon's delegate, Pham Dang Lam, make the announcement at the talks, and then approved Lam's statement.

Red Troops Strike Hard

Saigon (AP) — Enemy ground forces struck hard at South Vietnamese outposts Thursday in the third day of intensified fighting.

In other developments, U.S. planes exchanged missiles with anti-aircraft positions inside North Vietnam, a new allied sweep was launched in southern Cambodia, and enemy forces claimed they had captured Long Cheng, an army base in northern Laos. Laotian sources denied Long Cheng had fallen.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 33 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in the latest series of attacks.

Red Troops Strike Hard

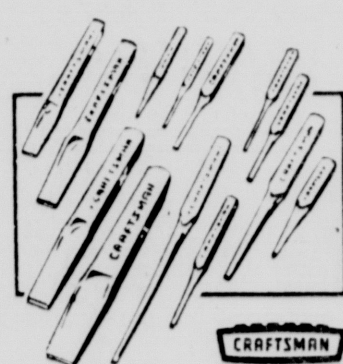

In the air war, two fighter-bombers flying escort for B-52 bombers on raids against North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos fired three air-to-ground missiles Wednesday at a Soviet-built surface-to-air missile battery about 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command reported five Americans were killed in action and 47 wounded last week.

The South Vietnamese command said 221 government troops were killed and 497 wounded last week. The allied commands reported 803 enemy killed.

U.S. 'Presence' In Vietnam To Be Maintained

Washington — President Nixon announced Thursday a further reduction of 70,000 American troops in South Vietnam — to 69,000 soldiers by May 1 — and said he would announce a further reduction before May 1. Defense Secretary Laird said later there would be an American "presence" in Vietnam until American prisoners are returned and that air power would not be cut back. (More on Page 2.)

U.S. To Aid Israeli Weaponers

Washington — Defense and State Department officials disclosed that the United States had agreed in November to provide technical and manufacturing aid to Israel's defense industry as a first step in an over-all plan to move Israel toward greater self-sufficiency in the production of major weapons.

Sadat Criticizes Jet Decision

Cairo — In a report to the Egyptian people after his "year of decision," President Anwar El-Sadat criticized the United States for reportedly deciding to sell more jets to Israel and warned that American support of Israel war jeopardized American oil interests in the Arab world.

Steps For Britain Suggested

London — Britain, to help avoid a world environmental crisis, must soon stop building roads, tax the use of power and raw materials and begin reducing her population. 33 leading British scientists warned. They called for a "stable society" with a steady to declining population, decentralized living and limited use of resources.

Back Pay Obstacle Cleared

Washington — The Pay Board, in separate rulings, said that wage increases of up to 7% frozen by the wage-price freeze can be collected retroactively and limited more than 100,000 aerospace workers to a pay increase of no more than 8.3% in the first year of their new contract. (More on Page 1.)

Rise In Business Outlay Seen

Washington — A prediction of a 9.1% increase over last year in business investment in new plants and equipment was made by the Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission. Such an increase compares to the 2% rise over 1970 recorded last year. The prediction was based on surveys and is in line with several private predictions.

Nixon Gives In To Timber Men

Washington — A White House official said the Nixon administration was abandoning its plan to restrict "clear cutting" in federal forests. The decision was considered a victory for the timber industry, which objected vigorously when it learned that a restriction was in the works.

Wallace Enters Primary In Florida As Democrat

By United Press International
Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who ran for president as an independent in 1968, announced Thursday he would campaign as a Democrat this year to return power to the people now held by "intellectual snobs" in the party's national leadership.

Wallace announced his intentions at a news conference in Tallahassee, Fla., where he is one of a dozen Democrats entered in the March 14 presidential primary. He said he was thinking about entering other primaries in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Tennessee, North Carolina and "some more."

The governor, who captured five Southern states on the American Independent Party ticket in 1968, said he hoped to make a good enough showing in the primaries to pressure other candidates to agree on a party platform "more palatable" to conservative Democrats like himself.

Wallace ducked questions whether he might resurrect a third-party movement later in

John V. Lindsay of New York as "the man who seconded Spiro Agnew for vice president at the Republican convention" in 1968.

—Rep. Patsy Mink, Hawaii, became the 11th Democratic candidate for the nomination by announcing in Corvallis, Ore., that she would enter the May 23 Oregon primary with agreement from the other woman candidate, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., not to campaign in that state.

—Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, said in Detroit he was leaning toward a formal endorsement of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic nomination.

—In Charleston, Ill., John M. Gerhardt, a 77-year-old retired house painter and self-described "bull-headed Dutch," announced he, too, would seek the Democratic nomination. He said the country was headed for "a terrible depression" and charged that President Nixon's economic controls were "plenty rotten."

the campaign if the Democratic nominee doesn't suit him.

Taking digs at the Supreme Court ("a great mediocre would improve it") and his Democratic opponents ("they're telling it like it ain't"), Wallace declared, "I represent the people the establishment wants to get rid of."

In other political developments:

—Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said in Madison, Wis., that Wallace's entry would have little effect on the outcome of primary races but could hurt the Democrats in November.

—Jackson dismissed Mayor

Groppi's Conviction Upset

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court has upset the conviction of the Rev. James Groppi for contempt of the Wisconsin Assembly.

In a 7 to 0 ruling Thursday the court said the militant priest was unconstitutionally denied a chance to present a defense.

Groppi and some 1,000 demonstrators tied up the assembly for a half-day Sept. 29, 1969. They were protesting cuts in welfare programs.

Two days later, while Groppi was in jail on disorderly conduct charges, the assembly judged him to be in contempt. He served 10 days in jail before federal court ordered him released.

Groppi was the first person punished by the Wisconsin Assembly under a 121-year-old law.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said the Assembly should have given the Roman Catholic priest an opportunity to defend or explain his conduct.

"We have stated time and again that reasonable notice of a charge and an opportunity to be heard in defense before punishment is imposed are basic in our system of jurisprudence," Burger wrote.

The chief justice hinted the conviction might have been valid if the assembly had moved against Groppi the day of the demonstration instead of two days later.

"Where a court acts immediately to punish for contemptuous conduct committed under its eye, the contemnor is present of course," Burger said.

"There is then no question of identity, nor is bearing in a formal sense necessary because the judge has personally seen the offense and is acting on the basis of his own observations."

Groppi, from Milwaukee, has participated in numerous demonstrations for the poor and for civil rights. He gained national attention in 1967 with 200 consecutive nights of open housing marches in Milwaukee.

70,000 More GIs To Leave Vietnam

Washington (AP) — President Nixon announced Thursday that 70,000 more American troops will be brought home from Vietnam before May, reducing the U.S. military force there to the smallest in nearly seven years.

The new withdrawal order, stepping up the pace slightly, will bring the American commitment in Vietnam down to 69,000 men on May 1—a drop of 474,000 from the peak shortly after Nixon took office in early 1969.

Following Nixon's brief announcement, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird fired what sounded like the opening volley of the President's re-election campaign with a sharp shot at Democratic White House hopefuls.

"Strangely enough, some of those individuals that are going around the country today criticizing the program to withdraw Americans from Vietnam were silent in 1968 and before when we were on the escalator going up, up, and up," Laird said.

"Now when we are going down, down, down, it seems they have changed this position and are critical of the President and the program . . . to withdraw Americans from Southeast Asia and South Vietnam."

Laird named no names, but it was obvious he was referring to Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, currently rated the Democratic front-runner, and other Democratic contenders who have urged that Nixon set a specific withdrawal date and pull out all Americans.

Laird told White House reporters that: "We will always have a remaining presence in Vietnam until the POW problem has been resolved."

U.S. Advises Hanoi To Reciprocate

Paris (AP) — The United States in effect has advised Hanoi that the residual U.S. troops in Vietnam will be withdrawn only if there is a reciprocal withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from the South.

Hanoi said at the Paris peace talks Thursday that the United States is adding new conditions. But the U.S. delegation denied there's any change in the previous American position insiting on two points—the release of U.S. prisoners of war and the ability of the South Vietnamese government to stand on its own.

Nguyen Minh Vy, deputy negotiator for North Vietnam, said the United States has "advanced unreasonable conditions" in the talks and "lately added new ones for the total withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam, such as 'mutual withdrawal,' reduction of the level of enemy activity, release of American prisoners of war, progress in implementation of the Vietnamization program, and 'capacity for self-defense' of the Nguyen Van Thieu puppet administration."

U.S. negotiator William J. Porter let Saigon's delegate, Pham Dang Lam, make the announcement at the talks, and then approved Lam's statement.

Red Troops Strike Hard

Saigon (AP) — Enemy ground forces struck hard at South Vietnamese outposts Thursday in the third day of intensified fighting.

In other developments, U.S. planes exchanged missiles with anti-aircraft positions inside North Vietnam, a new allied sweep was launched in southern Cambodia, and enemy forces claimed they had captured Long Cheng, an army base in northern Laos. Laotian sources denied Long Cheng had fallen.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 33 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in the latest series of attacks.

In the air war, two fighter-bombers flying escort for B52 bombers on raids against North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos fired three air-to-ground missiles Wednesday at a Soviet-built surface-to-air missile battery about 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command reported five Americans were killed in action and 47 wounded last week.

The South Vietnamese command said 221 government troops were killed and 497 wounded last week. The allied commands reported 803 enemy killed.

Solons Reject Move To End Secrecy

A proposal which would have allowed reporters to disclose all conversation occurring in executive session meetings of the Legislature fell three votes short Thursday of passing.

The rules change, sponsored by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter, required a three-fifths majority for passage but could rally only 27 votes in favor with 16 opposing.

Current Legislative rules only allow the news media to report vote totals on various measures, but the rules prohibit reporting how an individual votes or the discussion which occurs. Unless a participating senator gives a reporter permission to use his comments, newsmen can only listen.

Carpenter said his proposal was intended "to restore public confidence in government and credibility."

"We should be accountable for all that we say and do."

"What do we do that the public cannot hear about anyway?"

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers echoed Carpenter's sentiments: "Open meetings are needed to restore the public's confidence in government. I'll do everything in my power to inform the public. Any executive session which I'm in will be revealed to the media."

"If the Pentagon Papers can't be kept secret, there's little that we do which can be kept secret."

Many lawmakers during the one hour debate feared such a rule change would cut down on communication and foster clandestine meetings in coffee shops and restaurants.

Sidney Sen. Robert Clark said the measure would further tie the Legislature's hands and "would drive the discussion underground."

Lincoln Sen. Harold Simpson agreed saying, "If this passes, we're going to see the committees devise ingenious ways of getting around reporters' presence."

Sens. John DeCamp of Neligh and Orval Keyes of Springfield felt the executive session was a device for frank communication between witnesses and senators.

Delegate Selection Bill Advances

By The Associated Press
Tentative approval was given by the Legislature Thursday to an omnibus election bill which would alter the method of choosing Nebraska's representatives to national political conventions, granting increased power to the two major parties.

The lengthy bill generally updates the state's election laws, coordinating election dates and bringing the statutes into line with other state laws.

However, much of the floor debate centered around the controversial proposal to alter the method of selecting Nebraska delegates and alternate delegates to the two national conventions.

Currently, all delegates and alternates are chosen by voters on the primary ballot, but legislators voted 32-2 to accept an amendment which would allow the two parties to choose all alternate delegates at state party conventions.

delegates running from one of the state's three congressional districts.

Delegate apportionment would be determined by a district's vote in the most recent presidential election.

The amendment was offered by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, who termed it a "compromise which we think will satisfy those involved."

Warner said his proposal has the backing of both major political parties.

Waldron Opposes
The chief opponent of the Warner proposal Thursday was Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway, who contended the measure would begin to erode the Democratic process.

"When the party leaders say that they want this to help shorten the ballot, what they're saying is that the voters aren't intelligent enough to choose their delegates and alternates," Waldron said.

"I think the people like it the way it is," he suggested.

In response, Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter said, "democracy is only a figure of speech. For all practical purposes, national conventions have to be controlled. The common man has never been represented there."

Bill Seeks Uniform Liquor Pricing

By United Press International
Uniform pricing of alcoholic beverages would become mandatory in Nebraska under a bill introduced in the Legislature Thursday.

LB1289, sponsored by Sen. J. J. Waldron of Callaway, would require that minimum sale prices for liquor sold by licensed distributors and retailers in the state be determined and regulated by law.

The measure also says it would be unlawful for distributors to buy liquor from manufacturers unless the manufacturer agreed to sell to all distributors in the state at the same wholesale price furnished on price lists.

Distributors who dealt with manufacturers who did not agree to sell at uniform prices would have their liquor license revoked, the measure says.

The measure provides that the uniform price for manufacturers "should be no higher than the lowest price for which such liquor is sold to distributors anywhere in the continental United States."

Violations of the retail provisions in the bill by distributors would make licensees guilty of a misdemeanor, with a $1,000-$5,000 fine for each offense.

The measure stated its purpose was "in the public interest and in order to promote the orderly sale and distribution of alcoholic liquor, to foster temperance and to promote the public welfare in the state."

patrolmen agree. Yet they have looked for other jobs, quit the patrol, and in some cases, sold their homes and moved from the state.

"I'm afraid we're going to lose more," said Stokes, president of the State Troopers Association of Nebraska. "I've had several contact me in the last 60 days who are seriously considering leaving."

Ex-trooper Tom Roth, now employed by Gateway Realty in Lincoln, quit the patrol in April 1971. He said he would have stayed with the patrol if promotion had been faster and pay higher.

Unpaid Overtime
In a lawsuit, Roth charged that the state owes him $3,049 for 901 hours of unpaid overtime since 1966. State attorneys agreed that Roth had worked the overtime hours, but said he was not entitled to be paid because troopers never have been paid for overtime.

On Dec. 22, Lancaster District Judge Bartlett E. Boyles ruled that Roth was not entitled to overtime pay. In an interview later, Boyles said that while Roth may be ethically and morally entitled to the money, he was not legally entitled to it because, in the judge's opinion, Roth knew when he joined the patrol that overtime was not paid.

Between July 1 and November 30, 1971, out of a total payroll of $61,543,000, state employees were paid $669,000 for overtime, according to Assistant State Budget Administrator John H. Jacobson. Some state employees were given compensatory time off instead of overtime dollars.

State patrolmen, however, were given neither overtime pay nor an equal amount of time off. Testifying during Roth's lawsuit, Patrol Supt.

James E. Kruger said he could not recall overtime having been paid to patrolmen in his 31 years with the patrol.

50-Hour Week
Nebraska patrolmen work a 50-hour week with 10-hour days. According to state payroll officials, patrolmen are the only state employees regularly scheduled to work more than a 40-hour week.

The patrol, because of extensive overtime work, must request specific budget funds to pay for it. In 1967 the patrol requested $116,000 to pay for overtime accrued from April 1965 to June 1967. The patrol also asked for $158,000 for possible overtime in the next biennium.

Both requests were denied. All specific requests by the State Patrol for overtime funds have been disapproved by the Legislature or the governor.

Since many patrolmen have weeks of accumulated overtime, compensatory time off is impossible. But in individual emergencies, Stokes said, patrolmen can count on getting time off. Example: He was allowed to use 20 hours of accumulated overtime to drive to Texas to pick up his wife and children after they were involved in a traffic accident.

Wait For Promotion
The average wait for promotion in the patrol is five years, estimated Arthur Dobberstein, a university of Nebraska political science graduate who analyzed the patrol for a master's thesis. A trooper must wait a minimum of 5 years to be considered for corporal; a corporal must wait three years to be considered for sergeant.

The patrol's promotion policy, Dobberstein said, is to "work your way up through the ranks," which requires a trooper with a special skill to wait the same amount of time for promotion as the rest.

Unlike the Lincoln Police Department, which pays a bonus of 2 1/2% of base pay for college credit, the patrol offers no extra incentive to a patrolman with a college degree. Extra pay for college credit would raise the salaries of about a fourth of the 326 authorized patrolmen.

Stokes said he does not believe slow promotions are the troopers' major complaint. In a recent poll, he asked 126 patrolmen to list their individual priorities regarding the patrol. Of 75 who responded, 73 listed salary as their first priority, followed by a lower cost health insurance program, he said.

Beginning Salary
The beginning monthly salary of a state trooper ($580) is lower than the beginning salary of a Lincoln policeman ($617) and an Omaha policeman ($667). Under present pay rates, it would take a trooper 24 years to surpass the salary an Omaha policeman earns after four years. After 42 months, a Lincoln policeman makes $747 a month, compared to $695 for a trooper.

The average yearly starting salary of state patrolmen, in 44 states responding to a survey of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP), was $7,333 in 1969. Nebraska State Patrolmen start at $6,780 a year.

"Money was the biggest problem," said ex-patrolman John M. Skeen, now working for the Kodak Corp. near Windsor, Colo. He said he was a patrolman seven years, but started at Kodak for $200 a year more while working two hours a day less.

"Little Things"
He said he resigned because of "little things," such as paying $30 a month at the patrol for a Blue-Cross-Blue Shield policy which cost him $2 at Kodak.

Another "little thing" was unpaid overtime, he said. Kodak pays time and a half for more than 40 hours a week, double time for Sundays and triple time for holidays, Skeen said.

There are few public displays of discontentment among troopers still with the patrol.

"They're a pretty moderate group of people," Stokes said. "They sort of shy away from screaming or protesting." The union's constitution forbids strikes, slowdowns or other work stoppages by members.

"By the time a road trooper has put in 10 hours," Stokes said, "he's ready to quit — he's had it. But if he sees potential trouble — say a big wedding celebration in a small town — he'll stay and patrol the area. When he gets home, he complains to his wife."

Turnover Rate
Despite indications that some patrolmen are growing increasingly concerned about their future with the patrol, the turnover rate is about average compared with patrol turnover rates in neighboring states.

The patrol appears highly regarded by prospective applicants. In 1970, 262 men applied for preliminary tests to become patrolmen; in 1971 there were 322. There always have been more applicants than authorized jobs to fill: 23 were selected as troopers in 1970; 45 in 1971.

Getting by with an insufficient number of troopers has been a problem voiced by the patrol for the past 20 years, records show.

The budget request for fiscal 1972-73 stated that with the "staggering workload shouldered" by patrol crime investigators, the four officers requested would "somewhat offset the increase in criminal cases."

Not Enough Troopers
In an interview, Kruger said that because there are not enough troopers, all public roads in Nebraska can't be patrolled.

"We need more road coverage," Stokes said. "There's a good chance more troopers will help cut accidents. But you can't tell the Legislature to give us X troopers and we will guarantee X less accidents."

Using a formula recommended in 1969 by the IACP, the State Patrol found a need of 865 civilian and uniformed employees just to handle Nebraska traffic. At that time, the patrol employed 396 civilian and uniformed personnel — and they were responsible for both traffic and criminal investigation.

Top Patrol Priority
In Kruger's view, authorization of more troopers is a top patrol priority. Besides eliminating the need for much of the overtime in the patrol, he said, more troopers would bring about better law enforcement in Nebraska.

"I question how well we are understood by most people in state government," Stokes said. "I don't think they grasp what the individual patrolman faces in his day-to-day work. They see three patrol cars in front of a cafe and say that patrolmen drink coffee all day. This is what they react to."

"We have pretty well met the responsibility the people of Nebraska have given us," he said. "But this has been by sacrifice, by people other than money-conscious glory seekers. Give them just a little and who knows what they could do."

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Private college spokesmen in Nebraska are campaigning on behalf of a bill that would establish tuition grants for students attending those institutions. Two things, it seems, are important in this matter.

One of them, obviously, is whether you want such grants at all and the other is to whom the grants should go. Our feeling is that a strong and favorable case can be made for such a program. Two roadblocks stand in the path of such a program, however.

One is the matter of availability of state funds. The key answer to this is that such grants, at least in the long-run, will not cost the state anything. This is because the grants would divert students from public universities and colleges into the private system.

The fact is that such grants would eventually save the state money. The grants would never be sufficient to totally offset the cost of private education. Thus, private education will still be picking up a large chunk of the cost of educating the grant recipient, a cost that would be borne entirely by the state if that student went to a public institution.

Thus, the grant program, one would think, would go sailing through with flying colors on the matter of money. But this will happen only if state senators have the foresight to see the matter as it truly is and the courage to make the initial investment required.

Initially, it will mean a tax outlay that is not now being made. It is not until the program has been under way for at least a year that the savings aspect of it will be realized. Even then, the savings, while there, will be hard to pinpoint and it takes a little courage to accept such economic reasoning.

Then, the program will face the philosophical question of public funds for private education as well as the constitutional legal question on the same subject. If the aid program flounders, this is likely to be the reef on which it is finally stranded.

Unless there is something involved of which we are not aware, the constitutional ban that prohibits public funds for the aid of elementary and secondary private education applies as well at the college level. Thus, the state could no more aid Nebraska Wesleyan University students than it could aid students of Pius X High School.

Aid to students as opposed to aid to the institution is an interesting legality that has not yet been settled but, at this point, it lends little confidence to the struggle for public funds to private education in any form. The Constitution, of course, could be changed but attempts at this in the past have been outstanding failures.

Philosophically, many people who oppose aid to private schools at the elementary and secondary levels would have no opposition at the college or university level but it is doubtful that the two can be separated. Such aid may make a lot of sense but it has a tremendous reservoir of opposition.

Concerning grant recipients if such grants were made, the bill would apparently base them on need. We would hope that this provision could be eliminated. The idea is not one of social welfare but of improved educational opportunity for all, efficiency in public spending and some degree of institutional equality.

All of that has nothing to do with the matter of need. If grants are made, they should be made to any and all students who want to avail themselves of private higher education. Perhaps grants based on need would be better than no grants at all but it would represent a serious injustice for many people.

The whole thing boils down to a matter of common sense but, unfortunately, it is not likely to be settled on this basis. By the time the issue is settled, it will never be recognized as the simple and constructive suggestion that it is.

Rather, it will probably look like some kind of monster, risen from the dead to haunt the good and God-fearing living. We are for it but we have no illusions that this puts us in with any majority.

Prose Perhaps Less Purple
In Telling State Of Union

WASHINGTON—The State of the Union Message as it has evolved tells us a little about the state of the Union and a lot about the state of the president. And it is in reality a report not so much to the Congress jointly assembled as to the American people looking in on television.

President Nixon's approach to his constitutional duty has been determinedly eclectic. In 1969 the newly inaugurated President chose to bypass the exercise, replying instead on his inaugural address to set the tone for his administration.

His first message came on Jan. 22, 1970, a 36-minute effort that was somewhat philosophical and content and treated in a general way questions concerning the "quality of American life." Some of the language makes interesting reading today, especially his plea for a balance in the federal budget "so that American families will have a better chance to balance their family budgets."

Nixon's second State of the Union address, Jan. 22, 1971, differed totally in content and approach. The address dealt only with matters on the domestic side of the nation's agenda. All foreign policy developments were shunted off to a separate printed report and submitted to Congress a month later.

Nixon's 1971 message also set forth a shopping list of "six great goals" that the President said would "reform the entire structure of American government so we can make it fully responsive to the needs and the wishes of the American people." These goals included revenue-sharing, welfare reform, executive reorganization, expanded health care, environmental protection and economic prosperity.

Most of these failed to get off the ground for one reason or another. The President later reversed his proposal to abolish the Agriculture Department. And his New Economic Policy last August calling for delays in the implementation of revenue-sharing and welfare reform helped doom those goals in 1971. So the nation still awaits the "New American Revolution" foreseen by the President in his 1971 address.

Accentuating the positive is the rule of State of the Union addresses. What John Kenneth Galbraith has said about official forecasting applies here: "Every administration, Republican or Democratic, must pretend to be fully in control. So what it says will happen must accord with what it wants to happen, which is always good."

The visions are grandiose. "Now we are ready for the lift of a driving dream," said Nixon in last year's address. "The people of this nation are eager to get on with the quest for new greatness."

But the 1972 effort may contain prose that is less purple and more pointed. As President Nixon noted — with disapproval — in his 1970 appearance, the State of the Union address tradition in an election year is "to lay the basis for the political issues which might be decisive in the fall." President Nixon, the statesman, will be grappling with President Nixon, the candidate for re-election. His listeners on Jan. 20 can reach their own conclusions on who won out.

'Well, Supposing I Say
'A High Government Official'—'

Muskie, Yorty Boosted

The headlong speed with which prominent national Democrats are moving from uncommitted positions to jump on the Muskie bandwagon has produced a rather curious endorsement of the Maine senator's candidacy.

Last month the National Youth Caucus was formed in Chicago and Duane Draper, 23, became its national coordinator. In a later interview Draper said he would remain uncommitted in the race for the Democratic nomination for president while helping to build the NYC into an influential bloc of millions of young voters. But Wednesday the Muskie campaign office announced that Draper will serve as youth coordinator in the Muskie Wisconsin primary campaign.

"The collapse of the favorite-son candidates," such as Tunney of California, Gilligan of Ohio and Shapp of Pennsylvania, has greatly reduced the chances of a wide-open Democratic convention, thus eliminating the organization's political role as an independent power broker there, Draper said. "As everybody falls into line behind Edmund Muskie, it becomes obvious people will be trying to beat somebody with nobody. So the best we can do is begin to build a strong alternative to Muskie who can actually beat Richard Nixon in November."

"The best we can do" is hardly a ringing endorsement and we imagine Muskie has heard more comforting words. But Draper's switch—if it wasn't staged—is one more indication that Muskie now enjoys an almost out-of-sight lead.

And while Muskie was adding to his strength the no-chance campaign of Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty was given one of the few small boosts it's likely to receive. Yorty, campaigning for the Democratic nomination in New Hampshire, appeals mainly to conservative Democrats. What better help could he get than by being read out of the Democratic party by the liberal-led Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee?

In a resolution addressed to New Hampshire voters, the committee urged Yorty to switch to the Republican Party and assailed his sources of campaign funds, alleged scandal in his city administration and his many absences from the city. This probably will make no difference to the New Hampshire voters who plan to support Yorty anyway. And although no one foresees a Yorty victory March 7, the Mayor has had an effective way of responding to his critics in the past. He has just kept on winning.

Withdrawal Goal Being Met

President Nixon Thursday made the seventh in his series of announcements of the news that the withdrawal rate will be stepped up slightly and with a reaffirmation by Defense Sec. Melvin Laird that the U.S. government has confidence in the Saigon regime's ability to carry on the war.

The newest U.S. troop withdrawal announcement comes at a time when the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are gearing up for another offensive to coincide with the Tet observance.

An increase in enemy activity has put most of Laos and the greater part of Cambodia under Communist control and the existing governments of both countries in jeopardy.

At the same time, the Nixon administration again emphasizes that U.S. air power will be used to protect withdrawing troops.

New York Ups Transit Cost In Futile Cycle;
Rome Tries No Fare; Atlanta, Lowered Fare

NEW YORK — In Rome, city officials have just completed an experiment during which, for nine days, fares were eliminated on the Eternal City's buses.

Nearer home, in Atlanta, the bus fare is being reduced from 40 cents to 15 cents, with an accompanying increase in the city sales tax.

In New York City, on the other hand, the subway and bus fare has just gone from 30 cents to 35 cents, without even the saving grace of an offering of three tokens for a dollar. Almost simultaneously, those who live in the surrounding suburbs have been confronted with the prospect of 20 per cent fare increases by the Long Island and New Haven Railroads.

Moreover, no one is even pretending that the subway fare increase put into effect in New York last week will solve the transit system's financial problems, or stave off another increase in, say, two years. Rather, the 35-cent fare appeared to mark one more round in an ancient and futile circle: raise the fares, watch the riders stay away, and fare-box income decline.

Thus, New York appears to be going in exactly the wrong direction. In Rome, for instance, the no-fare experiment resulted in 60 per cent more passengers than usual, and while observers differed as to whether that made any real difference in the city's vicious automobile traffic, it did hold out some hope. It is no doubt true that many of the additional bus passengers were youngsters and others attracted by the novelty of the thing, but unless every law of economics and human nature is suddenly null and void, free transportation is bound to attract more riders than transportation that costs good, hard cash.

Rome's officials hope that no-fare bus rides will lure Italian motorists out of their Fiats and into mass transportation; that, in turn, would not only relieve traffic in the inner city but presumably would be cleansing to the Roman air, beneficial to endangered relics, stimulative to tourism, and soothing to the nerves of residents and tourists alike.

The Atlanta approach may not be so bold but it appears more nearly pegged to a solid financial plan. Mayor Sam Massell apparently convinced Atlantans that the savings of 25 cents a ride — 50 cents a day,

$2.50 a week for regular bus passengers — was worth the estimated 75 cents a week that the new sales tax will cost each of them. Plainly it will be, even to non-bus-riders, if the new low fare lures enough people into leaving their cars at home to reduce traffic jams and air pollution.

This may be a substantial breakthrough in American public transit. Instead of the old cycle of higher fares, less service and consequently fewer riders — a cycle that has ruined mass transit in all but a few cities — Atlanta is striving to attract more passengers with lower fares, in sharp contrast to New York City.

According to transit authority figures, in 1947 there were 2.62 billion passenger fares paid on the New York subway lines and the bus lines subsequently acquired. At the end of 1970, that figure had fallen to 1.737 billion, a loss of nearly one billion revenue-paying passengers in just over 20 years. So much for fare increases and the declining services that have accompanied them.

It may well be argued that increasing use of the

MILAN WALL

Although it will be a while yet before the (political) race season really gets under way, the opening of the 1972 legislative session has brought the politicians out of the starting gates with dazzling speed.

And for those particularly interested in the area of education, it looks like it will be an interesting legislative session from start to finish.

In the first couple of weeks, we've seen bills to coordinate higher education, to increase state aid to education in a number of ways, to attempt to solve the constitutional problems surrounding federal grant monies, to end student fees at the university, to grant funds to needy students to attend private colleges.

The list goes on and on. One bill which indirectly relates to education rather caught my fancy — that was John DeCamp's proposal to license hitchhikers. I'd call it an education bill because it would legalize college students' cheapest mode of transportation, and because hitchhiking (if you've never tried it) is an educational experience itself.

Another which shouldn't miss a review of some of the education-related measures finding their way into the hopper is William Swanson's bill to prevent ticket "scalping" at public entertainment events.

Though I haven't read the bill, news reports say it would "require that no ticket could be sold for more than the price printed on its face."

Biggest target of the bill would apparently be University of Nebraska football games, tickets for which have drawn some record prices of late.

Before you gridiron fans rush to endorse that one, however, you'd better find out if the university plans to erase the price from the tickets handed to team members.

In my college days, some of the biggest prices for tickets went to the guys who wore the team jerseys on Saturdays.

Ticket Sales Challenged

That was one of the ways they paid their collegiate bills, and I'm told the practice continues today.

If the fans are really interested in ticket-scalping, let them push the NU athletic department to permit each season ticket holder only two tickets . . . and then let him do what he wants with those seats. That might be the better way to open up more seats to more fans at regular prices.

A couple of senators can't decide how much or how many of the student fees the university collects should remain in force.

Latest effort, from the pen of Gerald Stromer, would apparently knock student fees out the window altogether. Poof — no more fees.

Problem is, it might also mean, poof, no more student union, health center or whatever else when the bonds go into default. It might also mean a boost for Sam Klaver's bill to permit sale of alcoholic beverages on the campus (breweries have built some nice student union buildings elsewhere for the privilege of installing a tap next to the coffee machine).

First time he mentioned it, Stromer was talking about a bill to end fee support for speakers only. And Terry Carpenter has managed to resurrect from the amendment process his bill to end fee support for the student newspapers at the University.

Whether all these efforts live or die, however, they do point up a hot issue on the university campuses.

Lincoln, Neb.

I have received many fine compliments on the article which Farm Editor Dominick Costello did on the Department of Agriculture on Monday morning, Jan. 3. Those most familiar with the department thought it was an excellent job of portraying the activities in our different divisions and explaining some of the purposes and goals that we have adopted for our part of state government. The response we have received here in our office comes from many faraway places.

Unfair Taxes

Wilber, Neb.

Many people don't seem to understand what causes the high cost of personal property and real estate taxes.

For instance, here in Saline County, the people should consider the Wilber school. They built a new one and it seemed as if everyone wanted it and that it was a good idea. When they were considering it, most didn't know what it would cost and those who did didn't stop to think what it would cost to maintain or other problems it would create. Now they are yelling about high taxes without stopping to think what caused it. When something like this is voted in by the people, the local government has no control, yet they will get the blame.

Like everyone else, we would like to see tax reform. Here is one very simple possible reform, when it comes to repainting or re-roofing an old home or building badly in need of such repair. We don't mean new buildings or additions to building, but just simple minor repairs. It seems unfair to have the taxes on a building or home increased because of such repairs, especially for the little people, the poor people. It costs enough just to buy the paint and roofing material without being taxed to death for it.

Many an old home because of this will go unpainted and with a tumble-down roof. They say, "Help Keep America Beautiful," and then tax the poorer or lower income families for trying to improve the appearance of their homes.

Premier Sato was ostensibly satisfied in the talks in California that on May 15 Okinawa will again be a Japanese island. But he said Russia would have to leave the fishing-rich Kuriles, too. State Institutions

Wymore, Neb.

Looks as if Dr. Menalceino of Omaha won't have to worry much longer about our state institutions housing patients. I see by the paper that Dr. Osborne, the medical director of the state institutions, says that state hospitals may be phased out by the end of 1975. This may include the institution of which Dr. Menalceino is a part.

I wonder what will become of the beautiful new hospital and the infirmary that were built just a few years back. What Personally, I'd rather see the question of the constitutionality of student fee collections settled in the courts, and that's exactly where a case is now which might shed some light on the whole thing.

The students who brought the suit have raised an important question, it seems to me, on whether students should be forced to support financially a newspaper they might not freely subscribe to.

It's a complex question, and one which deserves rational debate in the halls of justice. I doubt it deserves the lesser dignity which might be accorded it in the hall of the Legislature, however.

It looks as if the Legislature might give the voters a chance to speak up on the question of distribution of federal monies for programs in private schools.

That one would apparently solve the kind of disputes we heard so much about last fall when Catholic educators complained that federal guidelines were being ignored, while state officials said Nebraska's constitution prohibited spending the federal funds for programs inside private schools.

The amendment would apparently permit such funds to pass through Nebraska's treasury and be spent in accordance with federal guidelines, even if those regulations appeared to contradict the state's constitution.

It's a question that might, and perhaps should, be settled in the courts, too. But the senators have usually been more than willing to toss those church-state related matters to the voters.

So, the senators are off and running in high gear. The most unfortunate thing will be that ridiculous 60-day limit on the session, a limit which could effectively compromise the body's willingness or ability to give enough time to the hardest questions.

will become of the recreation building and addition to the kitchen at the Beatrice State Home that are to be built. Will they be built then sit empty?

What will happen to the patients now in these institutions? Are the parents going to take them or will new regional centers, etc., be built all over the state? Will it be just in and around Omaha? I am sure it will cost a lot more per patient to do this. Some people think money is picked from trees and that it doesn't come from the taxpayers' pockets.

The best medical care center, recreation, church, schools and playgrounds are in our state institutions, so why close them? Perhaps parents and relatives of patients are not satisfied with the care they are receiving. If so, perhaps they should care for them in their homes or a private institution, rather than closing all our institutions.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Private college spokesmen in Nebraska are campaigning for a bill that would establish tuition grants for students attending those institutions. Two things, it seems, are important in this matter.

One of them, obviously, is whether you want such grants at all and the other is to whom the grants should go. Our feeling is that a strong and favorable case can be made for such a program. Two roadblocks stand in the path of such a program, however.

One is the matter of availability of state funds. The key answer to this is that such grants, at least in the long-run, will not cost the state anything. This is because the grants would divert students from public universities and colleges into the private system.

The fact is that such grants would eventually save the state money. The grants would never be sufficient to totally offset the cost of private education. Thus, private education will still be picking up a large chunk of the cost of educating the grant recipient, a cost that would be borne entirely by the state if that student went to a public institution.

Thus, the grant program, one would think, would go sailing through with flying colors on the matter of money. But this will happen only if state senators have the foresight to see the matter as it truly is and the courage to make the initial investment required.

Initially, it will mean a tax outlay that is not now being made. It is not until the program has been under way for at least a year that the savings aspect of it will be realized. Even then, the savings, while there, will be hard to pinpoint and it takes a little courage to accept such economic reasoning.

Then, the program will face the philosophical question of public funds for private education as well as the constitutional legal question on the same subject. If the aid program flounders, this is likely to be the reef on which it is finally stranded.

Unless there is something involved of which we are not aware, the constitutional ban that prohibits public funds for the aid of elementary and secondary private education applies as well at the college level. Thus, the state could no more aid Nebraska Wesleyan University students than it could aid students of Pius X High School.

Aid to students as opposed to aid to the institution is an interesting legality that has not yet been settled but, at this point, it lends little confidence to the struggle for public funds to private education in any form. The Constitution, of course, could be changed but attempts at this in the past have been outstanding failures.

Philosophically, many people who oppose aid to private schools at the elementary and secondary levels would have no opposition at the college or university level but it is doubtful that the two can be separated. Such aid may make a lot of sense but it has a tremendous reservoir of opposition.

Concerning grant recipients if such grants were made, the bill would apparently base them on need. We would hope that this provision could be eliminated. The idea is not one of social welfare but of improved educational opportunity for all, efficiency in public spending and some degree of institutional equality.

All of that has nothing to do with the matter of need. If grants are made, they should be made to any and all students who want to avail themselves of private higher education. Perhaps grants based on need would be better than no grants at all but it would represent a serious injustice for many people.

The whole thing boils down to a matter of common sense but, unfortunately, it is not likely to be settled on this basis. By the time the issue is settled, it will never be recognized as the simple and constructive suggestion that it is.

Rather, it will probably look like some kind of monster, risen from the dead to haunt the good and God-fearing living. We are for it but we have no illusions that this puts us in with any majority.

Prose Perhaps Less Purple
In Telling State Of Union

WASHINGTON—The State of the Union Message as it has evolved tells us a little about the state of the Union and a lot about the state of the president. And it is in reality a report not so much to the Congress jointly assembled as to the American people looking in on television.

President Nixon's approach to his constitutional duty has been determinedly eclectic. In 1969 the newly inaugurated President chose to bypass the exercise, replying instead on his inaugural address to set the tone for his administration.

His first message came on Jan. 22, 1970, a 36-minute effort that was somewhat philosophical and content and treated in a general way questions concerning the "quality of American life." Some of the language makes interesting reading today, especially his plea for a balance in the federal budget "so that American families will have a better chance to balance their family budgets."

Nixon's second State of the Union address, Jan. 22, 1971, differed totally in content and approach. The address dealt only with matters on the domestic side of the nation's agenda. All foreign policy developments were shunted off to a separate printed report and submitted to Congress a month later.

Nixon's 1971 message also set forth a shopping list of "six great goals" that the President said would "reform the entire structure of American government so we can make it fully responsive to the needs and the wishes of the American people." These goals included revenue-sharing, welfare reform, executive reorganization, expanded health care, environmental protection and economic prosperity.

Most of these failed to get off the ground for one reason or another. The President later reversed his proposal to abolish the Agriculture Department. And his New Economic Policy last August calling for delays in the implementation of revenue-sharing and welfare reform helped doom those goals in 1971. So the nation still awaits the "New American Revolution" foreseen by the President in his 1971 address.

Accentuating the postive is the rule of State of the Union addresses. What John Kenneth Galbraith has said about official forecasting applies here: "Every administration, Republican or Democratic, must pretend to be fully in control. So what it says will happen must accord with what it wants to happen, which is always good."

The visions are grandiose. "Now we are ready for the lift of a driving cream," said Nixon in last year's address. "The people of this nation are eager to get on with the quest for new greatness."

But the 1972 effort may contain prose that is less purple and more pointed. As President Nixon noted — with disapproval — in his 1970 appearance, the State of the Union address tradition in an election year is "to lay the basis for the political issues which might be decisive in the fall." President Nixon, the statesman, will be grappling with President Nixon, the candidate for re-election. His listeners on Jan. 20 can reach their own conclusions on who won out.

'Well, Supposing I Say
'A High Government Official'—'

Muskie, Yorty Boosted

The headlong speed with which prominent national Democrats are moving from uncommitted positions to jump on the Muskie bandwagon has produced a rather curious endorsement of the Maine senator's candidacy.

Last month the National Youth Caucus was formed in Chicago and Duane Draper, 23, became its national coordinator. In a later interview Draper said he would remain uncommitted in the race for the Democratic nomination for president while helping to build the NYC into an influential bloc of millions of young voters. But Wednesday the Muskie campaign office announced that Draper will serve as youth coordinator in the Muskie Wisconsin primary campaign.

"The collapse of the favorite-son candidates," such as Tunney of California, Gilligan of Ohio and Shapp of Pennsylvania, has greatly reduced the chances of a wide-open Democratic convention, thus eliminating the organization's political role as an independent power broker there, Draper said. "As everybody falls into line behind Edmund Muskie, it becomes obvious people will be trying to beat somebody with nobody. So the best we can do is begin to build a strong alternative to Muskie who can actually beat Richard Nixon in November."

"The best we can do" is hardly a ringing endorsement and we imagine Muskie has heard more comforting words. But Draper's switch—if it wasn't staged—is one more indication that Muskie now enjoys an almost out-of-sight lead.

And while Muskie was adding to his strength the no-chance campaign of Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty was given one of the few small boosts it's likely to receive.

Yorty, campaigning for the Democratic nomination in New Hampshire, appeals mainly to conservative Democrats. What better help could he get than by being read out of the Democratic party by the liberal-led Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee?

In a resolution addressed to New Hampshire voters, the committee urged Yorty to switch to the Republican Party and assailed his sources of campaign funds, alleged scandal in his city administration and his many absences from the city. This probably will make no difference to the New Hampshire voters who plan to support Yorty anyway. And although no one foresees a Yorty victory March 7, the Mayor has had an effective way of responding to his critics in the past. He has just kept on winning.

Withdrawal Goal Being Met

President Nixon Thursday made the seventh in his series of announcements of the news that the withdrawal rate will be stepped up slightly and with a reaffirmation by Defense Sec. Melvin Laird that the U.S. government has confidence in the Saigon regime's ability to carry on the war.

The newest U.S. troop withdrawal announcement comes at a time when the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are gearing up for another offensive to coincide with the Tet observance.

An increase in enemy activity has put most of Laos and the greater part of Cambodia under Communist control and the existing governments of both countries in jeopardy.

At the same time, the Nixon administration again emphasizes that U.S. air power will be used to protect withdrawing troops and to bolster the South Vietnamese Army and that the U.S. will not remove all forces from Vietnam until the prisoner of war issue is resolved.

And while the military situation deteriorates and the necessity of a residual force is argued, it is being speculated that Nixon will wait until closer to the election — possibly toward the end of the summer, for greater political advantage — to announce that he will guarantee a complete withdrawal deadline in return for release of the POWs.

We think the President might better serve the prisoners if he made such an offer now. The American people bought the withdrawal strategy, but they are not getting complete withdrawal. "Vietnamization" of the war looks shaky. The withdrawal announcement Thursday, while it indicates that the program is proceeding slightly ahead of schedule, does not indicate the grim situation existing in Southeast Asia today.

New York Ups Transit Cost In Futile Cycle;
Rome Tries No Fare; Atlanta, Lowered Fare

NEW YORK — In Rome, city officials have just completed an experiment during which, for nine days, fares were eliminated on the Eternal City's buses.

Nearer home, in Atlanta, the bus fare is being reduced from 40 cents to 15 cents, with an accompanying increase in the city sales tax.

In New York City, on the other hand, the subway and bus fare has just gone from 30 cents to 35 cents, without even the saving grace of an offering of three tokens for a dollar. Almost simultaneously, those who live in the surrounding suburbs have been confronted with the prospect of 20 per cent fare increases by the Long Island and New Haven Railroads.

Moreover, no one is even pretending that the subway fare increase put into effect in New York last week will solve the transit system's financial problems, or stave off another increase in, say, two years. Rather, the 35-cent fare appeared to mark one more round in an ancient and futile circle: raise the fares, watch the riders stay away, and fare-box income decline.

Thus, New York appears to be going in exactly the wrong direction. In Rome, for instance, the no-fare experiment resulted in 60 per cent more passengers than usual, and while observers differed as to whether that made any real difference in the city's vicious automobile traffic, it did hold out some hope. It is no doubt true that many of the additional bus passengers were youngsters and others attracted by the novelty of the thing, but unless every law of economics and human nature is suddenly null and void, free transportation is bound to attract more riders than transportation that costs good, hard cash.

Rome's officials hope that no-fare bus rides will lure Italian motorists out of their Fiat and into mass transportation; that, in turn, would not only relieve traffic in the inner city but presumably would be cleansing to the Roman air, beneficial to tourism, and soothing to the nerves of residents and tourists alike.

The Atlanta approach may not be so bold but it appears more nearly pegged to a solid financial plan. Mayor Sam Massell apparently convinced Atlantans that the savings of 25 cents a ride — 50 cents a day,

$2.50 a week for regular bus passengers — was worth the estimated 75 cents a week that the new sales tax will cost each of them. Plainly it will be, even to non-bus-riders, if the new low fare lures enough people into leaving their cars at home to reduce traffic jams and air pollution.

This may be a substantial breakthrough in American public transit. Instead of the old cycle of higher fares, less service and consequently fewer riders — a cycle that has ruined mass transit in all but a few cities — Atlanta is striving to attract more passengers with lower fares, in sharp contrast to New York City.

According to transit authority figures, in 1947 there were 2.62 billion passenger fares paid on the New York subway lines and the bus lines subsequently acquired. At the end of 1970, that figure had fallen to 1.737 billion, a loss of nearly one billion revenue-paying passengers in just over 20 years. So much for fare increases and the declining services that have accompanied them.

It may well be argued that increasing use of the

Although it will be a while yet before the (political) race season really gets under way, the opening of the 1972 legislative session has brought the politicians out of the starting gates with dazzling speed.

And for those particularly interested in the area of education, it looks like it will be an interesting legislative session from start to finish.

In the first couple of weeks, we've seen bills to coordinate higher education, to increase state aid to education in a number of ways, to attempt to solve the constitutional problems surrounding federal grant monies, to end student fees at the university, to grant funds to needy students to attend private colleges.

The list goes on and on.

One bill which indirectly relates to education rather caught my fancy — that was John DeCamp's proposal to license hitchhikers. I'd call it an education bill because it would legalize college students' cheapest mode of transportation, and because hitchhiking (if you've never tried it) is an educational experience itself.

Another which shouldn't miss a review of some of the education-related measures finding their way into the hopper is William Swanson's bill to prevent ticket "scalping" at public entertainment events.

Though I haven't read the bill, news reports say it would "require that no ticket could be sold for more than the price printed on its face."

Biggest target of the bill would apparently be University of Nebraska football games, tickets for which have drawn some record prices of late.

Before you gridiron fans rush to endorse that one, however, you'd better find out if the university plans to erase the price from the tickets handed to team members.

In my college days, some of the biggest prices for tickets went to the guys who wore the team jerseys on Saturdays.

Ticket Sales
Challenged

That was one of the ways they paid their collegiate bills, and I'm told the practice continues today.

If the fans are really interested in ticket-scalping, let them push the NU athletic department to permit each season ticket holder only two tickets . . . and then let him do what he wants with those seats. That might be the better way to open up more seats to more fans at regular prices.

A couple of senators can't decide how much or how many of the student fees the university collects should remain in force.

Latest effort, from the pen of Gerald Stromer, would apparently knock student fees out the window altogether. Poof — no more fees.

Problem is, it might also mean, poof, no more student union, health center or whatever else when the bonds go into default. It might also mean a boost for Sam Klaver's bill to permit sale of alcoholic beverages on the campus (breweries have built some nice student union buildings elsewhere for the privilege of installing a tap next to the coffee machine).

First time he mentioned it, Stromer was talking about a bill to end fee support for speakers only. And Terry Carpenter has managed to resurrect from the amendment process his bill to end fee support for the student newspapers at the University.

Whether all these efforts live or die, however, they do point up a hot issue on the university campuses.

OPPD Approves Adding $160,923 To Pact For Fort Calhoun N-Plant

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Power District directors Thursday approved adding $160,923 to a contract held by Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. at the Fort Calhoun nuclear plant.

The money is for installation of additional reinforcing steel ordered by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Jack Wilkins, an OPPD

assistant general manager, said the plant "will be essentially completed by July," after which OPPD engineers will begin checking equipment and systems.

Lynn Monroe, OPPD general manager, said fuel will be loaded in about 10 months. The plant is scheduled to be in commercial operation June 1, 1973.

Directors also approved a resolution directing Commonwealth Electric Co. of Lincoln to continue its work at the plant while the company and OPPD negotiate contract differences.

Commonwealth was awarded the $4,837,000 electrical contract. As of last Nov. 30, additions to the contract have raised the total to $5,432,000.

Parking Meter Removal Sought At North Platte

North Platte (AP) — In an advisory vote taken, North Platte businessmen voted 23-13 in favor of a downtown improvement plan which would include the systematic phasing out of all parking meters.

About 60 of approximately 160 businessmen involved — members of the Downtown Improvement Council and businessmen in the proposed area — attended the meeting.

Their advisory vote now goes to the City Council, which has directed the city attorney to prepare an ordinance covering the improvement plan.

Besides removing parking meters the plan would include development of off street parking, improvement of the general architecture, traffic control and street lighting.

Craft Elected By Pork Producers

Grand Island — Bob Craft, pork producer from Foster, was named the new state president for the Nebraska Pork Producer's Association at the group's annual meeting here. Craft succeeds Dick Sorensen of Wayne.

Elected vice president was Neal Pohlman of Stanton. Terry Schrick, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Mrs. Thelma Boe of Madison were reappointed secretary and public relations chairman, respectively.

According to Schrick, the association has outlined three major areas of concern for 1972. Increased emphasis will be placed on membership in the association and the expansion of markets through the "Nickles for Profit" program. The main promotional focus will be on restaurant use of pork. 'Social Services Can Be Operated With Low-Rent Housing Programs'

A Housing and Urban Development (HUD) official Thursday told the Lincoln Housing Authority that numerous social services can be operated in conjunction with housing programs.

Doris Newland of the Omaha HUD office said that such services as day care centers, adult education classes, training and employment and food and nutrition preparation classes could be made available to tenants of low-rent units.

The availability of these programs resulted in the authority's withdrawal of an earlier proposal which would have required public housing tenants to attend an adult basic training course on home maintenance and housekeeping.

The proposed resolution which came under fire from citizens at last month's session, would have required renters of the 120-unit Turnkey units to take a ten week "living skills" course at Lincoln Technical College.

Miss Newland pointed out that there are some proposed social services for which the Authority could be eligible for HUD and Health, Education and Welfare funds.

Carroll Thompson, serving at his first session as chairman of the Authority, said, in referring to the proposed services, "We have to start somewhere."

Review Decided
The authority decided to review the material presented by Miss Newland.

In other business, authority executive director Richard Burke reported on the progress of a city-wide housing resources study now being conducted jointly by the authority, the City-County Planning Commission and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

A report on the study should be forthcoming within three months, Burke said, and will be incorporated into the authority's long-range planning study.

Burke noted that he has received "some verbal assurances" from HUD that financial aid will be available for the study, which will investigate Lincoln's overall housing needs.

Burke also reported that the HUD Omaha regional office is conducting a review of the Lincoln Housing Authority — although, at HUD's request, the results of the study will not be made public.

Downtown Office
However, Burke said one possible recommendation will be the establishment of a central downtown Housing Authority office which will be easily accessible to the public.

Presently, the Authority operates its rent-lease program at an office at 18th and J Sts.

and has an Arnold Heights office, located at the former air base.

In other action, member Carol Yoakum, recently appointed to the post by Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf filed a report of any possible conflict of interest she may have. Mrs. Yoakum, a tenant of Lincoln Air Park West, will be disqualified from voting on matters concerning that area.

In other business Burke reported that 925 out of the 1,000 units in Arnold Heights are occupied, with 20 unavailable for renting due to needed basement repairs and 17 units left vacant for use as model show homes.

Exon Says Burbach Plan Would Give 620 In County Most Benefit

Under the Burbach property tax exemption plan, 47,200 Lancaster County taxpayers would receive nothing in the form of a property tax break while 620 would get close to $6,000 each.

These figures were supplied Thursday to The Star by the Exon administration as part of its ongoing property tax exemption battle with Crofton Sen. Jules Burbach.

The information notes that of the 55,500 taxpayers in Lancaster County, 6,800 paid property taxes (not real estate or auto).

$186 Average
Some 1,760 farm units out of the 6,800 in 1971 paid a total of $316,000 or an average of $186 each. The remaining 5,100 businesses paid an average $912 each totaling $4.7 million.

Under Sen. Burbach's plan, the Exon forces said the increased sales and income taxes would cost all 55,500 taxpayers an average increase of $100 yearly after it is completely implemented.

However, breaking down the $100-average, the administration said, the picture looks like this:

—47,200 Lancaster County taxpayers would get nothing.

—5,000 would each get $50 back.

—1,180 would each receive $481.

—620 would get back $5,953 apiece.

Exempt 90%

The Burbach plan would exempt 90% of farm and business equipment and inventory from property taxes after five years. The revenue lost by the counties would have to be made up by increasing the sales and income taxes.

Exon's version would limit the maximum exemption benefit to $1,000, thus forcing those businesses and farms which are financially larger to pay only slightly less.

The average Nebraskan, Exon claims, would receive the benefits under his plan which involves a 50% exemption over 6 or 7 years without a sales and income tax hike.

Both versions will come up before the current session of the Unicameral.

Vet Pensioners Urged To File Income Forms

Nebraska veteran pensioners are urged to file their annual income questionnaires before the January 15 deadline, set by the Veterans Administration.

The forms were mailed to the state's residents who receive VA pensions with their last November checks. The local VA office reports there are still a number of veterans, widows and dependent parents drawing pension, dependency and indemnity compensation who have not returned their questionnaire.

Those failing to provide the information for the agency could forfeit this year's benefits' and could also be required to refund last year's payments. Those needing help with the forms are urged to contact the nearest VA office or local veterans service organizations.

OPPD Approves Adding $160,923 To Pact For Fort Calhoun N-Plant

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Power District directors Thursday approved adding $160,923 to a contract held by Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. at the Fort Calhoun nuclear plant.

The money is for installation of additional reinforcing steel ordered by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Jack Wilkins, an OPPD

assistant general manager, said the plant "will be essentially completed by July," after which OPPD engineers will begin checking equipment and systems.

Lynn Monroe, OPPD general manager, said fuel will be loaded in about 10 months. The plant is scheduled to be in commercial operation June 1, 1973.

Directors also approved a resolution directing Commonwealth Electric Co. of Lincoln to continue its work at the plant while the company and OPPD negotiate contract differences.

Commonwealth was awarded the $4,837,000 electrical contract. As of last Nov. 30, additions to the contract have raised the total to $5,432,000.

The board also directed the Lincoln firm to proceed on a schedule compatible with other construction at the plant. Directors have voiced criticism for what they said has been Commonwealth's failure to keep pace with other contractors.

Commonwealth officials have said its work has fallen behind schedule because of delays in the design work and in work being done by other contractors.

The company now estimates its total cost of construction will be not less than $11,480,000 if it accelerates its work, as OPPD has suggested.

Craft Elected By Pork Producers

Grand Island — Bob Craft, pork producer from Foster, was named the new state president for the Nebraska Pork Producer's Association at the group's annual meeting here. Craft succeeds Dick Sorensen of Wayne.

Elected vice president was Neal Pohlman of Stanton. Terry Schrick, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Mrs. Thelma Boe of Madison were reappointed secretary and public relations chairman, respectively.

According to Schrick, the association has outlined three major areas of concern for 1972. Increased emphasis will be placed on membership in the association and the expansion of markets through the "Nickles for Profit" program. The main promotional focus will be on restaurant use of pork, Schrick said.

Parking Meter Removal Sought At North Platte

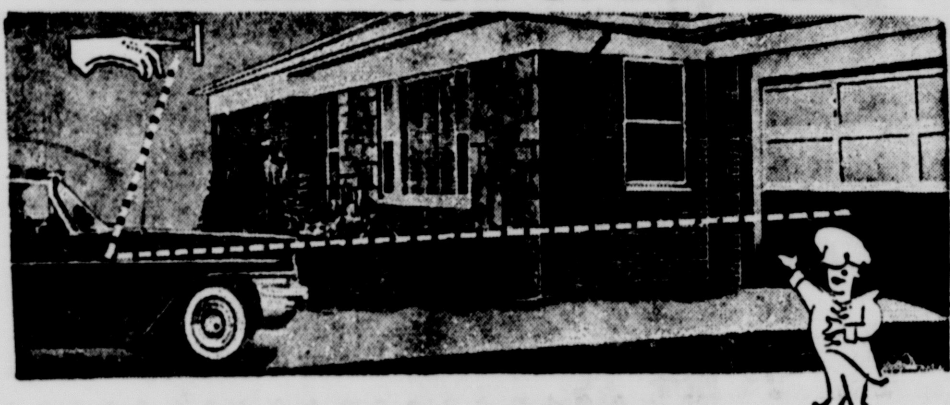

North Platte (AP) — In an advisory vote taken, North Platte businessmen voted 23-13 in favor of a downtown improvement plan which would include the systematic phasing out of all parking meters.

About 60 of approximately 260 businessmen involved — members of the Downtown Improvement Council and businessmen in the proposed area — attended the meeting.

Their advisory vote now goes to the City Council, which has directed the city attorney to prepare an ordinance covering the improvement plan.

Besides removing parking meters, the plan would include development of off-street parking, improvement of the general architecture, traffic control and street lighting.

Per-Pupil Spending In Nebraska Lowest Of 7 Plains States

Nebraska's per-pupil expenditure in the public schools was the lowest among the seven Plains states last year, according to the National Education Association's annual estimates of school statistics.

Bill To Seek New Class Of Licenses

Legislation which could allow homes such as Westview to be licensed in a classification between a nursing home and board and room facility will be introduced within the next few days.

According to Lancaster County Welfare Director J. Carle Trabert, if such legislation is passed, there would be a provision to license through the state Health Department facilities which are not classified as nursing homes, but provide some kind of care or supervision not allowed under the board and room licensing regulations.

The decision to draft such legislation was made Thursday following a meeting of Trabert and Dr. George Underwood, health director for Lincoln and Lancaster County, with State Health Director Dr. Henry Smith.

Attempts to license Westview by Lancaster County failed since it could not meet qualifications for a nursing home but was providing some care and supervision which also eliminated it from the board and room license category.

Trabert said that under provisions of the proposed legislation, Westview and similar operations would be supported by federal and state reimbursement for the patients and direct relief support which has financed Westview would be eliminated.

At the same time, the NEA report shows, local sources provided the largest share among all revenue sources in a comparison with the six other states.

The report outlining school statistics in the 50 states and the District of Columbia put Nebraska in a Plains state category with Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota and South Dakota.

It said the Cornhusker State's public schools spent $682 per pupil in 1971-72, compared with a Plains average of $822 and a national average of $867.

Lowest among the 48 contiguous states was Alabama, which spent $511, and highest was New York at $1,322.

The figures were based on "average daily membership" in public schools and total fiscal year expenditures.

$224.5 Million

The state's total expenditures hit $224.5 million, not including capital outlay interest and expenses for other than elementary and secondary day schools.

Total average daily membership was set at 329,210 pupils, down from 329,860 the previous year. The report also said the number of public high school graduates increased from 21,200 in 1970 to 21,500 last year.

A table of estimated receipts showed "local and other" sources in Nebraska accounted for 76.3% of the total revenue receipts statewide, compared with a Plains average of 59% and a national average of 52%.

Nebraska's 76% was highest among the Plains group.

State support was sixth among the seven states at 17.3%, topping South Dakota's 15.5%. Highest among the Plains states was Minnesota's 54.5%, compared with a Plains average of 35.6% and a national average of 52%.

Federal support to Nebraska public schools was listed as 6.4%, compared with a Plains average of 5.5% and a national average of 7.2%.

Most Districts
The NEA report showed Nebraska retained its top ranking in one category — number of school districts.

"Operating" school districts totaled 1,335 of the nation's 16,920.

Other of the NEA's statistics showed:

—Nebraska's average salary per instructional staff member was $8,746, compared with a Plains average of $9,468 and a national average of $10,146. The report showed the state's teachers and other instructional staff members experienced a 4.1% increase in average salary, compared with the 1970-71 figure of $8,400.

—The state saw a decline in the numbers of teachers, from 16,952 in 1969-70 to 16,885 last year, and a drop in total instructional staff members from 18,462 to 18,400.

—The state's school age population (5 to 17) dropped from 389,000 as of July 1, 1970 to 385,000 in 1971.

7 Colleges Added As Associate Members To NECTHE

The board of the Nebraska Educational Television Council for Higher Education (NETCHE) was told Thursday that seven out-of-state colleges were added to the list of associate members this year.

NETCHE's regular membership includes 16 public and private colleges and universities in the state.

Last year, said Executive Director Lee Rockwell, South Dakota State University at Brookings was the only associate member.

Others added this year, he said, include Briar Cliff College, Luther College and Westmar College in Iowa, Eastern Wyoming College, Jamestown College in North Dakota, Southern Colorado College and the New York State University College at Plattsburgh.

Lower Fee

Rockwell said the associate members pay a lower membership fee, but then are charged rental for instructional films used.

Regular members pay no fees for use of the video credit courses and supplemental lessons which are taped to member schools via the state ETV network.

In a report at the board's semi-annual meeting, Rockwell also said NECTHE had experienced a 35% increase during the last year in the number of lessons ordered from the corporation's own library, which has about 750 half-hours of taped instruction.

Other Colleges
He said those tapes are also being rented to 35 to 40 other colleges around the country.

In other matters, the board approved formation of a committee headed by Doane College President Philip Heckman to begin discussions on possible cooperation between NECTHE and the proposed State University of Nebraska (SUN).

The action came after a presentation on the SUN plan by University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner and G. Robert Ross, NU vice president and coordinator of the SUN project.

NU and other colleges in the state are studying the feasibility of establishment of a new and separate educational institution which would beam freshmen and sophomore college courses across the state via ETV.

Medical Association Head Hits Rules On Doctors' Pay

The president of the Nebraska State Medical Association Thursday said the medical profession needs "more directions and guidelines on how to carry out" rulings related to Phase II of the President's economic plan.

At a news conference, Dr. Roger Mason of McCook said the 2.5% limit on physicians' charges has left confused questions related to members of a profession who have not traditionally increased fees annually.

He said if he were to increase 2.5% the routine charge for an office call in his McCook practice, it would mean a hike from $5 to $5.13.

'Incentive'
"The 2.5% is an annual allowed increase and may not be accumulated over two or three years," he said. "This, then, is an incentive for the physician to increase his charges annually."

Mason also said that since "physicians receive only 19% of all funds spent for health care," the guidelines "cannot be expected to be a major factor in controlling total health care costs."

He also suggested that although the state association supports "the general intent of the wage and price control program," inequities in the 2.5% restriction "may cause the intent of the proposal to be lost."

"As an example, he said, "the self-employed, private-practice physician can raise his fees 2.5% on the basis of increased costs, while the salaried institution-connected physician can be given a 5.5% increase."

Mason said the guidelines say physicians can only raise fees to reflect higher costs. "The profit-margin cannot increase," he said.

"I can't raise my take-home pay one nickel."

Per-Pupil Spending In Nebraska Lowest Of 7 Plains States

Nebraska's per-pupil expenditure in the public schools was the lowest among the seven Plains states last year, according to the National Education Association's annual "Estimates of school statistics."

Bill To Seek New Class Of Licenses

Legislation which could allow homes such as Westview to be licensed in a classification between a nursing home and board and room facility will be introduced within the next few days.

According to Lancaster County Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert, if such legislation is passed, there would be a provision to license through the State Health Department facilities which are not classified as nursing homes, but provide some kind of care or supervision not allowed under the board and room licensing regulations.

The decision to draft such legislation was made Thursday following a meeting of Trabert and Dr. George Underwood, health director for Lincoln and Lancaster County, with State Health Director Dr. Henry Smith.

Attempts to license Westview by Lancaster County failed since it could not meet qualifications for a nursing home but was providing some care and supervision which also eliminated it from the board and room license category.

Trabert said that under provisions of the proposed legislation, Westview and similar operations would be supported by federal and state reimbursement for the patients and direct relief support which has financed Westview would be eliminated.

At the same time, the NEA report shows, local sources provided the largest share among all revenue sources in a comparison with the six other states.

The report outlining school statistics in the 50 states and the District of Columbia put Nebraska in a Plains state category with Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, North Dakota and South Dakota.

It said the Cornhusker State's public schools spent $682 per pupil in 1971-72, compared with a Plains average of $622 and a national average of $667.

Lowest among the 48 contiguous states was Alabama, which spent $511, and highest was New York at $1,322.

The figures were based on "average daily membership" in public schools and total fiscal year expenditures.

$224.5 Million

The state's total expenditures hit $224.5 million, not including capital outlay interest and expenses for other than elementary and secondary day schools.

Total average daily membership was set at 329,210 pupils, down from 329,860 the previous year. The report also said the number of public high school graduates increased from 21,200 in 1970 to 21,500 last year.

A table of estimated receipts showed "local and other" sources in Nebraska accounted for 76.3% of the total revenue receipts statewide, compared with a Plains average of 59% and a national average of 52%.

Nebraska's 76% was highest among the Plains group.

State support was sixth among the seven states at 17.3%, topping South Dakota's 15.5%. Highest among the Plains states was Minnesota's 54.5%, compared with a Plains average of 35.6% and a national average of 52%.

Federal support to Nebraska public schools was listed as 6.4%, compared with a Plains average of 5.5% and a national average of 7.2%.

Most Districts

The NEA report showed Nebraska retained its top ranking in one category — number of school districts. "Operating" school districts totaled 1,335 of the nation's 16,920.

Other of the NEA's statistics showed:

—Nebraska's average salary per instructional staff member was $8,746, compared with a Plains average of $9,468 and a national average of $10,146. The report showed the state's teachers and other instructional staff members experienced a 4.1% increase in average salary, compared with the 1970-71 figure of $8,400.

—The state saw a decline in the numbers of teachers, from 16,952 in 1969-70 to 16,885 last year, and a drop in total instructional staff members from 18,462 to 18,400.

—The state's school age population (5 to 17) dropped from 389,000 as of July 1, 1970 to 385,000 in 1971.

Anti-Student Paper Bill Rejected

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer
Nebraska lawmakers Thursday reconsidered their action of the previous day and killed a bill which would have cut student fee support for the University of Nebraska's two student newspapers.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' motion to indefinitely postpone LB70 passed on a 24 to 21 vote after consuming more than an hour in debate.

A lobbying effort by both university officials and students and several senators appeared to have made the reconsideration possible.

Critics of UNL's Daily Nebraskan and UNO's Gateway, particularly Omaha Sen. Duke Snyder, appeared satisfied that the bill had scared student newspaper supporters enough to initiate some changes.

Snyder, who Wednesday termed the Daily Nebraskan "not a good example of journalism," said:

"We've shown them that we've got some gumption down here. We've gotten them to show some responsibility for what goes into those papers. So I'll have to move the bill back."

Snyder, who Wednesday termed the Daily Nebraskan "not a good example of journalism," said:

Opponents of LB70 noted that the Board of Regents just this past weekend had moved to implement a plan to exercise more control over the student newspapers. The new plan involves a School of Journalism faculty member acting as an adviser for the papers.

Omaha Sen. John Savage distributed copies of the guidelines of the university committee investigating "the situation at the Daily Nebraskan."

Also opposing the measure, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha said:

"Our actions will be construed by the student body as suppression of freedom of the press. This matter belongs to the Board of Regents — not this body."

Chambers called the debate "a tempest in a teapot" and a "gross over-reaction."

"This Legislature is supposed to be dealing with serious matters," he said.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp, who made the motion for reconsideration of the bill, claimed that the papers are moving toward the day when student fees will not be needed. But he added that, if the funds which account for 42% of the papers' income were axed, the papers could not survive.

"If we kill these newspapers, underground papers which we cannot control will sprout up in their place," he said. "Then we will have pornography and smut in the truest sense."

Sen. Dave Stahmer of Omaha noted that the bill did not even insure that the papers cannot continue, if that was what the proponents wanted. The bill, he said, would only prohibit using cash funds to support the papers. It did exclude using discretionary or general funds to support the papers.

Despite the fusillade of opposition, many LB70 supporters continued their support for the measure.

Genoa Sen. Herb Nore said, "If you want to destroy a people, tear down their moral fiber."

Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice said the Daily Nebraskan reminded him of propaganda in the 1930s during the rise of Adolph Hitler.

"If anything is so lousy it can't survive without a captive audience, it ought not to be subsidized and should be left to die," Carstens said.

Scottsbluff lawmaker Terry Carpenter renewed his support of the fund slash saying, "My position has nothing to do with censorship. I object to students having to pay for something they don't even want."

Lawmakers Baffled By Agency Rules Control

By The Associated Press
The Legislature Thursday indicated it wants to assert its control over state agency rules and regulations, but the lawmakers were baffled about just how to do it.

After wrangling for about 45 minutes over the language of Oakland Sen. Claire Holmquist's LB373, the senators finally abandoned the effort temporarily. No action, other than minor amending, was taken on the bill.

The discussion capped Thursday afternoon's session on general file, in which the Legislature gave first-round approval of five bills, killed two and withdrew one. None of the measures aroused controversy.

Holmquist's bill as first presented, would have required both legislative and gubernatorial approval of all state agencies' rules and regulations with the exception of the Railway Commission, the Roads Department and the Game Commission.

Holmquist noted in presenting this bill that senators are frequently embarrassed by regulation-connected complaints and that the body ought to assert approval authority.

Executive Board
During the legislative sessions, under the bill, the Legislature would take action as a body. During interim periods, the rules and regulations would be acted upon by the Legislature's Executive Board.

But that last provision drew protests from Sens. Jerome Warner of Waverly and George Syas of Omaha, who noted that the Constitution would not allow the executive board to act as a law-making body.

And attempts to amend around the provisions left unanswered the question of just how rules could be approved when the Legislature wasn't in session.

Holmquist finally asked that the bill be laid over for further study.

Right On Red
In other action Thursday, the Legislature advanced a bill which would legalize right turns on red lights at intersections where specific local ordinances do not prohibit it.

The bill, LB1018, was sponsored by the Government and Military Affairs Committee last session.

Killed at sponsoring Sen. Terry Carpenter's request were a pair of bills, one of which would have required county judges to also be lawyers in counties with 14,000 or more inhabitants.

Carpenter said the provision would be included in another bill.

The Legislature also granted first-round approval to Sen. Wally Barnett's LB481, requiring auto insurance companies to give at least 30 days' notice before cancellation of policies for other than nonpayment.

LB1289 (Waldron) — Authorizing the Legislature to set minimum prices on liquor, and prohibiting sales to Nebraska distributors at prices higher than the lowest price charged in any other state.

LB1290 (Epke) — Amending the labeling requirement on simulated seeds.

LB1291 (Schmidt, Keyes, Carsten, Kremer, Kime, Kokes, Epke, Waldo) — Reassigning conservation peace officers as peace officers.

LB1293 (Goodrich) — Increasing from $25,000 to $30,500 the salary of Supreme Court judges and increasing by $5,500 per year the salaries of district, juvenile and municipal judges.

LB1298 (Agriculture Committee) — Permitting employers of household domestic servants and farm labor to be exempted from electing to provide workmen's compensation insurance.

LB1299 (Pfeister) — Making it unlawful to receive an improperly assigned motor vehicle title.

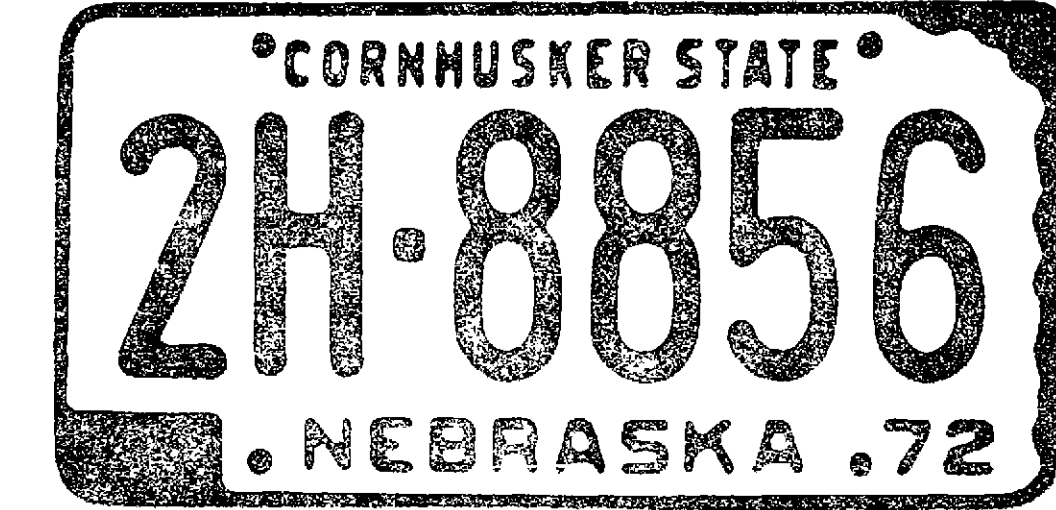

PLATE MISTAKE . . . top license is right, bottom license is wrong.

Let's See, Is It 2H- Or 2-H?

If you see the prefix "H" in front of the dash on some new 1972 Lancaster County license plates, you're not seeing things — there are at least 100 of them!

According to Lancaster County Motor Vehicle Director Darrell Blank, at least 100 Lancaster County plates have the "H" preceding the dash rather than following it as it should be.

He said that when the misprint was discovered state authorities were contacted and he was advised that the plates with the error were legal and could be distributed.

According to Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex authorities, the misplaced "H" was merely a "factory error" by the Prison Industries. The State Motor Vehicle Department told The Star it had no knowledge of other similar misprints on plates in other counties throughout the state.

Apartment Complex Burns; 1 Hurt

Council Bluffs, Iowa (UPI) — One person was injured Thursday night in a fire which swept through approximately 20 units in an apartment complex just off the city business district.

Injured was Hans Nyholm, 66, who was reported in fair condition at Jenny Edmundson Hospital here. He suffered from smoke inhalation.

At least 74 Bluffs firemen and all of the city's firefighting equipment were called on to fight the blaze. Omaha offered a spare fire truck to the neighboring city as a protective measure.

Firemen battling the fire in zero temperatures said all of the estimated 56 residents of the U-shaped apartment building are evacuated or were not in the building when the blaze broke out.

Firemen theorized the blaze broke out in the attic and spread quickly through the roof.

One fireman, George Bronson, 28, didn't have far to go to fight the blaze.

He and his wife, Earlene, were in a one-bedroom apartment adjacent to the unit in which the fire was believed to have started.

"All we had time to do was grab a handful of clothes and our wedding pictures," he said.

"We had just come home after looking for a house, but we didn't find one. I wish we had of."

"A lot of people ran back to grab their stuff, but it just got to where nobody could get anything," Bronson said. "It just took off."

BLAC Plans Meeting With UNO Chancellor

Omaha — A University of Nebraska at Omaha group calling itself the Black Liberators for Action on Campus BLAC said Thursday it will meet Friday with Acting Chancellor Victor Blackwell in an effort to head off a threatened strike at the campus.

The statement issued by BLAC was signed by Woodrow Benford, Donna Kimsey and Milton White. White is a faculty member at the campus. The others are students.

The BLAC statement said the Friday meeting would be an "11th hour effort to keep the University of Nebraska, Omaha from a new semester marked by boycott, strike and mass disruption."

BLAC Chairman Benford

said, "We are trying, right up to the end to negotiate, but we are not going to let black people's rights be trampled."

He said the group is insisting on employment of more black students in university services, immediate approval of two new black studies courses, employment of Elton Okon as a full time black studies department professor, employment of at least three black guidance counselors and blacks in at least five supervisory positions, autonomy for the black studies department, employment of at least one black head coach and establishment of a black cultural house within the black community.

The statement said BLAC would hold a news conference following the meeting with Blackwell "to advise the City of Omaha whether it will be necessary in the interest of justice to mount a strike at the University of Nebraska at Omaha."

The statement also said that if a strike is called "it will involve the Lincoln campus as well as some of the high school campuses in metropolitan Omaha."

Grand Jury To Be Called In Garden Co.

Oshkosh — District Judge John Kuns of Kimball is entering an order for the calling of a grand jury in Garden County, District Court Clerk Ed Sullivan reported Thursday.

No date has been set for convening the grand jury. Judge Kuns made his decision after examining a petition alleging that county officials spent more than the $494,000 approved in a bond election in 1966 for construction of the county hospital here.

The petition also alleges that the county did not take sealed bids and did not give public notice when it bought a truck costing more than $1,000.

Sullivan said Judge Kuns checked the petition and found the signatures sufficient and the petition in conformance with Nebraska statutes.

Sullivan said there will be 16 members of the grand jury plus alternates.

One Of Oldest West Germans Dies At Age 108

Solingen, Germany (UPI) — Karl Albrecht, one of the oldest persons in West Germany, died Wednesday. He was 108.

Albrecht was born in Solingen in 1863. He later moved to Essen where he ran a grocery shop until the building was destroyed by bombing during World War II.

He returned to Solingen after the war to live with his only son.

Man Bound Over For Hijack Talk

. . . On Airplane

Omaha (UPI) — A federal magistrate ruled Thursday sufficient evidence was presented to bind a 31-year-old Painesville, Ohio, man over to U.S. District Court on two charges of intimidating two United Airlines employees.

The charges against Adren H. Hall stemmed from an incident New Year's Day which forced the unscheduled landing of a United 720 Boeing jet with 121 persons aboard at Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

During the preliminary hearing Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck, United stewardesses Christy Lindsey and Judy Hill, both of Elizabeth, N.J., in addition to the pilot, Verle Jobst, McHenry, Ill., testified that, Hall threatened to hijack the plane to Cuba if he was not served additional drinks on the flight.

The stewardesses testified Hall was served three drinks, the limit for that particular flight to Newark, N.J. from Las Vegas, Nev. However, they added that he did not appear "drunk" in that his speech was not slurred nor was he swaying when he attempted to walk.

T. D. Thalken, assistant U.S. attorney, said the charges against Hall were under the federal air piracy statutes but were not as severe as a full piracy charge — which carries the maximum penalty of death — since he "only intimidated the flight crew members as to interfere with their performance of duties. He didn't use a dangerous weapon nor did he threaten to break down the cockpit door or hold a gun at anybody's head."

Hall's court appointed attorney, Gerald P. Laughlin, Omaha, must now decide to waive a grand jury investigation and send the case directly to court, or let the grand jury decide if there is sufficient evidence for trial.

Hall, a self-employed painter who is married and the father of one son, flew into Omaha for the hearing from Cleveland. Thalken said, on the same flight as did the three airline employees who testified against him.

He has been free on $5,000 bond since Jan. 6 after being arrested New Year's night by two armed Omaha police officers when the plane landed in Omaha. Hall boarded the craft in Denver and was slated for departure in Cleveland, near his home. The jet then returned on his normal schedule.

Hall faces a $10,000 fine or 20 years imprisonment, or both, if convicted of the felony charges.

Bill Would Create A Council On Cancer Study, Treatment

A five-member advisory council to oversee all activities relating to study and treatment of cancer in the state would be created under a bill introduced in the Unicameral Thursday.

LB1286, sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Roland A. Luedtke, would create a Nebraska Cancer Advisory Council which would advise the governor and the Department of Health on all matters relating to the diagnosis and treatment or cure of cancer.

Under terms of the bill, the council would consist of three medical doctors, one doctor of dental surgery and one lawyer, and would work closely with the Department of Health.

The council would be empowered to make its own investigations of possible cancer treatments or drugs to determine their value, and issue cease and desist orders for treatments or drugs which did not meet the council's specifications.

The council could also recommend that the Health Department publish reports on the investigation or testing of any cancer drug or device, and would be required to give annual reports to the governor of all activities relating to cancer.

"Take her to Jamaica where the Rum comes from."

It's warm winter in green Jamaica. Warm enough that I had the hotel pack us picnic lunches, ice a bottle of White Burgundy, and we drove up to the cool 3,000 feet in the Blue Mountains.

It was a champagne sunny day. Kingston town sprawling far below. The blue Caribbean filling the canvas with shorted sky. The hook of the harbor where wicked Port Royal lies forever below the sea. Sunk by God's hand, they say. An earthquake wiped it out in minutes. A rum-and-slave town where "They are very civil to strangers who bring in over considerable effects, and will try a great many ways to kill him fairly for the lucer of his cargo, and many have been made rich by such windfalls."

We got off the cruise ship Jupiter with sea legs. On the cool veranda of the Hotel Terra Nova, the chair rose and fell under me. At night the bed rocked from side to side.

The Terra Nova is an excellent hotel. White colonial. The grounds blazing with poinsettias. Only 66 rooms. A private balcony for breakfast with steaming Blue Mountain coffee.

It has the best dining room in Kingston, and government chiefs hold their formal dinners there.

The tourist board man said: "If you go up in the Blue Mountains, you will do something I think no other tourist does — we wish they would. There are a lot of fine, inexpensive little inns up there."

"Jamaicans go for weekends. But tourists don't know about them."

The roads are narrow — you keep your horn on the curves. But the colonial British reinforce the sides with thick stoned walls.

Jamaica is the lushest of the islands down here. The Blue Mountains are thick with trees: pines and green bamboo, African tulip trees with clumps of orange flowers. Lacy tree ferns that grow no other place on the island. There are breadfruit hung with green globes. Descendents of the ones Bligh brought from Tahiti. His second voyage after the mutiny. Potted at anchor in Matavai Bay. Watered daily on the long voyage from Polynesia to the Carib Sea. (Cheap slave food. The problem was, the slaves wouldn't eat them.)

Some of this is state park, and you can rent little log cabins for a very small price.

At the top of the pass, the mountains fell down the other side. You look down on the breezy north shore, the blue water ruffled by the tradewind.

The tourist business looks good, they said at the Jamaica Tourist Board. Stung by critics of high prices in the luxury hotels, the board has issued a pamphlet: "The Inns of Jamaica." It lists 30 small, inexpensive hotels. Bed and breakfast prices, British fashion.

On the way down to Kingston, I stopped at Strawberry Hill.

It's a well kept place. Barbed grounds full of bell-shaped hibiscus. The owner's a Scotsman. He bought it five years ago.

He said: "I came here on holiday. As I was leaving, I congratulated the owner on his luck on such a way of life. He said to me: 'It's your way of life if you want it.'"

"So I bought it. And you couldn't tear me away back to Scotland."

Anti-Student Paper Bill Rejected

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Nebraska lawmakers Thursday reconsidered their action of the previous day and killed a bill which would have cut student fee support for the University of Nebraska's two student newspapers.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' motion to indefinitely postpone LB70 passed on a 24 to 21 vote after consuming more than an hour in debate.

A lobbying effort by both university officials and students and several senators appeared to have made the reconsideration possible.

Critics of UNL's Daily Nebraskan and UNO's Gateway, particularly Omaha Sen. Duke Snyder, appeared satisfied that the bill had scared student newspaper supporters enough to initiate some changes.

Snyder, who Wednesday termed the Daily Nebraskan "not a good example of journalism," said:

"We've shown them that we've got some gumption down here. We've gotten them to show some responsibility for what goes into those papers. So I'll help move the bill back."

Snyder, who Wednesday termed the Daily Nebraskan "not a good example of journalism," said:

Opponents of LB70 noted that the Board of Regents just this past weekend had moved to implement a plan to exercise more control over the student newspapers. The new plan involves a School of Journalism faculty member acting as an adviser for the papers.

Omaha Sen. John Savage distributed copies of the guidelines of the university committee investigating "the situation at the Daily Nebraskan."

Also opposing the measure, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha said:

"Our actions will be construed by the student body as suppression of freedom of the press. This matter belongs to the Board of Regents — not this body."

Chambers called the debate "a tempest in a teapot" and a "gross over-reaction."

"This Legislature is supposed to be dealing with serious matters," he said.

Neligh Sen. John DeCamp, who made the motion for reconsideration of the bill, claimed that the papers are moving toward the day when student fees will not be needed. But he added that, if the funds which account for 42% of the papers' income were axed, the papers could not survive.

"If we kill these newspapers, underground papers which we cannot control will sprout up in their place," he said. "Then we will have pornography and smut in the truest sense."

Sen. Dave Stahmer of Omaha noted that the bill did not even insure that the papers cannot continue, if that was what the proponents wanted. The bill, he said, would only prohibit using cash funds to support the papers. It did exclude using discretionary or general funds to support the papers.

Despite the fusillade of opposition, many LB70 supporters continued their support for the measure.

Genoa Sen. Herb Nore said, "If you want to destroy a people, tear down their moral fiber."

Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice said the Daily Nebraskan reminded him of propaganda in the 1930s during the rise of Adolf Hitler.

"If anything is so lousy it can't survive without a captive audience, it ought not to be subsidized and should be left to die," Carstens said.

Scottsbluff lawmaker Terry Carpenter renewed his support of the fund slash saying, "My position has nothing to do with censorship. I object to students having to pay for something they don't even want."

Lawmakers Baffled By Agency Rules Control

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Thursday indicated it wants to assert its control over state agency rules and regulations, but the lawmakers were baffled about just how to do it.

After wrangling for about 45 minutes over the language of Oakland Sen. Claire Holmquist's LB373, the senators finally abandoned the effort temporarily. No action, other than minor amending, was taken on the bill.

The discussion capped Thursday afternoon's session on general file, in which the Legislature gave first-round approval of five bills, killed two and withdrew one. None of the measures aroused controversy.

Holmquist's bill as first presented, would have required both legislative and gubernatorial approval of all state agencies' rules and regulations with the exception of the Railway Commission, the Roads Department and the Game Commission.

Holmquist noted in presenting this bill that senators are frequently embarrassed by regulation-connected complaints and that the body ought to assert approval authority.

Executive Board

During the Legislative sessions, under the bill, the Legislature would take action as a body. During interim periods, the rules and regulations would be acted upon by the Legislature's Executive Board.

But that last provision drew protests from Sens. Jerome Warner of Waverly and George Syas of Omaha, who noted that the Constitution would not allow the executive board to act as a law-making body.

And attempts to amend around the provisions left unanswered the question of just how rules could be approved when the Legislature wasn't in session.

Holmquist finally asked that the bill be laid over for further study.

Right On Red

In other action Thursday, the Legislature advanced a bill which would legalize right turns on red lights at intersections where specific local ordinances do not prohibit it.

The bill, LB1018, was sponsored by the Government and Military Affairs Committee last session.

Killed at sponsoring Sen. Terry Carpenter's request were a pair of bills, one of which would have required county judges to also be lawyers in counties with 14,000 or more inhabitants.

Carpenter said the provision would be included in another bill.

The Legislature also granted first-round approval to Sen. Wally Barnett's LB481, requiring auto insurance companies to give at least 30 days' notice before cancellation of policies for other than nonpayment.

PLATE MISTAKE . . . top license is right, bottom license is wrong.

Let's See, Is It 2H- Or 2-H?

If you see the prefix "H" in front of the dash on some new 1972 Lancaster County license plates, you're not seeing things — there are at least 100 of them!

According to Lancaster County Motor Vehicle Director Darrell Blank, at least 100 Lancaster County plates have the "H" preceding the dash rather than following it as it should be.

He said that when the misprint was discovered state authorities were contacted and he was advised that the plates with the error were legal and could be distributed.

According to Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex authorities, the misplaced "H" was merely a "factory error" by the Prison Industries.

The State Motor Vehicle Department told The Star it had no knowledge of other similar misprints on plates in other counties throughout the state.

Apartment Complex Burns; 1 Hurt

Council Bluffs, Iowa (UPI) — One person was injured Thursday night in a fire which swept through approximately 20 units in an apartment complex just off the city business district.

Injured was Hans Nyholm, 66, who was reported in fair condition at Jenny Edmundson Hospital here. He suffered from smoke inhalation.

At least 74 Bluffs firemen and all of the city's firefighting equipment were called on to fight the blaze. Omaha offered a spare fire truck to the neighboring city as a protective measure.

Firemen battling the fire in zero temperatures said all of the estimated 56 residents of the U-shaped apartment building are evacuated or were not in the building when the blaze broke out.

Firemen theorized the blaze broke out in the attic and spread quickly through the roof.

One fireman, George Bronson, 28, didn't have far to go to fight the blaze.

He and his wife, Earlene, were in a one-bedroom apartment adjacent to the unit in which the fire was believed to have started.

"All we had time to do was grab a handful of clothes and our wedding pictures," he said.

"We had just come home after looking for a house, but we didn't find one. I wish we had."

"A lot of people ran back in to grab their stuff, but it just got to where nobody could get anything," Bronson said. "It just took off."

Hall, a self-employed painter who is married and the father of one son, flew into Omaha for the hearing from Cleveland, Thakken said, on the same flight as did the three airline employees who testified against him.

He has been free on $5,000 bond since Jan. 6 after being arrested New Year's night by two armed Omaha police officers when the plane landed in Omaha. Hall boarded the craft in Denver and was slated for departure in Cleveland, near his home. The jet then returned on his normal schedule.

Hall faces a $10,000 fine or 20 years imprisonment, or both, if convicted of the felony charges.

BLAC Plans Meeting With UNO Chancellor

Omaha (AP) — A University of Nebraska at Omaha group calling itself the Black Liberators for Action on Campus BLAC said Thursday it will meet Friday with Acting Chancellor Victor Blackwell in an effort to head off a threatened strike at the campus.

The statement issued by BLAC was signed by Woodrow Benford, Donna Kimsey and Milton White. White is a faculty member at the campus. The others are students.

The BLAC statement said the Friday meeting would be an "11th hour effort to keep the University of Nebraska, Omaha from a new semester marred by boycott, strike and mass disruption."

BLAC Chairman Benford said, "We are trying, right up to the end to negotiate, but we are not going to let black people's rights be trampled."

He said the group is insisting on employment of more black students in university services, immediate approval of two new black studies courses, employment of Elton Okon as a full time black studies department professor, employment of at least three black guidance counselors and blacks in at least five supervisory positions, autonomy for the black studies department, employment of at least one black head coach and establishment of a black cultural house within the black community.

The statement said BLAC would hold a news conference following the meeting with Blackwell "to advise the City of Omaha whether it will be necessary in the interest of justice to mount a strike at the University of Nebraska at Omaha."

The statement also said that if a strike is called "it will involve the Lincoln campus as well as some of the high school campuses in metropolitan Omaha."

BLAC Chairman Benford said the meeting would be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the Lincoln campus.

Oshkosh (AP) — District Judge John Kuns of Kimball is entering an order for the selling of a grand jury in Garden County, District Court Clerk Ed Sullivan reported Thursday.

No date has been set for convening the grand jury. Judge Kuns made his decision after examining a petition alleging that county officials spent more than the $494,000 approved in a bond election in 1966 for construction of the county hospital here.

The petition also alleges that the county did not take sealed bids and did not give public notice when it bought a truck costing more than $1,000.

Sullivan said Judge Kuns checked the petition and found the signatures sufficient and the petition in conformance with Nebraska statutes.

Sullivan said there will be 16 members of the grand jury plus alternates.

Madison (AP) — Steve Barton, 21, formerly of Madison, who walked away from a work detail at the Nebraska Penal Complex last Friday, was arrested with a companion here Wednesday night.

Barton was serving a term for issuance of a no-fund check.

Barton and the companion, Dwaine Spike, 17, of Silver Creek, who was on parole to the Hamilton County sheriff's department at Central City on a theft conviction, were arrested at the home of Barton's mother, Mrs. Esther Welcox, by Madison County Sheriff's officers, Madison police and E. M. Hasteiter, investigator for the State Patrol.

Sheriff Marvin Adams said Barton allegedly took a car in Omaha and drove to Madison Monday, where the license plates were exchanged for the plates on his mother's car. Mrs. Wilcox notified authorities and a watch was set up.

The arrest was made when the two young men returned Wednesday.

Both Barton and Spike have been returned to their respective jurisdictions and no actions have been initiated in Madison.

Man Bound Over For Hijack Talk

... On Airplane

Omaha (UPI) — A federal magistrate ruled Thursday sufficient evidence was presented to bind a 31-year-old Painesville, Ohio, man over to U.S. District Court on two charges of intimidating two United Airlines employees.

The charges against Adren H. Hall stemmed from an incident New Year's Day which forced the unscheduled landing of a United 720 Boeing jet with 121 persons aboard at Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

During the preliminary hearing Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Peck, United stewardesses Christy Lindsey and Judy Hill, both of Elizabeth, N.J., in addition to the pilot, Verle Jobst, McHenry, Ill., testified that, Hall threatened to hijack the plane to Cuba if he was not served additional drinks on the flight.

The stewardesses testified Hall was served three drinks, the limit for that particular flight to Newark, N.J. from Las Vegas, Nev. However, they added that he did not appear "drunk" in that his speech was not slurred nor was he swaying when he attempted to walk.

T. D. Thakken, assistant U.S. attorney, said the charges against Hall were under the federal air piracy statutes but were not as severe as a full piracy charge — which carries the maximum penalty of death — since he "only intimidated the flight crew members as to interfere with their performance of duties. He didn't use a dangerous weapon nor did he threaten to break down the cockpit door or hold a gun at anybody's head."

Hall's court appointed attorney, Gerald P. Laughlin, Omaha, must now decide to waive a grand jury investigation and send the case directly to court, or let the grand jury decide if there is sufficient evidence for trial.

Hall, a self-employed painter who is married and the father of one son, flew into Omaha for the hearing from Cleveland, Thakken said, on the same flight as did the three airline employees who testified against him.

He has been free on $5,000 bond since Jan. 6 after being arrested New Year's night by two armed Omaha police officers when the plane landed in Omaha. Hall boarded the craft in Denver and was slated for departure in Cleveland, near his home. The jet then returned on his normal schedule.

Hall faces a $10,000 fine or 20 years imprisonment, or both, if convicted of the felony charges.

Apparent Firemen's Strike Is Resolved At Broken Bow

Broken Bow (AP) — What first appeared to be a strike by the Broken Bow volunteer Fire Department, apparently was cleared up at a special meeting of the city council Wednesday night.

In a dispute over insurance coverage the firemen held a special meeting Tuesday night and voted to resign at midnight, Jan. 12.

City attorney Carlos Schaper said the misunderstanding resulted from the federal wage and price freeze implemented last year.

He said a new state law effective in August requires municipalities to provide $2,000 worth of life insurance for each volunteer fireman. However, Schaper said that due to the best legal opinion offered at the time the city could not initiate the new law without being in violation of the wage and price freeze.

"The life insurance," he said, "was apparently considered a fringe benefit."

According to Fire Chief Cledis Prescott, the only life insurance firemen were carrying was a $1,000 policy with a group insurance firm now defunct. Firemen are covered by a city-paid accidental death policy as well as workmen's compensation.

There had been rumors that the city had cancelled some insurance on firemen but Schaper said "the city did not cancel any insurance."

The problem apparently was solved at Wednesday night's council meeting when the council, acting on more recent legal information initiated the new $2,000 life insurance policy on individual firemen.

on a tour of the shops

This week we continue our forecast for spring shopping tour. The manufacturers are just beginning to merchandise their lines, and trickle by trickle, the stores are preparing for the warmer days. We scouted both men's and women's wear, and the outlook is most appealing.

AT BEN SIMON'S

The nautical look will be one of the most popular styles for the spring and summer of '72. The colors also are right in tune for this look, with an emphasis on red, white and blue.

One of our favorites was a sailor-girl, two-piece ensemble in lightweight white wool knit by Damon. A box pleated skirt is topped with a short-sleeved sailor shirt. Both skirt and top are accented by navy stripes around the border of the skirt, collar and sleeves. The top is finished with a wide navy satin bow that features a design of white anchors.

A three-piece ensemble strays from the typical suit style in its design. A white pleated skirt and long-sleeved shirt are worn under a cardigan jacket that features a navy background and a print of ships in red and white. The jacket is accented by a red and white striped border, and the red is repeated in a man's tie adorning the shirt.

Also in the nautical fare is the extended shoulder. A sleeveless, navy dress highlights a broad, square collar that extends over the shoulder beneath a rounded neckline banded with red. The natural waistline is belted in red, is ornamented with a gold buckle, and has a stripe of blue through the center. If the layered look is desired, this dress can have it when worn over a red turtle neck top.

The layered look makes its appearance also in a one-piece dress that has a solid navy pleated skirt and a long-sleeved white blouse top. Completing the ensemble is a vest in an attractive print which combines shades of red, white, blue and gold.

Dots and stripes will be combined this spring in much of ladies' ready-to-wear. These two patterns were shown to the best advantage in a sleeveless dress and jacket. The skirt of the dress offered small polka dots on a striped pattern of red, white and blue. The sleeveless, collared bodice featured white polka dots on a red background. A long-sleeved jacket of navy, with white polka dots, was sculptured to fit the body, and featured a U-neckline and puffed sleeves. This ensemble is fashioned in polyester.

For after five, the floor length dress or ensemble will monopolize the scene. Red, white and blue were again shown in a floor-length dress and a striped, sleeveless, belted top with a V-neckline banded in white. The long, flowing skirt features a front seam with gold buttons.

For the lady golfer, there are a myriad of outfits that will keep her both comfortable and stylish. Many of the skirts conveniently feature either shorts underneath or are, in fact, short pants skirts.

AT MAGEE'S

The innovation of color takes men's fashions a long way from the dull, and puts them into the fun world fashion-wise. Knits, of course, still are very much the most popular fabric, but this spring we will also see elegant forms of woven fabrics.

The styling of jackets and suits will continue to emphasize the fancy back. At Magee's, however, many of the belts and bi-swing backs are stitched down to give the effect, but not the problem in fitting. The inverted center pleat in the back is often repeated on the front pockets and very high side vents are making a return.

Many jackets are accented by contrast stitching. One of our favorite examples of this trend was shown in a navy woven suit that featured red stitching on the lapel and pockets. This suit is in the two-button style which, we were told, is still the most sought after. It also has the high side vents.

Geometric prints are far from passe, but they have changed in size. This spring they will be either large and splashy or very small. A double knit suit in a small geometric print picks up the popular burgundy color and combines it with navy and gold. This suit, like so many of its counterparts, can also be worn using the jacket as a sports coat with other slacks, or wearing the slacks for casual wear with separates.

Sports coats are exciting. The ice cream colors and pastels are once again being shown. They often are coordinated with slacks that may repeat the colors of the jacket in a different pattern. A rather large check of blue, brown and white in a sports coat is combined with a very small print in the same colors in the slacks.

A plaid jacket in tones of pale blue and rose was combined with slacks that picked up the small checked, rose background of the jacket.

Stitching is being utilized on jackets to produce an individual style. This explains the stitched back belt and pleats. Many of the pockets are hemmed with stitching, and feature inverted center pleats.

To coordinate with the sports jacket and slacks attire, men will be wearing skinny, ribbed turtle-neck tops and soft sport shirts. White slacks will also make a big return for the summer.

AT JASON'S

Young executives and even college men are returning to the classic and elegant look for both dressy and casual wear, and therefore are turning their backs on the wild, flamboyant, boutique look.

We learned that the men in our lives will present a neater appearance and soon will be dressing up a bit more.

The suits, sport coats, and slacks — which will be double knit, of course — will be plain, and the accessories, including ties and shirts, will take on the duty of providing emphasis.

Jason's For Him has created a distinctive look of its own which helps to provide for perfect coordination of the tie and shirt with the suit or sport coat.

For example, the clothes found there reflect a strong European influence with long lines, three buttons rather than the usual two, a wider lapel, and very deep side vents.

At Jason's we found that the clothing trend is toward the double fashion look with single items looking equally well for either casual or dressy moods.

Slacks, which will have the heavy double knit look similar to that found in the shops last fall, will again be flared, but will have a dresser appearance for any occasion.

A new fabric has recently been introduced to the men's apparel line — and the Arnel triacetate is expected to soon take the fashion world by storm.

We learned that the white shirt will make its return this spring — BUT the look will feature white on white with surface interests to coordinate with the suits.

For casual wear, we found that the shirts will again be largely of the knit fabrics with the skinny ribs the most popular — and there will be a greater emphasis on collars rather than the Wallace Beery or scooped neck looks.

Outerwear, we learned, will feature shorter jackets — waist length, to be exact — which will have ornamentation such as buckles and rings.

Jason's offered a bit of advice on the future shoe styles which will feature a generally higher heel — of 1½ to 2 inches — and a much squarer, boxy appearance. Boots, as always, will remain to be an essential to any wardrobe.

Footlights & Canvas

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

Having just shortly returned from Europe, one of the things that impressed us most among the many splendours in the great City of London, was the theatre. Our stay in that city was brief, but we were able to see two shows near Piccadilly Circus and a ballet at Covent Garden as performed by the Royal Ballet Company.

For those who have not been there, the theatre in London is a wonderful experience. Typical of the English, it maintains an air of charm rather than rapturous glamour. The theatre is very well supported, even mid-week. This is due in part, we assume, to the very reasonable prices of seats. The most expensive seat in the house can be had for a mere five dollars. Quite a comedown from Broadway fare.

Intermissions, which are called 'intervals' are most quaint. There are cocktail lounges on each level for the patrons. The theatres we attended had three levels of lounges — one for the box and orchestra, one for the first balconies and still another for the higher balconies.

For those who don't desire a drink, usherettes come through the theatre with ice cream sundaes in paper cups. You may also order tea and cookies which will be brought to your seat on a tray.

The legitimate theatres are small and intimate, especially as compared to the Covent Garden which houses the Royal Opera as well as the Royal Ballet Company. By comparison also, the price of admission to a ballet or opera is far higher than the theatre, ranging from $4 to $30. The excellence of the ballet company is well worth the price, however.

What impressed us most, outside of the productions themselves, was what seemed to be such ardent love and devotion among the people. Growing up with the theatre at hand obviously has its supreme results.

Now, for your further entertainment:

He will perform Saint Saens' Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 4, Op. 44. The Symphony will also perform

Our Town

Footlights & Canvas

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN
Good morning:

Having just shortly returned from Europe, one of the things that impressed us most among the many splendors in the great City of London, was the theatre. Our stay in that city was brief, but we were able to see two shows near Picadilly Circus and a ballet at Covent Garden as performed by the Royal Ballet Company.

For those who have not been there, the theatre in London is a wonderful experience. Typical of the English, it maintains an air of charm rather than rapturous glamour. The theatre is very well supported, even mid-week. This is due in part, we assume, to the very reasonable prices of seats. The most expensive seat in the house can be had for a mere five dollars. Quite a comedown from Broadway fare.

Intermissions, which are called 'intervals' are most quaint. There are cocktail lounges on each level for the patrons. The theatres we attended had three levels of lounges — one for the box and orchestra, one for the first balconies and still another for the higher balconies.

For those who don't desire a drink, usherettes come through the theatre with ice cream sundaes in paper cups. You may also order tea and cookies which will be brought to your seat on a tray.

The legitimate theatres are small and intimate, especially as compared to the Covent Garden which houses the Royal Opera as well as the Royal Ballet Company. By comparison also, the price of admission to a ballet or opera is far higher than the theatre, ranging from $4 to $30. The excellence of the ballet company is well worth the price, however.

What impressed us most, outside of the productions themselves, was what seemed to be such ardent love and devotion among the people. Growing up with the theatre at hand obviously has its supreme results.

Now, for your further entertainment:

on a tour of the shops

This week we continue our forecast for spring shopping tour. The manufacturers are just beginning to merchandise their lines, and trickle by trickle, the stores are preparing for the warmer days. We scouted both men's and women's wear, and the outlook is most appealing.

AT BEN SIMON'S

The nautical look will be one of the most popular styles for the spring and summer of '72. The colors also are right in tune for this look, with an emphasis on red, white and blue.

One of our favorites was a sailor-girl, two-piece ensemble in lightweight white wool knit by Damon. A box pleated skirt is topped with a short-sleeved sailor shirt. Both skirt and top are accented by navy stripes around the border of the skirt, collar and sleeves. The top is finished with a wide navy satin bow that features a design of white anchors.

A three-piece ensemble strays from the typical suit style in its design. A white pleated skirt and long-sleeved shirt are worn under a cardigan jacket that features a navy background and a print of ships in red and white. The jacket is accented by a red and white striped border, and the red is repeated in a man's tie adorning the shirt.

Also in the nautical fare is the extended shoulder. A sleeveless, navy dress highlights a broad, square collar that extends over the shoulder beneath a rounded neckline banded with red. The natural waistline is belted in red, is ornamented with a gold buckle, and has a stripe of blue through the center. If the layered look is desired, this dress can have it when worn over a red turtle neck top.

The layered look makes its appearance, also in a one-piece dress that has a solid navy pleated skirt and a long-sleeved white blouse top. Completing the ensemble is a vest in an attractive print which combines shades of red, white, blue and gold.

Dots and stripes will be combined this spring in much of ladies' ready-to-wear. These two patterns were shown to the best advantage in a sleeveless dress and jacket. The skirt of the dress offered small polka dots on a striped pattern of red, white and blue. The sleeveless, collared bodice featured white polka dots on a red background. A long-sleeved jacket of navy, with white polka dots, was sculptured to fit the body, and featured a U-neckline and puffed sleeves. This ensemble is fashioned in polyester.

For after five, the floor length dress or ensemble will monopolize the scene. Red, white and blue were again shown in a floor-length dress and a striped, sleeveless, belted top with a V-neckline banded in white. The long, flowing skirt features a front seam with gold buttons.

For the lady golfer, there are a myriad of outfits that will keep her both comfortable and stylish. Many of the skirts conveniently feature either shorts underneath or are, in fact, short pants skirts.

AT MAGEE'S

The innovation of color takes men's fashions a long way from the dull, and puts them into the fun world fashion-wise. Knits, of course, still are very much the most popular fabric, but this spring we will also see elegant forms of woven fabrics.

The styling of jackets and suits will continue to emphasize the fancy back. At Magee's, however, many of the belts and bi-swing backs are stitched down to give the effect, but not the problem in fitting. The inverted center pleat in the back is often repeated on the front pockets, and very high side vents are making a return.

Many jackets are accented by contrast stitching. One of our favorite examples of this trend was shown in a navy woven suit that featured red stitching on the lapel and pockets. This suit is in the two-button style which, we were told, is still the most sought after. It also has the high side vents.

Geometric prints are far from passe, but they have changed in size. This spring they will be either large and splashy or very small. A double knit suit in a small geometric print picks up the popular burgundy color and combines it with navy and gold. This suit, like so many of its counterparts, can also be worn using the jacket as a sports coat with other slacks, or wearing the slacks for casual wear with separates.

Sports coats are exciting. The ice cream colors and pastels are once again being shown. They often are coordinated with slacks that may repeat the colors of the jacket in a different pattern. A rather large check of blue, brown and white in a sports coat is combined with a very small print in the same colors in the slacks.

A plaid jacket in tones of pale blue and rose was combined with slacks that picked up the small checked, rose background of the jacket.

Stitching is being utilized on jackets to produce an individual style. This explains the stitched back belt and pleats. Many of the pockets are hemmed with stitching, and feature inverted center pleats.

To coordinate with the sports jacket and slacks attire, men will be wearing skinny, ribbed turtle-neck tops and soft sport shirts. White slacks will also make a big return for the summer.

AT JASON'S

Young executives and even college men are returning to the classic and elegant look for both dressy and casual wear, and therefore are turning their backs on the wild, flamboyant, boutique look.

We learned that the men in our lives will present a neater appearance and soon will be dressing up a bit more.

The suits, sport coats, and slacks — which will be double knit, of course — will be plain, and the accessories, including ties and shirts, will take on the duty of providing emphasis.

Jason's For Him has created a distinctive look of its own which helps to provide for perfect coordination of the tie and shirt with the suit or sport coat.

For example, the clothes found there reflect a strong European influence with long lines, three buttons rather than the usual two, a wider lapel, and very deep side vents.

At Jason's we found that the clothing trend is toward the double fashion look with single items looking equally well for either casual or dressy moods.

Slacks, which will have the heavy double knit look similar to that found in the shops last fall, will again be flared, but will have a dressier appearance for any occasion.

A new fabric has recently been introduced to the men's apparel line — and the Arnel triacetate is expected to soon take the fashion world by storm.

We learned that the white shirt will make its return this spring — BUT the look will feature white on white with surface interests to coordinate with the suits.

For casual wear, we found that the shirts will again be largely of the knit fabrics with the skinny ribs the most popular — and there will be a greater emphasis on collars rather than the Wallace Beery or scooped neck looks.

Outerwear, we learned, will feature shorter jackets — waist length, to be exact — which will have ornamentation such as buckles and rings.

Jason's offered a bit of advice on the future shoe styles which will feature a generally higher heel — of 1½ to 2 inches — and a much squarer, boxy appearance. Boots, as always, will remain to be an essential to any wardrobe.

people differ in their views

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now I know that I have truly seen everything My husband and I have owned and operated a small florist shop for the last 15 years, and I have encountered some unusual situations. But the one I had yesterday beats them all.

Two middle-aged women came into the shop together and asked what I had to offer in the way of a "Bon Voyage" wreath, so I showed them what I had in my catalog. I asked if a man or a woman was going abroad, and one of the women replied, angrily: "It is for my sister's FUNERAL."

I must have shown my amazement because she then added: "If you were a true Christian you would consider death as the beginning of a long, happy trip."

Abby, I do consider myself a Christian, and I refused to sell that woman a "Bon Voyage" wreath for her sister's funeral.

When my husband came in, I told him what had happened and he laughed and said: "You should have sold it to her."

I was very much upset by my husband's response as I have always considered death to be a very solemn occasion. Maybe you or some of your readers could tell me what they would have done.

SHOCKED IN ALBUQUERQUE

DEAR SHOCKED: I vote with your husband. How one views death is a highly personal matter. If the woman wanted to wish her deceased sister a happy trip, I'd have sold her a "Bon Voyage" wreath.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been friends with another couple for a number of years. We are in each other's homes frequently. Lately the woman has been doing something that I find very annoying. After we arrive at her home, by invitation, she picks up her latest knitting or needlepoint project and starts working away, stopping occasionally to count stitches, consult the instructions, and to admire her handiwork.

She does join in the conversation, but rather halfheartedly, as tho she feels obligated to make a token comment now and then.

I think she is being somewhat rude. Am I right or wrong?

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Right. She is making a statement: "The company I s n't sufficiently fascinating to warrant my total attention."

Don't let the annoyance build up. Tell her. But don't you use a needle.

DEAR ABBY: The ink is still drying on my final divorce papers, and already the neighbors and acquaintances are nosing around as to "why" we got the divorce, and "what happened?"

It wasn't over "another woman," or "another man, and since I am the one who instigated the divorce, I am getting the "what happened?" question from all sides.

I would really rather not offer any explanations because I feel it's nobody's business. How can I tactfully put this message across?

SANDY

DEAR SANDY: Simply say: "If you will forgive me for not answering, I will forgive you for asking."

The problem is how to protect against the combination of a 4-1 trump break and an unfavorable heart division. To meet this challenge you cash the queen of spades at trick two and lead a heart. If South ruffs you automatically have the rest of the tricks, so let's assume he either follows suit or discards something.

Now you enter dummy with a diamond and repeat the heart play. Again you are sure of the outcome regardless of what South has or does.

The suggested method of play is equally effective if North has the spade and heart length. In that case you ruff the fourth round of hearts in dummy and lose only a trump trick.

Please, Dad . . .

When Henry Brandt goes before the Nebraska Unicameral asking for money to put his State Fairgrounds in order, he must feel a little like the boy, who has a paper route but who has to turn all his earnings over to his father, then can't get enough money from dad to get that flat tire fixed on his bicycle that he needs to cover the paper route.

Brandt has been trying to run a State Fairgrounds horse racing meet for the past several years with a plant that has a flat tire and the facility is getting so bad that the wheels are even about to fall off.

If dad (the Legislature) could see fit to give him a new bicycle, he could enlarge his paper route and put even more money in dad's pocket.

Or if dad would simply let him keep the money he's been turning over to him, Brandt could buy his own new bicycle.

The groups are numerous that appear before the Legislature's Budget Committee, but when Brandt and his State Fair Board appear before that body as they did Wednesday in asking for $1.7 million to begin rebuilding the Fairgrounds it's a unique situation.

Most groups appearing before the Budget Committee are simply asking for permission to dip their hand into the piggy bank and pull out a handful of loot.

Put It In, Too

The thing that makes Brandt's request unique is that he also puts a considerable amount of money into the state's piggy bank.

Each year the State Fairgrounds race meet puts nearly a quarter of a million dollars into the State Treasury through the pari-mutuel and admissions tax.

Now if the Legislature doesn't want to give back any of that money to get the needed work done, it doesn't take much of a mathematician to figure that if they'd let Brandt simply keep his paper route earnings for a few years he could pay for it himself.

And Brandt promises that if they'd give him a new bicycle, he could increase his route enough that he could put even more money into dad's pocket.

"With a new facility, we could double our pari-mutuel handle and that would thus double the money we'd be giving to the state in taxes," he asserts.

Anyone who has taken a careful look at the situation would have to think that Brandt is being a bit modest perhaps in his promise.

Bettors Bypassing Lincoln

That the handle could be doubled is as safe a prediction as forecasting that Joe Frazier will whip Terry Daniels in their Saturday night mismatch in New Orleans.

A large share of the crowd you see at Grand Island during the Fanner Park meeting comes from Omaha and a large part of the crowd you see at Ak-Sar-Ben during the Omaha meeting comes from outstate Nebraska.

Yet because of its antiquated facility, the State Fairgrounds meeting in Lincoln attracts neither the outstate bettors nor the Omaha bettors.

And it's not that they've lost all their money by the time the Thoroughbreds reach Lincoln or that their enthusiasm for the sport has waned. It's simply that who wants to go to the State Fairgrounds plant and stand around in what is a little better than a bath and swelter in the July and August heat to beat.

Supporting State Fair

And there's another factor perhaps the most overlooked one in the total spectrum of the State Fairgrounds race meet.

That is that while the Fanner Park meeting must support only the Hall County Fair and the Columbus meeting the Platte County Fair, the Lincoln meeting must support the State Fair.

And anyone who thinks there's any similarity between the costs involved between a county fair and a state fair would also have to figure he could trade a Volkswagen for a Cadillac even-up.

If there were no State Fairgrounds race meeting to pay the bills for the State Fair, then the Legislature would have to come up with a means of financing that annual fall extravaganza.

There isn't a legislator sitting up at the State Capitol, who wouldn't jump at the offer if someone said, "You give me a dollar now and for every dollar you give me now, in 10 years I'll give you back two dollars."

Yet, that essentially is what Henry Brandt and his State Fair Board are saying. The Nebraska Legislature doesn't run into that kind of a deal every day.

LHS Facing Top Teams In Weekend Battles

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Lincoln High, No. 7 rated in the statewide high school basketball top ten ratings despite a standoff 3-3 record, has its work cut out this weekend.

Coach Aldy Johnson's Links are involved in the only prep contest in the Capital City Friday night when they face ninth-ranked Northeast at Pershing Auditorium, then travel to Omaha Saturday evening to battle No. 3 rated Central.

While the Lincoln High-Northeast intra-city matchup is on Friday, the other three Lincoln hoop quintets are on the road.

East goes to Beatrice, while Southeast journeys to Grand Island. Plus X, which upset Southeast in its latest outing but still failed to crack the Class B top ten, gets another chance in a game at No. 6 rated Waverly.

Despite the fact that Lincoln High is two spots higher in the ratings than Northeast, coach Ed Johnson's Rockets scored a narrow 46-44 victory over the Links when the two met in mid-December.

Northeast got off to a fast early-season start, winning three in a row before the holiday break. But back-to-back losses last weekend to Hastings and Omaha Benson pushed the Rockets down to the No. 9 position.

Lincoln High opened by beating the same Hastings team, 87-68, before losing its next three to No. 1 rated Omaha Westside, No. 2 ranked Lincoln East and Northeast.

Last weekend the Links posted a pair of victories over Southeast and Creighton Prep.

One game is also on tap in the Capital City Saturday night. After its Friday game at Grand Island, Southeast returns to host Creighton Prep at the East High gym.

DEVANEY TO QUIT COACHING?

... Decision Expected In Two Weeks

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) — Bob Devaney said Thursday night he is considering retiring as Nebraska's head football coach after leading the Cornhuskers' to two consecutive national championships.

"I've been thinking about it after each of the last three seasons," said the 56-year-old coach, who also is Nebraska's director of athletics. "It's not set. I'm going back home and make a decision within the next couple of weeks."

"It's kind of a challenge. One minute you want to quit and the next minute you want to win three national championships in a row, which has never been done before and which is almost impossible."

Devaney disclosed his feelings shortly after he lost out to Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama in balloting by more than 1,700 members of the American Football Coaches Association for major college Coach of the Year.

"If I had won, it might have been an influencing factor, but I think I would still make my decision the same way," said Devaney, who has been one of the eight coach of the year finalists six times but has never won the award despite the consecutive national crowns and a brilliant 127-28-6 record in 15 years as a head coach at Nebraska and Wyoming.

"It's certainly disappointing," he said. "I figured the law of averages might catch up to me, but you've got to look at it the democratic way. The coaches' vote and you've got to accept it. Bear Bryant had a good record and did a fine coaching job."

The AFCA members voted before Nebraska crushed Alabama 38-6 in the Orange Bowl.

Devaney said that giving up the coaching job "has been on my mind for some time. In fact, right after the Orange Bowl game, I told my coaching staff so they could start looking around for a job, if they wanted to."

"It's a lot better, I guess, to step out when you're at the top than when you're losing. At least nobody's nugging me now. I'm 56 years old and I've been coaching a long time. A lot of fellows younger than I am are falling out with heart attacks. And there aren't many older guys still exposing themselves to the strain of being a head coach."

The Nebraska regents recently raised Devaney's salary $3,000 to $35,000 annually.

Devaney emphasized he is not under doctor's orders to give up coaching.

"It's getting harder to recruit every year," he said, "and it just seems to me that this might be the right time. Right now, being Nebraska's head football coach is no big problem. But when I get up on Saturday mornings during the football season, the way I feel, I know I should be sitting back and watching on television."

Devaney pointed out he will have to make a decision soon "because of recruiting. It's not fair to try to sign a kid if you can't even tell him who his head coach will be."

And he said he would like to insure that one of his assistants would succeed him.

"If I knew one of my assistants wasn't going to replace me, I probably wouldn't consider stepping out at this time," he said.

"I'll probably mull over the pros and cons in my mind and find out just how much coaching means to me. If you want to keep on coaching, you can always find some excuse."

As third vice president of the coaches' group, Devaney was reminded that he'll be president in 1975.

"I don't think I'll be around that long," he laughed.

Word that Bob Devaney is giving thought to the possibility of retiring as Nebraska's head football coach drew expressions of hope in his home state Thursday night that the man who has put together two straight national champion teams will remain on the job.

University president D. B. Varner said he was unaware of any Devaney retirement plans but said "my reaction is that he's certainly earned the right to choose whatever course he wants to pursue." But, he added, "it would be a serious loss to the team."

Varner said he was aware of some published speculation last year and the preceding year that Devaney might give up the coaching post. "I just never gave it serious thought, I guess."

Assistant coach Jim Ross, who has been an aide to Devaney throughout Devaney's career as head coach, said Devaney "has talked of retiring the last couple of years, but I didn't know he was planning anything this year. I talked to him on the phone yesterday and he didn't say anything about it."

Because of the Orange Bowl game in Miami New Year's night, the Hula Bowl game in Honolulu in which he served as coach of the winning North team, and the more recent coaches' meetings in Florida, Devaney has been out of the city since before Christmas.

Team members and students also have scattered, this being an interval between semesters at the school.

Nebraska Sports Information Director Don Bryant said he knew nothing of a possible Devaney retirement and "I certainly hope it's just a rumor. I hope he continues to coach for many, many years."

"I don't think he'll retire," said one unbeliever fan. "That sounds like a misquote or a misunderstanding. He won't retire."

Linemen Past Due For Credit

Houston (AP) — Notre Dame defensive end Walt Patulski, a finalist for the second annual Vince Lombardi Award, says the Heisman Trophy is biased against linemen because the backs get more publicity.

The award, presented annually to the nation's top lineman of the year, will be given to one of four finalists Friday night at a $100 per plate dinner at the Astor-Waldorf Hotel.

The other three finalists, Ron Estay of LSU, and Rich Glover and Larry Jacobson of Nebraska agreed with Patulski that the Lombardi award would give past due credit to linemen.

"The beauty of this award is the selection process," said Patulski, an Associated Press All-American. "I think the Heisman Trophy is biased. A lineman just doesn't get a good chance to win that award."

A 45-pound granite block trophy will be presented to the winner with proceeds from the dinner going to the American Cancer Society's Research program. The trophy is named for the former Green Bay and Washington coach, who died of cancer in 1970.

"It's a real privilege for a lineman to get this type of award," said Estay, who led LSU's defense in tackles from his tackle position. In football, it's the guy who scores the most points that usually gets the award."

DEVANEY . . . retirement ahead?

'Coach Of The Year' Eludes Devaney Again

From News Wires

Hollywood, Fla. — For the second straight year, a coach who has been beaten by Nebraska's Bob Devaney in a national championship game has been named Coach of the Year over the Husker boss by the American Football Coaches Association.

Alabama's Paul (Bear) Bryant was named Thursday by his fellow coaches as Coach of the Year. Devaney's Huskers defeated the Crimson Tide, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night.

A year ago, the coaches named LSU's Charlie McClendon and Texas' Darrell Royal Co-Coaches of the Year. Devaney's Nebraska team defeated LSU 17-12, in the Orange Bowl a year ago thus winning the national championship. Royal's Texas team was defeated by Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on the same day.

The balloting for the coach of the year award was conducted before the bowl games.

Devaney, who has compiled a 92-18-1 record in 10 years at Nebraska and a 127-28-6 career mark including his stint at Wyoming, had won three coach of the year honors before being shut out again by his fellow coaches.

The Football Writers Association of America, the Washington Touchdown Club and the Helms Athletic Foundation had previously accorded Devaney their respective coach of the year honor.

In 27 years as a head coach, Bryant has a record of 210-67-16. More than 1,700 AFCA members participated in the voting for the award.

The order of finish in the balloting was not announced. Other finalists besides Devaney, who represented District 6, included Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks, Michigan's Bo Schembechler, Penn State's Joe Paterno, North Carolina's Bill Dooley, Cornell's Jack Musick and Washington State's Jim Sweeney.

Harold (Tubby) Raymond of Delaware's national small college champions was named the small college coach of the year by the AFCA. He has compiled a 48-10-0 record in six years at the school.

Bryant, who cast his own vote for Devaney, said he was "not greatly surprised" by the award since "back in September we had a very difficult schedule and no one picked us to go anywhere. This is the greatest honor of its kind because it's voted on by the coaches, but it's more of a compliment to our players for an outstanding job."

It was a second consecutive disappointment for Devaney, who has won two straight national championships but has never been named Coach of the Year.

"Naturally I'm disappointed," Devaney said. "But Bear Bryant had a good record and did a fine coaching job. The coaches vote and that's it."

Wesleyan Has Chance To Even Record At 7-7

Colorado Springs, Colo. — The Nebraska Wesleyan basketball team has a chance to even its record for the first time this season here Friday night against Colorado College.

The Plainsmen are 6-7 for the season and this is the closest they have been to an even record. And NWU has had good games in the past against Colorado College making the chances even better.

Coach Irv Peterson indicated he'll go with the same starters for Wesleyan as he has in past games.

Reidell Lintz and Lyle Hart will go at guards, John Strain and Dick French at forwards and Mike Renken at center. Bob Beecham, Charlie Rine and Dean DeBoer will see a lot of action according to Peterson. Peterson is hoping the Plainsmen's rebounding will help his team to an other win.

NWU has out rebounded most opponents this season led by Renken who is averaging almost 20 rebounds per game. If we can keep on rebounding well, we should be able to keep up with most teams," Peterson said.

"If we don't have a poor night shooting from the field or free throw line like we did against Bellevue, we'll be tough."

The Plainsmen's balance on offense is evident with the five starters averaging in double figures. The place NWU has to show improvement in order to keep winning is defense according to Peterson.

Wesleyan is averaging 77.2 points per game but its foes are averaging 79.5.

Nicklaus Fires Six-Under To Take First Crosby Lead

... ONE-STROKE OFF RECORD

Pebble Beach, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, picking up just where he left off last year, fired a stunning six-under-par 66 and established a three-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $140,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, who won four of his last five starts in 1971, had it seven-under-par until he bogeyed the final hole.

He finished one-stroke over the course record at Cypress Point, one of three seaside courses on the Monterey Peninsula being used for this celebrity-studded event.

Nicklaus held a big lead over Lee Trevino, Paul Moran and Larry Mowry tied for second at 69.

Trevino, the 1971 PGA player-of-the-year, and Moran both played at Cypress Point, while Mowry was at Spyglass Hill.

The group at 70 included Al Geiberger, Dale Douglass, Bill Johnston, Tom Wieskopf, Mike Morley and rookie Larry Wadkins. Geiberger, Douglass and Morley were at Cypress Point, Johnston and Wieskopf at Spyglass and Wadkins at Pebble Beach.

Several top players had their difficulties on the picturesque layouts. Defending champion Tom Shaw took a fat 77. George Archer, who won a playoff for the title in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Monday, took a 78. Masters champ Charles Coody was well back with a 73. Billy Casper had a 75. England's Tony Jacklin went to a 76.

Nicklaus, who set a single season money winning record last year with $244,000, was one of the last to get away in the cool, sunny weather. It took more than 5½ hours to play the round and he finished in the gathering dusk and increasing cold.

Nicklaus, 10 days short of his 32nd birthday, was making his first start of the season and completely dominated play with his near-record effort.

Nicklaus heavily bundled against the chill, was threatening to run off and hide from the rest of the field until he had his only lapse on the 18th, a relatively easy par four four.

He got off a booming drive, but hit the branch of a tree with his second shot, the ball dropping straight down. He chipped poorly then two-putted for a bogey.

The awesome Golden Bear bagged his birdies in pairs, and could have shot an incredible score. He had seven birds and missed six times from 12 feet or less.

He hit a three iron to within four feet on the first hole and made the putt, then holed a 20 footer on the next. He chipped to within three feet for a birdie on the sixth and got another from 18 feet on the seventh.

The big blond rapped in a 45-foot putt on the 11th hole, then scored consecutive deuces on the 15th and 16th making putts of 20 and 12 feet.

Please, Dad . . .

When Henry Brandt goes before the Nebraska Unicameral asking for money to put his State Fairgrounds in order, he must feel a little like the boy, who has a paper route but who has to turn all his earnings over to his father, then can't get enough money from dad to get that flat tire fixed on his bicycle that he needs to cover the paper route.

Brandt has been trying to run a State Fairgrounds horse racing meet for the past several years with a plant that has a flat tire and the facility is getting so bad that the wheels are even about to fall off.

If dad (the Legislature) could see fit to give him a new bicycle, he could enlarge his paper route and put even more money in dad's pocket.

Or if dad would simply let him keep the money he's been turning over to him, Brandt could buy his own new bicycle.

The groups are numerous that appear before the Legislature's Budget Committee, but when Brandt and his State Fair Board appear before that body as they did Wednesday in asking for $1.7 million to begin rebuilding the Fairgrounds it's a unique situation.

Most groups appearing before the Budget Committee are simply asking for permission to dip their hand into the piggy bank and pull out a handful of loot.

Put It In, Too

The thing that makes Brandt's request unique is that he also puts a considerable amount of money into the state's piggy bank.

Each year the State Fairgrounds race meet puts nearly a quarter of a million dollars into the State Treasury through the pari-mutuel and admissions tax.

Now, if the Legislature doesn't want to give back any of that money to get the needed work done, it doesn't take much of a mathematician to figure that if they'd let Brandt simply keep his paper route earnings for a few years he could pay for it himself.

And Brandt promises that if they'd give him a new bicycle, he could increase his route enough that he could put even more money into dad's pocket.

"With a new facility, we could double our pari-mutuel handle and that would thus double the money we'd be giving to the state in taxes," he asserts.

Anyone, who has taken a careful look at the situation would have to think that Brandt is being a bit modest perhaps in his promise.

Bettors Bypassing Lincoln

That the handle could be doubled is as safe a prediction as forecasting that Joe Frazier will whip Terry Daniels in their Saturday night mismatch in New Orleans.

A large share of the crowd you see at Grand Island during the Fanner Park meeting comes from Omaha and a large part of the crowd you see at Ak-Sar-Ben during the Omaha meeting comes from outstate Nebraska.

Yet, because of its antiquated facility, the State Fairgrounds meeting in Lincoln attracts neither the outstate bettors nor the Omaha bettors.

And it's not that they've lost all their money by the time the Thoroughbreds reach Lincoln or that their enthusiasm for the sport has waned. It's simply that who wants to go to the State Fairgrounds plant and stand around in what is a little better than a barn and swelter in the July and August heat to beat.

Supporting State Fair

And there's another factor, perhaps the most overlooked one in the total spectrum of the State Fairgrounds race meet.

That is that while the Fanner Park meeting must support only the Hall County Fair and the Columbus meeting the Platte County Fair, the Lincoln meeting must support the State Fair.

And anyone who thinks there's any similarity between the costs involved between a county fair and a state fair would also have to figure he could trade a Volkswagen for a Cadillac even-up.

If there were no State Fairgrounds race meeting to pay the bills for the State Fair, then the Legislature would have to come up with a means of financing that annual fall extravaganza.

There isn't a legislator sitting up at the State Capitol, who wouldn't jump at the offer if someone said, "You give me a dollar now and for every dollar you give me now, in 10 years I'll give you back two dollars."

Yet, that essentially is what Henry Brandt and his State Fair Board are saying. The Nebraska Legislature doesn't run into that kind of a deal everyday.

LHS Facing Top Teams In Weekend Battles

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Lincoln High, No. 7 rated in the statewide high school basketball top ten ratings despite a standoff 3-3 record, has its work cut out this weekend.

Coach Aldy Johnson's Links are involved in the only pre-ranked in the Capital City Friday night when they face ninth-ranked Northeast at Pershing Auditorium, then travel to Omaha Saturday evening to battle No. 3 rated Central.

While the Lincoln High-Northeast intra-city matchup is on Friday, the other three Lincoln hoop quintets are on the road.

East goes to Beatrice, while Southeast journeys to Grand Island. Pius X, which upset Southeast in its latest outing but still failed to crack the Class B top ten, gets another chance in a game at No. 6 rated Waverly.

Despite the fact that Lincoln High is two spots higher in the ratings than Northeast, coach Ed Johnson's Rockets scored a narrow 46-44 victory over the Links when the two met in mid-December.

Northeast got off to a fast early-season start, winning three in a row before the holiday break. But back-to-back losses last weekend to Hastings and Omaha Benson pushed the Rockets down to the No. 9 position.

Lincoln High opened by beating the same Hastings team, 87-68, before losing its next three to No. 1 rated Omaha Westside, No. 2 ranked Lincoln East and Northeast.

Last weekend the Links posted a pair of victories over Southeast and Creighton Prep.

DEVANEY TO QUIT COACHING?

... Decision Expected In Two Weeks

Hollywood, Fla. (AP) — Bob Devaney said Thursday night he is considering retiring as Nebraska's head football coach after leading the Cornhuskers' to two consecutive national championships.

"I've been thinking about it after each of the last three seasons," said the 56-year-old coach, who also is Nebraska's director of athletics. "It's not set. I'm going back home and make a decision within the next couple of weeks."

"It's kind of a challenge. One minute you want to quit and the next minute you want to win three national championships in a row, which has never been done before and which is almost impossible."

Devaney disclosed his feelings shortly after he lost out to Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama in balloting by more than 1,700 members of the American Football Coaches Association for major college Coach of the Year.

"If I had won, it might have been an influencing factor, but I think I would still make my decision the same way," said Devaney, who has been one of the eight coaches of the year finalists six times but has never won the award despite the consecutive national crowns and a brilliant 127-28-6 record in 15 years as a head coach at Nebraska and Wyoming.

"It's certainly disappointing," he said. "I figured the law of averages might catch up to me, but you've got to look at it the democratic way. The coaches' vote and you've got to accept it. Bear Bryant had a good record and did a fine coaching job."

The AFCA members voted before Nebraska crushed Alabama 38-6 in the Orange Bowl.

Devaney said that giving up the coaching job "has been on my mind for some time. In fact, right after the Orange Bowl game, I told my coaching staff so they could start looking around for a job, if they wanted to."

"It's a lot better, I guess, to step out when you're at the top than when you're losing. At least nobody's nugging me now. I'm 56 years old and I've been coaching a long time. A lot of fellows younger than I am are falling out with heart attacks. And there aren't many older guys still exposing themselves to the strain of being a head coach."

The Nebraska regents recently raised Devaney's salary $3,000 to $35,000 annually.

Devaney emphasized he is not under doctor's orders to give up coaching.

"It's getting harder to recruit every year," he said, "and it just seems to me that this might be the right time. Right now, being Nebraska's head football coach is no big problem. But when I get up on Saturday mornings during the football season, the way I feel, I know I should be sitting back and watching on television."

Devaney pointed out he will have to make a decision soon "because of recruiting. It's not fair to try to sign a kid if you can't even tell him who his head coach will be."

And he said he would like to insure that one of his assistants would succeed him.

"If I knew one of my assistants wasn't going to replace me, I probably wouldn't consider stepping out at this time," he said.

"I'll probably mull over the pros and cons in my mind and find out just how much coaching means to me. If you want to keep on coaching, you can always find some excuse."

As third vice president of the coaches' group, Devaney was reminded that he'll be president in 1975.

"I don't think I'll be around that long," he laughed.

Word that Bob Devaney is giving thought to the possibility of retiring as Nebraska's head football coach drew expressions of hope in his home state Thursday night that the man who has put together two straight national champion teams will remain on the job.

University president D. B. Varner said he was unaware of any Devaney retirement plans but said "my reaction is that he's certainly earned the right to choose whatever course he wants to pursue." But, he added, "it would be a serious loss to the team."

Varner said he was aware of some published speculation last year and the preceding year that Devaney might give up the coaching post. "I just never gave it serious thought, I guess."

Assistant coach Jim Ross, who has been an aide to Devaney throughout Devaney's career as head coach, said Devaney "has talked of retiring the last couple of years, but I didn't know he was planning anything this year. I talked to him on the phone yesterday and he didn't say anything about it."

Because of the Orange Bowl game in Miami New Year's night, the Hula Bowl game in Honolulu in which he served as coach of the winning North team, and the more recent coaches' meetings in Florida, Devaney has been out of the city since before Christmas.

Team members and students also have scattered, this being an interval between semesters at the school.

Nebraska Sports Information Director Don Bryant said he knew nothing of a possible Devaney retirement and "I certainly hope it's just a rumor. I hope he continues to coach for many, many years."

"I don't think he'll retire," said one unbelieving fan. "That sounds like a misquote or a misunderstanding. He won't retire."

Linemen Past Due For Credit

Houston (AP) — Notre Dame defensive end Walt Patulski, a finalist for the second annual Vince Lombardi Award, says the Heisman Trophy is biased against linemen because the backs get more publicity.

The award, presented annually to the nation's top lineman of the year, will be given to one of four finalists Friday night at a $100 per plate dinner at the Astroworld Hotel.

The other three finalists, Ron Estay of LSU, and Rich Glover and Larry Jacobson of Nebraska agreed with Patulski that the Lombardi award would give past due credit to linemen.

"The beauty of this award is the selection process," said Patulski, an Associated Press All-American. "I think the Heisman Trophy is biased. A lineman just doesn't get a good chance to win that award."

A 45-pound granite block trophy will be presented to the winner with proceeds from the dinner going to the American Cancer Society's Research program. The trophy is named for the former Green Bay and Washington coach, who died of cancer in 1970.

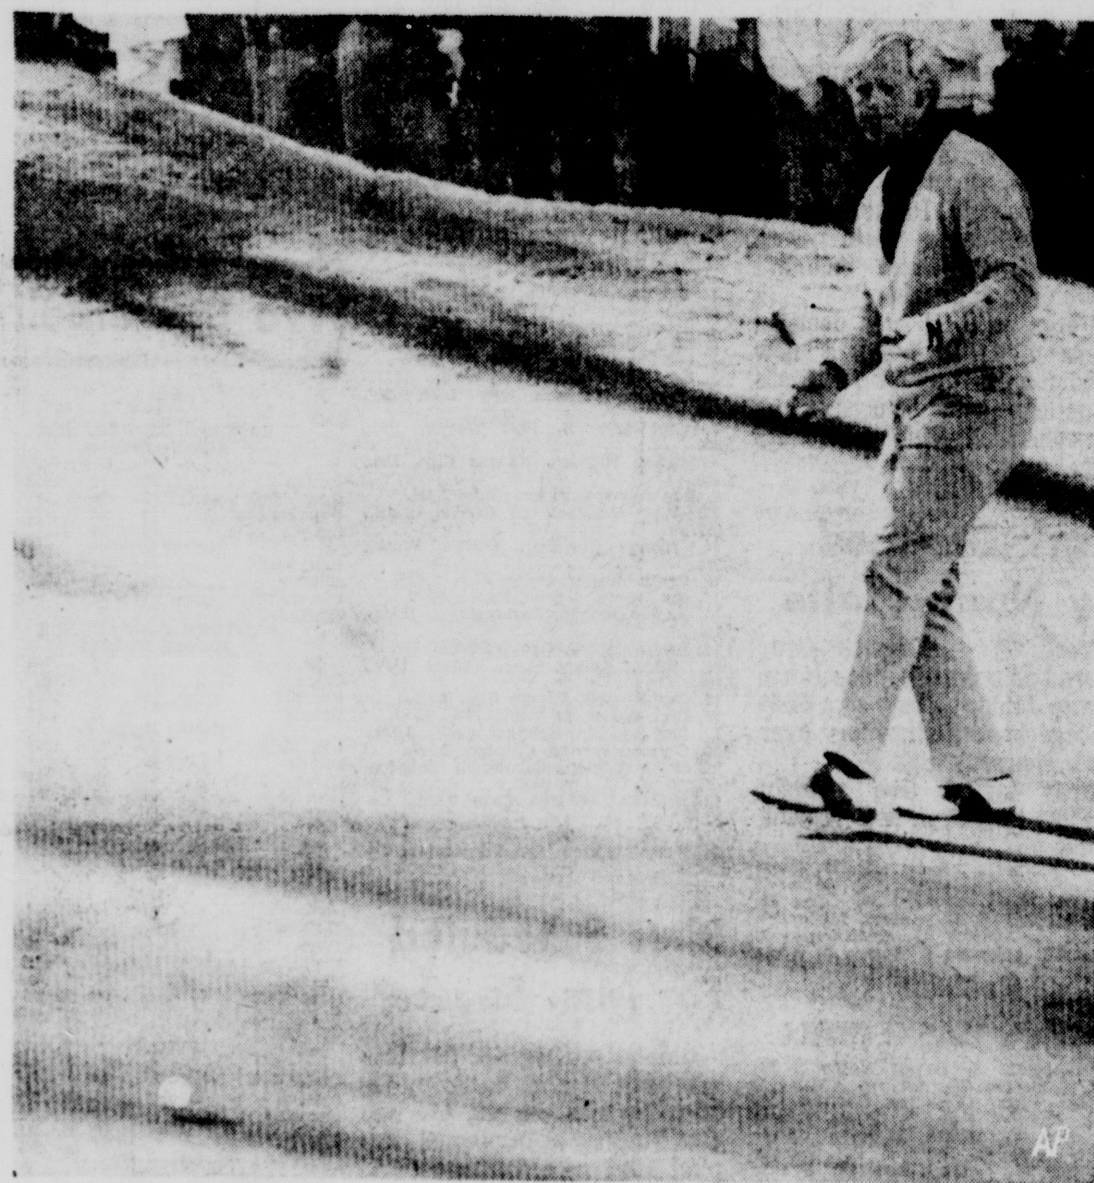

"It's a real privilege for a lineman to get this type of award," said Estay, who led LSU's defense in tackles from his tackle position. "In football, it's the guy who scores the most points that usually gets the award."

Nicklaus Fires Six-Under To Take First Crosby Lead

... ONE-STROKE OFF RECORD

Pebble Beach, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, picking up just where he left off last year, fired a stunning six-under-par 66 and established a three-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $140,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, who won four of his last five starts in 1971, had it seven-under-par until he bogeyed the final hole.

He finished one-stroke over the course record at Cypress Point, one of three seaside courses on the Monterey Peninsula being used for this celebrity-studded event.

Nicklaus held a big lead over Lee Trevino, Paul Moran, and Larry Mowry, tied for second at 69.

Trevino, the 1971 PGA player-of-the-year, and Moran both played at Cypress Point, while Mowry was at Spyglass Hill.

The group at 70 included Al Geiberger, Dale Douglass, Bill Johnston, Tom Wieskopf, Mike Morley and rookie Latny Wadkins. Geiberger, Douglass and Morley were at Cypress Point, Johnston and Wieskopf at Spyglass and Wadkins at Pebble Beach.

Several top players had their difficulties on the picturesque layouts. Defending champion Tom Shaw took a fat 77. George Archer, who won a playoff for the title in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Monday, took a 76. Masters champ Charles Coody was well back with a 73. Billy Casper had a 75. England's Tony Jacklin went to a 76.

Nicklaus, who set a single season money winning record last year with $244,000, was one of the last to get away in the cool, sunny weather. It took more than 5½ hours to play the round and he finished in the gathering dusk and increasing cold.

Nicklaus, 10 days short of his 32nd birthday, was making his first start of the season and completely dominated play with his near-record effort.

Nicklaus, heavily bundled against the chill, was threatening to run off and hide from the rest of the field until he had his only lapse on the 18th, a relatively easy par four.

He got off a booming drive, but hit the branch of a tree with his second shot, the ball dropping straight down. He chipped poorly, then two-putted for a bogey.

The awesome Golden Bear bagged his birdies in pairs, and could have shot an incredible score. He had seven birds and missed six times from 12 feet or less.

He hit a three iron to within four feet on the first hole and made the putt, then holed a 20-footer on the next. He chipped to within three feet for a birdie on the sixth and got another from 18 feet on the seventh.

The big blond rapped in a 45-foot putt on the 11th hole, then scored consecutive deuces on the 15th and 16th, making putts of 20 and 12 feet.

DEVANEY . . . retirement ahead?

'Coach Of The Year' Eludes Devaney Again

From News Wires

Hollywood, Fla. — For the second straight year, a coach who has been beaten by Nebraska's Bob Devaney in a national championship game has been named Coach of the Year over the Husker boss by the American Football Coaches Association.

Alabama's Paul (Bear) Bryant was named Thursday by his fellow coaches as Coach of the Year. Devaney's Huskers defeated the Crimson Tide, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night.

A year ago, the coaches named LSU's Charlie McClendon and Texas' Darrell Royal Co-Coaches of the Year. Devaney's Nebraska team defeated LSU, 17-12, in the Orange Bowl a year ago thus winning the national championship. Royal's Texas team was defeated by Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl on the same day.

The balloting for the coach of the year award was conducted before the bowl games.

Devaney, who has compiled a 92-18-1 record in 10 years at Nebraska and a 127-28-6 career mark including his stint at Wyoming, had won three coach of the year honors before being shut out again by his fellow coaches.

The Football Writers Association of America, the Washington Touchdown Club and the Helms Athletic Foundation had previously accorded Devaney their respective coach of the year honor.

In 27 years as a head coach, Bryant has a record of 210-67-16. More than 1,700 AFCA members participated in the voting for the award.

The order of finish in the balloting was not announced. Other finalists besides Devaney, who represented District 6, included Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks, Michigan's Bo Schenbeckher, Penn State's Joe Paterno, North Carolina's Bill Dooley, Cornell's Jack Musick and Washington State's Jim Sweeney.

Harold (Tubby) Raymond of Delaware's national small college champions was named the small college coach of the year by the AFCA. He has compiled a 48-18-0 record in six years at the school.

Bryant, who cast his own vote for Devaney, said he was "not greatly surprised" by the award since "back in September we had a very difficult schedule and no one picked us to go anywhere. This is the greatest honor of its kind because it's voted on by the coaches, but it's more of a compliment to our players for an outstanding job."

It was a second consecutive disappointment for Devaney, who has won two straight national championships but has never been named Coach of the Year.

"Naturally I'm disappointed," Devaney said. "But Bear Bryant had a good record and did a fine coaching job. The coaches vote and that's it."

Wesleyan Has Chance To Even Record At 7-7

Colorado Springs, Colo. — The Nebraska Wesleyan basketball team has a chance to even its record for the first time this season here Friday night against Colorado College.

The Plainsmen are 6-7 for the season and this is the closest they have been to an even record. And NWU has had good games in the past against Colorado College making the chances even better.

Coach Irv Peterson indicated he'll go with the same starters for Wesleyan as he has in past games.

Reidell Lintz and Lyle Hiatt will go at guards, John Strain and Dick French at forwards and Mike Renken at center. Bob Beecham, Charlie Rine and Dean DeBoer will see a lot of action according to Peterson. Peterson is hoping the Plainsmen's rebounding will help his team to an other win.

NWU has out rebounded most opponents this season led by Renken who is averaging almost 20 rebounds per game. "If we can keep on rebounding well, we should be able to keep up with most teams," Peterson said.

"If we don't have a poor night shooting from the field or free throw line like we did against Bellevue, we'll be tough."

The Plainsmen's balance on offense is evident with the five starters averaging in double figures. The place NWU has to show improvement in order to keep winning is defense according to Peterson.

Wesleyan is averaging 77.2 points per game but its foes are averaging 79.5.

Upper Iowa, KSU Top Challengers In Mat Tourney

Marville, Mo. (AP) — Eighty wrestlers from eight Midwest colleges and universities are expected to participate in Northwest Missouri State's annual invitational wrestling meet Saturday.

Upper Iowa University is defending champion. However, George Worley, meet director, said "Kansas State University and Upper Iowa would be regarded as favorites, but stiff competition should come from Wayne, Neb., State, Westmar of Le Mars, Iowa and Western Illinois University."

All are ranked in the nation's top 10 according to rankings released by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Shickley, Dorchester Grab Victories In Cage Tourney

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Geneva — Shickley and Dorchester, which both carry the team nickname of Longhorns, gained berths in Saturday night's finals of the Pioneer Conference Basketball Tournament with semi-final round victories here Thursday night.

Shickley edged Davenport, 49-48, in the opener while Dorchester downed Chester-Hubbell, 44-37, in the second half of the twin bill.

The two finalists met earlier in the season with Dorchester claiming a narrow two point triumph at Shickley, 54-52.

Coach Richard Ideus' Shickley quintet captured the opener on a last second bucket by Robert Dondlinger, coming from behind after holding a commanding lead most of the way.

Shickley trailed 5-2 at the outset but then tallied 10 straight points to grab a 12-5 advantage.

The winning Longhorns pushed the margin to nine at halftime, 24-15, and held the same edge going into the final frame 36-27.

Davenport went to a pressing defense which resulted in numerous fourth quarter fouls but Shickley was able to garner just two of a potential 14 points on seven one-and-one opportunities.

Davenport crept closer until with 35 seconds left Rod Tegtmeyer popped in a fielder to knot the count at 46 all.

Shickley's Terry Gowen made one free throw at the 28-second mark but then Davenport's Murray Johnson swished a long one with 17 seconds left to give the Tigers their first lead since the opening moments.

But Shickley broke Davenport's press and Dondlinger zipped through to score from close range 7 seconds before the gun to register the victory.

Chester and Dorchester were both colder than the weather outside during the first half of the nightcap.

Chester grabbed a 5-0 lead but then didn't score another field goal until midway through the second stanza.

Dorchester led 6-5 at the first quarter break and 21-17 at halftime.

Coach Jack Owen's taller Dorchester club, getting near complete command of the backboards from Ron Velder, Stewart Roth and Terry Young was in charge throughout the second half.

Mt. Marty Drops JFK, 85-72

Yankton, S.D. (P) — Mt. Marty S.D. capitalized on six free throws in the final three minutes of play to take an 85-72 college basketball victory over John F. Kennedy College of Wahoo, Neb. Thursday night.

The lead changed hands several times, with Mt. Marty clinching the victory on its strength at the charity stripe.

Chadron Drops Cage Tilt, 78-61

Wayne (P) — Dennis Siefkes scored 32 points to lead Wayne State to a 78-61 basketball victory over Chadron Thursday night in Nebraska College Conference action.

Wayne began to pull away late in the first half, stretching its advantage to nine by intermission, 40-31, and maintained its lead after that, improving its conference record to 3-0 and its season mark to 11-3.

Wayne — Siefkes 32, Quinn 15, Woodin 9, Harvey 8, Ervin 4, Jones 3, Jorgensen 2, Rothstein 2, Brummer 2, Chadron — Brown 20, Jones 17, Taylor 13, Sanders 5, Seidel 3, Baumann 2, Jeffrey 1.

Csonka's Bite Worse Than Bark

Stow, Ohio (P) — Rugged Miami Dolphin running back Larry Csonka, who could play an important role in Sunday's Super Bowl game against the Dallas Cowboys in New Orleans, apparently started to punish his "opponents" when he was a young boy.

Said Larry's father, Joseph: "I can remember hearing our family dog bark and going outside to see what was happening," said Joseph Csonka. "There sat 3-year-old Larry with one of the dog's legs in his mouth."

"I asked him what he was doing biting the dog," answered Larry. "He bit me first."

Western Wins Over Lamar

Scottsbluff (P) — Undeclared Nebraska Western scored its tenth straight victory of the season Thursday night, downing Lamar, Colo. 98-84 in college basketball action.

ISU President Prefers Building New Grid Stadium

Ames, Iowa (P) — The president of Iowa State University says he thinks it would make "good business sense" to build a new football stadium at the university instead of making constant repairs on the old facility.

"It makes good business sense to build a new stadium rather than keep sinking money into old Clyde Williams Field," ISU President Robert Parks said Thursday.

Parks said the present stadium would cost about $1.5 million to repair, including adding more seats to the present 35,000-seat structure.

Besides, said Parks, even if Clyde Williams Field were repaired, "we still wouldn't have enough parking."

Parks said if any decision were made to build a new stadium, he thinks private donations should be used to pay for construction instead of state aid.

Court Rules Housewife Can Umpire

Albany, N.Y. (P) — New York's highest court ruled Thursday that Mrs. Bernice Gera, a 41-year-old Queens housewife, can be a lady umpire in professional baseball.

The 5-2 decision rejected the appeal of the New York-Pennsylvania Professional Baseball League and the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. They had appealed a ruling by a lower court that they were guilty of unlawful discrimination in denying Mrs. Gera the opportunity to become a professional baseball umpire.

Mrs. Gera has been trying to umpire in professional baseball for about five years. She was graduated from the Florida Umpire School in 1967 but has been unable to get a job.

The court did not issue an opinion. All the judges concurred in the decision except John F. Scileppi and James Gibson.

The league and the National Association had contended that Mrs. Gera was not barred from employment because of her sex but because the umpire school that she attended was not approved and her conduct was inappropriate.

They said that, among other things, she demonstrated a "proclivity for publicity" which was considered an undesirable characteristic in a professional umpire.

Hill Still Question Mark In Dallas Cowboy Backfield

... KNEE SAID UNSTABLE

New Orleans (P) — Dallas running back Calvin Hill, who may require off-season surgery to repair his knee, remained a major question mark Thursday as the Cowboys and Miami Dolphins continued secret workouts of Super Bowl VI.

Hill, who strained a right knee ligament in the Cowboys' victory over San Francisco for the National Conference championship, is the only player on either team whose condition for Sunday's game is uncertain.

"Calvin has run well in practice," Coach Tom Landry pointed out. "He said the knee felt good. It's just a matter of strengthening it now. But we probably won't be certain about his playing condition until game day."

By VIRGIL PARKER

Geneva — Shickley and Dorchester, which both carry the team nickname of Longhorns, gained berths in Saturday night's finals of the Pioneer Conference Basketball Tournament with semi-final round victories here Thursday night.

The two finalists met earlier in the season with Dorchester claiming a narrow two point triumph at Shickley, 54-52.

Coach Richard Ideus' Shickley quintet captured the opener on a last second bucket by Robert Dondlinger, coming

Csonka's Bite Worse Than Bark

Stow, Ohio (AP) — Rugged Miami Dolphin running back Larry Csonka, who could play an important role in Sunday's Super Bowl game against the Dallas Cowboys in New Orleans, apparently started to punish his "opponents" when he was a young boy.

Said Larry's father, Joseph: "I can remember hearing our family dog bark and going outside to see what was happening," said Joseph Csonka. "There sat 3-year-old Larry with one of the dog's legs in his mouth."

"I asked him what he was doing biting the dog," answered Larry. "He bit me first."

ISU President Prefers Building New Grid Stadium

AMES, Iowa (AP) — The president of Iowa State University says he thinks it would make "good business sense" to build a new football stadium at the university instead of making constant repairs on the old facility.

"It makes good business sense to build a new stadium rather than keep sinking money into old Clyde Williams Field," ISU President Robert Parks said Thursday.

Parks said the present stadium would cost about $1.5 million to repair including adding more seats to the present 35,000-seat structure.

Besides, said Parks, even if Clyde Williams Field were repaired, "we still wouldn't have enough parking."

Parks said if any decision were made to build a new stadium, he thinks private donations should be used to pay for construction instead of state aid.

Hill Still Question Mark In Dallas Cowboy Backfield

... KNEE SAID UNSTABLE

New Orleans (AP) — Dallas running back Calvin Hill, who may require off-season surgery to repair his knee, remained a major-question mark Thursday as the Cowboys and Miami Dolphins continued secret workouts of Super Bowl VI.

Hill, who strained a right knee ligament in the Cowboys' victory over San Francisco for the National Conference championship, is the only key player on either team whose condition for Sunday's game is uncertain.

"Calvin has run well in practice," Coach Tom Landry pointed out. "He said the knee felt good. It's just a matter of strengthening it now. But we probably won't be certain about his playing condition until game day."

Frazier Heavily Favored

New Orleans (AP) — "Frazier should win easily," football star Larry Csonka said Thursday. "What's the other guy's name?"

That summed up the general feeling in this Super Bowl city about the heavyweight title fight between champion Joe Frazier and Terry Daniels Saturday night.

The talk and the betting action revolve around Sunday's Super Bowl football game between Csonka's Miami Dolphins and the Dallas Cowboys.

When there is any talk about the fight, it involves Frazier who is the prohibitive favorite. Most fight followers expect Frazier to end the scheduled 15-round early. "I'm not just here to make a buck," said Daniels. "I'm gonna be super human to make a good fight."

Daniels is the loser of three of 10 fights in 1971, one of them a four-round knockout at the hands of Jack O'Halloran Aug. 24.

"It was a terribly degrading loss," said Daniels. "He had busted some ribs in a motorcycle spill 19 days before the O'Halloran fight," said Daniels' manager, Doug Lord. "I was overseas and did not know about the injury. I didn't go to the fight."

Daniels' last fight was a three-round knockout of Sonny Moore which gave him a professional record of 28-4-1, with 24 knockouts.

The 25-year-old one-time freshman football player at Southern Methodist, who now lives in Dallas, will get $35,000 for the fight.

The bout is scheduled to start at 9 p.m. CST. at Ripergate Auditorium.

Frazier will get $250,000 for his first fight since he pounded out a 15-round decision over Muhammad Ali last March 7.

This also will be the first heavyweight title fight to be carried on home television since Ali knocked out Zora Folley, March 22, 1967.

The champion has a 27-0-0 pro mark, with 23 knockouts.

Century Teleports Network, the promoter, has put together a hookup of 205 stations that will reach every major market except the San Francisco Area. New Orleans will be blacked out.

Silence In Red Countries Not Necessarily Consent

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

the persistence in our times of Marxian governments in Russia, China, Cuba, Chile and elsewhere puzzles observers. Some dismiss the search for penetrating answers by blithely asserting that Communist governments are sanctioned by the fact peoples who believe their lot has improved over such regimes.

Accordingly, in the five-year plans, Lenin borrowed ideas from the bourgeois nations, and moved toward rewards and incentives, including bonuses for extra piece work production and introduction of spectacular disparities in the pay of managing executives vs. ordinary toilers. Accordingly, in Russia a hybrid state capitalism has replaced the original Communist concepts. This deviation created ideological battles with Red China, which still gives lip service to unadulterated Marxian theories.

Welfare State Simultaneously, since the New Deal, the United States has shifted from the laissez faire toward a welfare state, with the resultant "mixed economy." While President Allende in Chile won an election by dividing his conservative opponents, his mentor, the Cuban Fidel Castro, has told Chileans that force rather than the ballot is the means to progress.

It is of course unscholarly to group the United States with all the other non-Communist countries. In non-Communist Arab countries and nations in Latin America, parts of Asia and elsewhere, where societies have been relatively static and where little progress has been made in sharing the benefits of technology with the masses, such systems differ radically from the type of people's capitalism in the United States, with 31,000,000 share owners and many others participating in affluence through ownership of homes, automobiles, TV sets and labor-saving household appliances.

My observations overseas indicate that national survival depends on discipline. Adolf Hitler sneered at democracies as unruly mobs, but underestimated the capacity of free people for self discipline. The threat to freedom doesn't come simply from those who introduce repression, but also from the excesses in license of individuals who take the blessings of freedom without the correlative obligation to act responsibly. Coups occur when voluntary self discipline breaks down and so-called strong men step in to substitute enforced discipline.

Amended State Judicial Reform Bill To Get Public Hearing Jan. 25

State Sen. Roland A. Luedtke of Lincoln said Thursday that 21 county court districts served by 47 judges is proposed in the amended version of the state judicial reform bill.

Speaking before a YWCA public affairs luncheon, the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee chairman highlighted amendments to the held-over LB1032 that will undergo public hearing Jan. 25 before his committee.

The county court districts would coincide with the jurisdictional boundaries of the district court, he said. Each district will have at least two judges, and a few will have three.

The bill will also provide for a small claims court within the county court system, he said. Nebraska is one of three states currently without such courts.

Claims involving $500 or less will be handled by this court, and an aggrieved party will not be required to have legal assistance in filing his complaint.

"It is not intended as a bill collector's court," Luedtke said, "but as a people's court where an individual can handle his own case."

In replacing the present county court system, where two-thirds of the judges are laymen, Luedtke said all judges will be lawyers and appointed under the state's judicial merit system.

However, associate county

judges, who are qualified laymen, may be appointed to assist the regular judges with routine matters.

In some districts, the associate judge may also be the clerk of the court, he said.

Luedtke said that this year is the logical time for enactment of the reform bill as the elected terms of county judges expire at the end of this year and the proposed merit system for county judges would begin Jan. 1, 1973. (Supreme court, district and municipal judges are now under the merit system.)

"If the bill isn't enacted this session," he said, "the judicial reform effort is locked-out for another four years."

Luedtke said the amended LB1032 is the result of a year-long series of meetings with lawyers, laymen, judges and interested groups across the state.

company did make an agreement with Mel Steen, former Game Commission director, that agreement was no longer valid because minimum lease payments had not been made.

adding that the company didn't know that the commission had wanted anything further since April of 1971.

The prime area of disagreement appeared to be the formation of a Sanitary Improvement District which would obtain water from Lewis and Clark Lake for various uses including water service to individual housing units in the area.

Neither Hannah nor the other directors directly opposed the subdivision, Hannah's only complaint was that "these are the things I have not been made aware of."

William Barbee, director of the Game Commission, said he approved of the building of Devil's Nest because "it provides development of a public recreation area without spending government money." And Hannah said that he admired the "guts of the undertaking."

Hannah said that the reason for Thursday night's meeting was to clarify "how the Game Commission fit into the puzzle and what it should be appraised of."

He said that though the

Arson Suspected In Omaha Fires In Two Lounges

Omaha — The head of the Omaha Fire Department's Arson Bureau said Thursday "all indications are that arson" was involved in a two-alarm fire which further gutted two adjacent downtown lounges Wednesday night.

Battalion Chief Donald Mills said "it looks like" a blaze at The Cellar Dec. 20 and a fire at both The Cellar and Gino's Lounge Dec. 13 are related to a Wednesday night fire at both lounges. He said arson is suspected in all three fires.

Mills said four plastic milk bottles, similar to ones found inside the lounge after the December fires, were found under a cluster of chairs in the main lounge area of Gino's Wednesday night.

He said a small amount of gasoline was found in the bottles and theorized that gasoline which was found throughout Gino's had been poured from the bottles.

No dollar estimate was placed on the loss.

Prices Dip In Active Stock Market

New York (AP) — Stock market prices took a dip Thursday but floated gradually upward in the afternoon and recovered most of their losses. Trading was active.

The trend was a continuation of the softening process that began in the latter part of Wednesday's session, when heavy trading obliterated earlier broad gains.

Profit taking was credited with Thursday's declines, but brokers noted that selling pressure was not very heavy.

The sentiment among traders was that a "correction" had been in the making for some time, inasmuch as there had been a steady push upward in recent weeks.

Some brokers said investors continued confident about the general picture of the economy and the market, whatever the short-term changes might be.

Analyst Newton Zinder of E. F. Hutton Co. said: "I think the market is absorbing some long overdue profit taking very well."

In the news background was a speech by Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, who said he would be surprised if the real gross national product increased by more than 6.5% in 1972. Many government economists have been projecting an increase around six percent.

Stans mentioned strength in the automobile business and home-furnishing sales, along with a continued housing boom and higher personal income.

New York Stock Exchange index was down 34 points, closing at 3,570.25. There were 1.6 billion shares traded, compared with 2.07 billion on Wednesday.

On the American Stock Exchange, 1.009 to 495, among the 1,757 issues bought and sold.

Associated Press 60-stock average was down 1.2 to 331.3. Industrials were down 1.5 to 483.9, rails were off 1.6 to 191.1, utilities were down 1.2 to 142.2.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down 6.0 to 102.99.

There were 18 blocks of 10,000 shares or more, compared with 136 Wednesday.

The volume leader on the Big Board was Lear Sealer, preferred, off 2 1/2% at 33 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex price index was off .05 to 26.39. Volume was 5.10 million shares, compared with 4.78 million on Wednesday. There were 1,203 issues traded, with 602 declines and 543 advances.

Corporate bonds were mixed, and government issues were higher.

Soybean, Wheat Futures Decline

Chicago (AP) — Soybean and wheat futures fell from 2 to 2 1/4 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, but there was some price recovery before the close.

Corn and oats prices, which had been irregular through most of the session, closed somewhat higher.

Soybean oil lost around 15 points, but soybean meal gained around $1 a ton and iced broilers improved by around 30 points.

At the close, soybeans were 1/2 cent a bushel lower to 1 1/4 higher, January soybean meal was 1/4 higher, March 1.63 1/4, corn was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, March 1.20 1/2, and oats were 1/4 to 1/2 higher, March 74 1/2 cents.

Silence In Red Countries Not Necessarily Consent

By Merryle S. Rukyeser

The persistence in our times of Marxian governments in Russia, China, Cuba, Chile and elsewhere puzzles observers. Some dismiss the search for penetrating answers by blithely asserting that Communist governments are sanctioned by subject peoples who believe that their lot has improved under such regimes.

But, when Marxism is coupled with dictatorships, silence does not necessarily spell consent, as evidenced in eagerness to take advantage of escape hatches. Witness the migration through the years out of Red China into Hong Kong. Certainly before the Berlin wall was constructed, dissenters were rushing from East Germany into West Berlin, and currently the eagerness of Jews in the Soviet Union to get permission to settle in Israel is a measure of sentiment. In Communist Cuba, there has been a steady exodus among those able furtively or otherwise to leave the country.

Unscientific Yardstick

Certainly it is an unscientific yardstick for Soviet propagandists after more than half a century of broken promises to assert that the average person is better off than under the Czars. This ignores the time factor. Here we compute a normal improvement rate of 3% annually. Even with the astigmatism of the Czars, it is unreasonable to assume that since 1917 the Russian economy would have stood still in face of revolutionary technological progress in the Western nations.

The Russian Communist masters have always had alibis for non-delivery of a vast social gains in family living standards. At first, the excuse was that Russia, surrounded by hostile capitalist nations, had to concentrate on heavy industries and armaments in order to survive. Then for years Hitler was an excuse. In the past quarter of a century, the Russians de-emphasized consumer goods in order to strengthen the Soviet's cold war position through quickening the armament and the space race.

If indeed the current SALT discussions between the Soviet Union and the United States should result in a mutual reduction of armaments, there would be a set-back for the first productivity of the Soviet system with that of a free market economy.

Of course, during the contemporary co-existence, both of the superpowers have narrowed their differences in economic ideology. Even under Nicolai Lenin, the Soviets junked pure Communism because it restrained productivity. The Marxist doctrine to the effect that each should contribute according to his ability and each should take according to his need shrank output. Accordingly, in the five-year plans, Lenin borrowed ideas from the bourgeois nations, and moved toward rewards and incentives, including bonuses for extra piece work production and introduction of spectacular disparities in the pay of managing executives vs. ordinary toilers. Accordingly, in Russia a hybrid state capitalism has replaced the original Communist concepts. This deviation created ideological battles with Red China, which still gives lip service to unadulterated Marxian theories.

Welfare State

Simultaneously, since the New Deal, the United States has shifted from laissez faire toward a welfare state, with the resultant "mixed economy." While President Allende in Chile won an election by dividing his conservative opponents, his mentor, the Cuban Fidel Castro, has told Chileans that force rather than the ballot is the means to progress.

It is of course unscholarly to group the United States with all the other non-Communist countries. In non-Communist Arab countries and nations in Latin America, parts of Asia and elsewhere, where societies have been relatively static and where little progress has been made in sharing the benefits of technology with the masses, such systems differ radically from the type of people's capitalism in the United States, with 31,000,000 share owners and many others participating in affluence through ownership of homes, automobiles, TV sets and labor-saving household appliances.

My observations overseas indicate that national survival depends on discipline. Adolf Hitler sneered at democracies as unruly mobs, but underestimated the capacity of free people for self discipline. The threat to freedom doesn't come simply from those who introduce repression, but also from the excesses in license of individuals who take the blessings of freedom without the correlative obligation to act responsibly. Coups occur when voluntary self discipline breaks down and so-called strong men step in to substitute enforced discipline.

(Mr. Rukyeser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

FBI Maintains 'No-Contact List'

Washington — Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, may never hear from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Neither may Henry Steele Commager, the historian at Amherst, or Gene Miller, an investigative reporter for the Miami Herald, or Sen. George McGovern or Carl Rowan, the columnist, or former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy or anyone who works for the Washington Post.

This is because of a curious FBI institution known in the bureau as the "no-contact list." Their names have all appeared on that list, according to persons close to the bureau.

According to these sources, including Robert N. Wall, a 33-year-old former special agent who worked for the bureau for five years before, he said, he became disillusioned, FBI

Ghana Army Takes Over

By The Associated Press

Junior army officers overturned Ghana's two-year-old civilian government Thursday while the prime minister was abroad for medical care.

The rebel officers accused Prime Minister Kofi A. Busia, 58, of mismanaging the West African nation's long-troubled economy. Busia, in London, called the coup "selfish and senseless" and predicted the people of Ghana would rise against it.

In Accra, the capital, hundreds of cheering workers rode through the streets to shout support for the revolt, led by Lt. Col. I. K. Acheampong, 40. There was no sign of bloodshed.

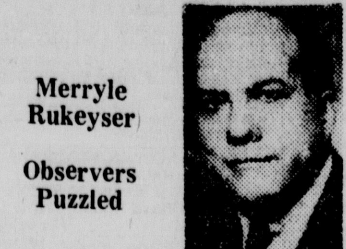

"They OK'd it, because it was routine," Wall said, and he went to the personnel office of the newspaper. "Routine as it was," he added, "I had to get permission."

One person close to the bureau said the list occasionally got in the way of efficient investigation — sometimes because the agent would not bother to ask for permission and would then avoid the interview.

The names of those on the list, beyond those already mentioned, are not known, nor is the number of names on it.

Board To Meet

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges has set a meeting for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 21, in the tenth-floor conference room of the State Capitol Building.

Amended State Judicial Reform Bill To Get Public Hearing Jan. 25

State Sen. Roland A. Luedtke of Lincoln said Thursday that 21 county court districts served by 47 judges is proposed in the amended version of the state judicial reform bill.

Speaking before a YWCA public affairs luncheon, the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee chairman highlighted amendments to the held-over LB1032 that will undergo public hearing Jan. 25 before his committee.

The county court districts would coincide with the jurisdictional boundaries of the district court, he said. Each district will have at least two

Utility Rates OK'd Without Notification

Washington (UPI) — The Price Commission announced new rules Thursday that will permit most publicly regulated utilities and industries effective Jan. 17 to raise rates and prices without first submitting them to the commission.

The new regulations will require "pre-notification" — advance submission of proposed increases for Prices Commission scrutiny — only from utilities and firms that gross $100 million or more per year.

The commission's present regulations require pre-notification by regulated utilities and firms doing $50 million or more annual business. The change brings the rules for regulated industry into line for other sectors of the economy, where only $100 million-plus firms must prenotify before changing prices.

However, the Price Commission did not establish for utilities, as it has for other industries, a category of firms doing $50 million to $100 million annual business which must submit price change reports every three months. The effect will be to lift all direct controls from utilities under $100 million, although they will have to keep records for occasional inspection by the government.

judges, and a few will have three.

The bill will also provide for a small claims court within the county court system, he said. Nebraska is one of three states currently without such courts.

Claims involving $500 or less will be handled by this court, and an aggrieved party will not be required to have legal assistance in filing his complaint.

"It is not intended as a bill collector's court," Luedtke said, "but as a people's court where an individual can handle his own case."

In replacing the present county court system, where two-thirds of the judges are laymen, Luedtke said all judges will be lawyers and appointed under the state's judicial merit system.

However, associate county

judges, who are qualified laymen, may be appointed to assist the regular judges with routine matters.

In some districts, the associate judge may also be the clerk of the court, he said. Luedtke said that this year is the logical time for enactment of the reform bill as the elected terms of county judges expire at the end of this year and the proposed merit system for county judges would begin Jan. 1, 1973. (Supreme court, district and municipal judges are now under the merit system.)

"If the bill isn't enacted this session," he said, "the judicial reform effort is locked-out for another four years."

Luedtke said the amended LB1032 is the result of a year-long series of meetings with lawyers, laymen, judges and interested groups across the state.

He said that though the company did make an agreement with Mel Steen, former Game Commission director, that agreement was no longer valid because minimum lease payments had not been made, adding that the company didn't want anything further since April of 1971.

The prime area of disagreement appeared to be the formation of a Sanitary Improvement District which would obtain water from Lewis and Clark Lake for various uses including water service to individual housing units in the area.

Neither Hannah nor the other directors directly opposed the subdivision. Hannah's only complaint was that "these are the things I have not been made aware of."

William Barbee, director of the Game Commission, said he approved of the building of Devil's Nest because "it provides development of a public recreation area without spending government money." And Hannah said that he admired the "guts of the undertaking."

Hannah said that the reason for Thursday night's meeting was to clarify "how the Game Commission fit into the puzzle and what it should be appraised of."

DID YOU KNOW THIS? IT'S A FACT:

Despite being a member of the rodent family, muskrats are clean animals. A muskrat's living quarters usually are above the high water mark along banks of rivers and lakes.

A muskrat carrying its long body on its back can swim at 40 miles an hour. In 1970 the American Bible Society produced on cassette tapes for the blind the New Testament in today's English version of the New Testament and Psalms in the King James version.

The muskrat is an excellent swimmer and can stay under water for about 12 minutes without coming up for air. Yesterday's Cryptogram was the OR is an VO U T A R L Y D E S C E N D I N G TO THE N A T U R E OF THE BEAST R A L P H W A L D O E V E R S O N.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's how to use it: One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
